

Nixon plan rejected by truckers

WASHINGTON (AP) —Negotiators for independent truckers have told their members to keep their rigs off the road after turning down President Nixon's efforts to end their strike.

In rejecting the President's plan to freeze diesel fuel prices and allow a future jump in freight rates the negotiators for the loosely organized truckers said nevertheless they were willing to continue bargaining with the government. However, no new talks were scheduled.

The truckers said Nixon's measures were inadequate because they did not guarantee them sufficient income to meet higher operating costs.

"We recommend the drivers continue to stand down and not return to work," said truckers' spokesman Leonard Fleet in announcing their decision Tuesday night.

W. J. Usery Jr., a special presidential assistant, expressed disappointment but said he would continue efforts to settle the dispute, which is slowly choking-off the nation's supply of food and goods.

Fleet said the truckers had "made crystal clear precisely what problems need solution" during the three days of negotiations that began here Sunday with Usery and Pennsylvania Gov. Milton J. Shapp. But, he said, the administration's response Tuesday "deviated markedly" from what the truckers proposed.

The administration has ordered an immediate freeze on diesel fuel prices while the Interstate Commerce Commission acts on new regulations that will enable the independent owner-operators to pass on to shippers the increase in fuel costs since last May.

In the meantime, an administration-proposed resolution now before Congress would allow the higher fees to take effect Feb. 15 without the 30-day delay under normal ICC regulations.

Federal energy chief William E. Simon also said he had directed that the trucking industry be supplied, to the maximum extent possible, with all the fuel it needs.

But Fleet, a Hollywood, Fla., attorney representing the Council of Independent Truckers, said that before the truckers go back to work they want further assurances that the price freeze will remain in effect until the higher fees take effect, plus an additional five per cent surcharge on all truck freight.

Also, he said the truckers are demanding administration support for similar action by all state regulatory agencies; support for uniform regulations on truck weights and lengths; a public audit of oil industry finances and fuel reserves; and a commitment from the Federal Energy Office that fuel supplies will be shifted throughout the country to meet the industry's needs.

The negotiators were close to a compromise Monday night. But government sources indicated the administration backed off, in part to avoid the appearance of granting the truckers too many concessions which could prompt other groups to use the same pressure tactics.

Trucker strike impact spreads

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A trucker was shot and killed on a Delaware road in the shutdown by independent truckers, and officials warned of possible food shortages in some areas if the tie-up continues much longer.

Thousands more workers were laid off due to shortages in affected industries.

Leonard Fleet, attorney and spokesman for the Council of Independent Truckers, Tuesday night urged the drivers to continue their shutdown after President Nixon attempted to halt the strike by freezing the price of diesel fuel.

Spokesmen for independent truckers elsewhere around the country were also dissatisfied with Nixon's move. In Olympia, Wash., J. W. Edwards, head of the Owner-Operator and Independent Drivers Association of America, called the administration move "just more promises."

The dead trucker, identified as Claude Nix, 50, of St. Stevens, S.C., was reportedly shot from a passing car on U.S. 13 in Delaware on Tuesday. Police said they were looking for a couple in a late model auto.

In another shooting incident, the Missouri Highway Patrol reported today that Everett Moore, 37, of Brookfield, Mo., a driver for Churchill Truck Co., suffered a minor wound in Hannibal when a bullet ripped through the windshield of his truck and grazed his right arm. Police said Moore was treated at a hospital and released.

Brick-throwing incidents were reported in Pennsylvania and New Mexico, and truckers in Iowa and New Mexico displayed bullet holes in their rigs.

Authorities escorted some trucks in Ohio and Pennsylvania. Kentucky Gov. Wendell H. Ford activated 1,000 National Guardsmen and said trucks will begin running in convoys today for added protection.

"Based on all information available, the situation is critical," Ford said. He added that some communities were experiencing serious food, fuel and materiel shortages.

West Virginia Gov. Arch A. Moore Jr. ordered armed National Guard troops to ride in each truck in five West Virginia counties hardest hit by the shutdown.

He said anyone picketing fuel terminals, truck stops or other areas in the five-county region will be arrested for trespassing.

Guardsmen also stood guard on Ohio, Michigan and Pennsylvania highways.

More than 75,000 layoffs have been reported since the widespread trucker shutdown began last Thursday. In the auto industry alone, more than 26,000 workers were off the job in Wisconsin, Ohio, Illinois, Missouri and Indiana because of parts shortages.

In Evansville, Ind., the National Association of Retail Grocers predicted shortages of meat and other perishable foods within the next 10 days if the shutdown continues. Indiana, Kentucky, Ohio and Pennsylvania urged hardest hit, and the association urged shoppers to avoid panic buying.

Spokesman for New England food stores predicted there may be critical shortages of meat and produce by the weekend.

More optimistic reports came from the South Florida vegetable farmers. Officials said truckers who deliver the crop to northern cities are not honoring the nationwide truck strike but fear of violence and the fuel shortage are making their trips take longer.

However, Florida fruit markets said shipments were at a standstill because of the truckers' action.

The A&P said it was scheduling 89,000 pounds of beef to be flown from Chicago to Boston because it could not find truck transport.

Valley escapes brunt of storm

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The worst winter storm of the season left much of southern Wisconsin paralyzed this morning as men and machines battled gusting winds and 10-foot drifts to tunnel out of more than a foot of new snow.

Traffic was either blocked or moving at snail's pace through much of the state, and dozens of school and business closings were reported.

The storm, which began innocently Monday night with a few light feathery flakes, paused for a few hours early today but was expected to dump at least an additional six inches on southeastern sections of the state.

The Fox Valley area was on the

Spying on Kissinger denied by Moorer

WASHINGTON (AP) —Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, today denied flatly he ever ordered or encouraged any spying on the diplomatic activities of Henry A. Kissinger.

Kissinger also repeated denials that he had anything to do with material taken in an unauthorized manner from the National Security Council in 1971.

Kissinger, now secretary of state, said that to the best of his knowledge none of the documents published that year by columnist Jack Anderson came from Security Council files.

In a statement given the Senate Armed Services Committee, Moorer said: "These insinuations and allegations sicken me as a man, concern me as a military officer and deeply disturb me as the nation's senior uniformed official.

"I gave no orders, issued no instructions, gave no encouragement — either direct or implied — to anyone to collect or retain in any irregular or unauthorized manner any information, papers or documents from the National Security Council."

In a statement prepared for public release after Moorer began his testimony in closed session before the committee the admiral said he never had any need to spy on Kissinger because he has never failed to support national policies and enjoyed a complete and free flow of information between

Hearst granddaughter kidnaped

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) —Police report some progress in the nationwide search for kidnaped newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst. Her father pleaded for word from her abductors.

"We want our daughter back unharmed," Randolph A. Hearst, president and editor of the San Francisco Examiner, said Tuesday.

"If she is released, we will not seek to imprison her abductors. We plead with them to communicate with us direct or through the press."

Miss Hearst, 19-year-old granddaughter of the late William Randolph Hearst, founder of the Hearst newspaper and magazine publishing empire, was kidnaped from her Berkeley apartment Monday night amid a barrage of gunfire.

Her fiancé, Steven A. Weed, was beaten brutally. The young couple were engaged in December and planned to wed in early summer.

Police said there has been no word on

Miss Hearst's whereabouts and no ransom note.

"Some progress is being made, but nothing to lead us to believe it will lead us to an early conclusion," Berkeley Police Lt. Henry C. Sanders said.

John Kelly, assistant special FBI agent in San Francisco, said, "No ransom has been requested as far as we know. The presumption is that they have gone over state lines."

Kelly refused to elaborate.

Authorities scoured the tree-lined neighborhood where Miss Hearst lived about one-quarter mile south of the University of California campus. The wall beside her apartment was marked by bullet holes, and the sliding glass front door was shattered.

Police said a young white woman knocked at the apartment Monday night and Weed, 26, opened the door. The young visitor said she had been in an auto accident and asked to use the telephone. Weed said he refused.

Police said two black men then rushed through the door and beat Weed, mauled a neighbor who ran to help and dragged a screaming Miss Hearst to a nearby stolen car. She was thrown into the trunk of the vehicle.

The car was found abandoned a few blocks away. Police said Peter Benenson, 31, owner of the car, was held briefly by the kidnapers but was released unharmed. Police said they had questioned Benenson, but they refused to disclose any details.

Officers said a public file at Sproul Hall, the administration building at the Cal campus where both Miss Hearst and Weed were students, was found opened to her name, address and telephone number. It was one of 30,000 such cards located in a public lobby.

Weed, who holds a bachelor's degree from Princeton University, is a graduate student in philosophy at Cal; Miss Hearst is a sophomore majoring in history.

Weed, badly bruised in the beating, told authorities the apartment apparently was "cased" Saturday night. He said a man and a woman had appeared at the door asking vague questions about whether the apartment was for rent.

In convoy

Scores of semi-trailer trucks travel Interstate 80 near Des Moines, Iowa, Tuesday in convoy for protection against snipers. Iowa Highway Patrol aircraft and squad cars accompanied the eastbound trucks. Officials said 33 trucks began the trans-Iowa journey but their number had increased to 71 by the time the convoy arrived at the Illinois border. Most of the trucks that began the journey carried meat bound for the east coast. (AP Wirephoto)

Japanese held to insure safety of 4 terrorists

KUWAIT (AP) —Terrorists seized the Japanese Embassy in Kuwait today and threatened to execute diplomatic hostages unless four terrorists holed up in Singapore get safe passage to Kuwait.

The terrorists also demanded that three hostages held by the Singapore group be flown to this Persian Gulf sheikdom where other terrorists found haven without facing trial. The Japanese government, in touch by telephone with the terrorists in Kuwait, agreed to the demands.

Japanese officials said the plane would arrive in Singapore from Tokyo at about 11 a.m. Thursday, Singapore time — 9:30 p.m. EDT Wednesday. The special Japan Air Lines plane was to carry six pilots and a member of the JAL board of directors, Susumi Saito, a JAL spokesman said.

The Singapore terrorists have been holed up in a ferryboat with their hostages for a week after trying unsuccessfully to blow up a Shell oil refinery there.

It was not known how many terrorists seized the embassy in Kuwait.

Foreign Minister Masayoshi Ohira said the terrorists promised not to harm the hostages at the embassy once the Japanese pledged to send the plane. The Foreign Ministry said the captives included the Japanese ambassador, four other Japanese diplomats and another embassy employee.

But a telex message received from the embassy indicated there may be as many as 16 hostages in all, including Japanese businessmen.

"All 16 are in good health," the message said.

An Associated Press newsmen telephoned the embassy, spoke with one of the terrorists, a woman, and then with a man who was apparently the leader of the raiders.

The man, speaking rapidly in Arabic, said the hostages included the ambassador and the first and second secretaries of the embassy.

"All are well, but they will be executed if the Kuwaiti government attempts any interference with our operation," he said.

Kuwaiti troops and policemen surrounded the embassy. The Kuwaiti cabinet met in an emergency session.

The terrorist leader said three guerrilla organization "are jointly responsible" for the Kuwait operation — the Marxist-oriented Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, the Japanese Red Army, and the Organization of the Sons of Palestine.

The terrorist made two demands in the telephone conversation:

— "The Japanese government must send within one hour a plane to Singapore to transport our comrades there to Kuwait along with their hostages and arms."

— "The Kuwaiti government should be wise enough not to interfere. Otherwise we shall start execution operations at the first sign of a Kuwaiti attempt to resort to force against us."

Most controls to be removed

WASHINGTON (AP) —The Nixon administration told Congress today it intends to remove all mandatory wage and price controls after April 30 — except for the health and petroleum sections of the economy.

If Congress agrees, it would mean the bulk of the U.S. economy would be functioning control free for the first time since August of 1971.

Authority for present Phase 4 controls expires April 30.

Cost of Living Council Director John

T. Dunlop, who outlined the administration plans, said consumers could expect some additional increase in prices as a result of lifting of controls.

He said this would result from realignment of some prices that have been held down; the removal of built-in delays on price increases by big companies, and testing of the market by some companies to see how high they can raise prices.

Dunlop implied present controls had outlived their usefulness despite the prospect of continuing inflation.

"Under the economic conditions anticipated in the year ahead," he told the Senate Banking Committee's subcommittee on production and stabilization, "the problems created by a full program of mandatory wage and price controls outweigh the contributions such controls can make to price stability."

Dunlop said the council planned to continue its gradual decontrol of the economy before April 30 and would continue seeking commitments for price restraints and other inflation-reducing actions from industries in exchange for decontrol during this period.

The administration also proposed turning the Cost of Living Council into an umbrella economic agency to watch over inflation and to coordinate economic activities of federal and local government agencies.

Such an agency has been Dunlop's pet project.

Dunlop said the administration wants authority to continue mandatory controls over wages and prices charged in the health industry, including hospital, doctors and dentists, until the government enacts a national health insurance program.

He noted that Congress already has granted separate authority to continue controls over the petroleum industry until February 1975. Those controls are administered by the Federal Energy Office.

Appeals board denies request for setback waiver at Kaukauna

KAUKAUNA — The board of appeals denied the appeal of James Van Deraa, 319 Reaume Ave., for a waiver of the 25 foot setback requirement in the building codes and for encroachment into public right-of-way for the purpose of completing a carport into an enclosed garage attached to his home.

Similar appeal by Van Deraa was denied by the appeals board late in 1973, but he appealed to the board of public works of the City Council and that group said it could see no objection to the encroachment onto public right-of-way because it appeared that property so designated would never be used for right-of-way.

The public works board in effect said it could see no objection to waiving of rules, but said the matter was entirely in the hands of the board of appeals, and all the council group could do would be to make recommendations.

Van Deraa, with this backing, then again appealed the original decision of the board of appeals, but the group stuck to their original decision and refused to reverse the decision of the building inspector who would not grant a building permit in violation of building codes.

What Solutions?" March 12, Robert Rosenberg, Lawrence professor of chemistry; "Israel and the Middle East Conflict: Will Peace ever Prevail?" March 19, Rajai Atalla, a member of the Institute of Paper Chemistry faculty and a native of Jordan; "The People's Republic of China: Toward a New Society?" March 26, Franklin Doeringer, Lawrence assistant professor of history; and "People! People! How Many Can the Earth Support?" April 2, Parker G. Marden, Lawrence associate professor of sociology.

To register or obtain more information, persons may contact Kathy Isaacson at the Lawrence University Library. The registration fee will include the noon luncheon and a 100-page booklet to help provide program participants with a nonpartisan background for each of the eight discussions.

Great Decisions is designed by the Foreign Policy Association, a national, nonpartisan nonprofit organization founded in 1918 and devoted to world affairs education. The Great Decisions program in Wisconsin is sponsored by the Institute of World Affairs of the University of Wisconsin-Extension and UW-Milwaukee in cooperation with local organizations and extension offices throughout the state.

'Stop Thief' forms available

KAUKAUNA — Record keeping forms and warning stickers for the "Stop Thief" program, initiated by the Heart of the Valley Chamber of Commerce, have been delivered to cooperating agencies and the program is ready to go into full swing.

Earlier the chamber distributed electric engraving tools to be used by area citizens in marking valuables. The engraving tools can be used on jewelry, bicycles, tools, and other items of metal or glass. Now when tools or other items are marked, they will be recorded at the Kaukauna police station, which will serve as the central agency for area communities.

Records at the police station will make it possible for items to be easily identified when recovered.

Stickers can be placed on marked items warning potential thieves that the item is readily identifiable. It is suggested that the name and Social Security number be used in marking items.

Marking tools available for use are located at the Kaukauna, Kimberly, Little Chute and Combined Locks police departments, the Sherwood State Bank, Freedom State Bank and Greenleaf Wayside Bank. A unit also is kept at the Chamber of Commerce office.

Police said little use has been made of the units to date, but urged people to take advantage of the opportunity to clearly mark their valuables. It may help deter a would-be thief and will make it easier for police to determine the rightful owner if recovered, they said.

Promises, promises in Nixon's speech

WASHINGTON — Consulting economists, including some who advise President Nixon, were privately appalled at Mr. Nixon's flat assertion Wednesday night that "there will be no recession in The United States of America" in 1974.

Likewise, specialists on Arab oil were aghast over another prediction in the President's State of the Union message: "I can announce tonight...that an urgent (Arab) meeting will be called in the immediate future to discuss the lifting of the oil embargo."

Both glowing forecasts by the beleaguered President reflected the overblown rhetoric which often embarrasses him. Now they threaten Mr. Nixon with widening his credibility gap still further in the immediate future.

Remind one of other backlashes Consider the "no-recession" pledge. It is true that slightly better estimates of economic activity in the first two quarters of 1974, prepared by Nixon administration economists early in January, give some reason to believe that those two quarters will not show "zero growth"—the classic definition of a recession. But Mr. Nixon's unnecessary prediction reminded leading economists of similar frothy official forecasts over the past five years that backlashed on the President and helped shape his huge credibility gap.

One such economist, the eminent Dr. Alan Greenspan, recalled his astonishment when the President estimated the gross national product for 1971 at $1,065 billion—a prediction immediately challenged by leading economic consultants including Greenspan. The actual output was $10 billion lower.

The economists' view of the President's new "no recession" forecast is that the volatility of the world economic situation, coupled with confusion over Arab oil, makes any such forecast ridiculous and dangerous. If there is indeed no recession, he would get the credit without any forecast. But if there is a recession, Mr. Nixon will get hit two ways: he will inherit the blame and his credibility will decline still more.

As for the hint that the oil boycott is about to end, the fact that Arab oil states will meet on Feb. 14 was known well before Mr. Nixon's speech. But both Mideast diplomats and independent oil experts here see no chance for any significant change until Mr. Nixon says something on the issue of Jerusalem — the preeminent Arab-Israeli issue in the important view of Saudi Arabia's King Faisal, kingpin in the Arab oil boycott.

Getting Barry's goat One reason for Sen. Barry Goldwater's abrupt shift from dispassionate critic of President Nixon to partisan defender was a political fund-raising ploy by Democratic national chairman Robert S. Strauss.

Seeking to take advantage of the anti-Nixon sentiment following the Saturday night massacre last Oct. 20, Strauss in early November sent out a fund-raising appeal to some 150,000 Democratic contributors. In the first paragraph of a three-page attack on Mr. Nixon, the Strauss letter quoted Republican elder statesman Goldwater as saying the President's credibility "has reached an all-time low from which he may never be able to recover."

Shown the letter a few weeks later, Goldwater exploded. He felt his remarks, intended in a nonpartisan vein, were being exploited by the Democrats for partisan ends. Consequently, when Goldwater appeared on NBC's "Meet the Press" Jan. 13, he defended Mr. Nixon with unaccustomed gusto—much to the delight of the White House and the chagrin of the pro-impeachment bloc in Congress.

Strauss is aware of Goldwater's reaction but undismayed, considering the success of the fund-raising appeal. He plans a new appeal containing anti-Nixon remarks from another famous Republican: Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, former chairman of the Republican National Committee.

Jerry Ford to Henry Kissinger

The telephone talk about last month's Israeli-Egyptian agreement between Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and Vice President Gerald Ford was not a Kissinger move to butter up Ford, as widely reported. Actually, the call was placed from the City-County Building in Grand Rapids, Mich., where Ford was shaking hands of voters, to Kissinger in Jerusalem. What's more, Ford placed it because of a mixup.

Kissinger had ordered his National Security Council staff to inform Ford and other officials that agreement was imminent. But the message Ford got in Grand Rapids was that "Henry Kissinger called." Ford immediately telephoned the White House and was channelled by top-secret communications directly to Kissinger in Israel.

Police & fire beat

Appleton police are looking for two young men, who reportedly were bothering young girls on the city's north side Monday.

An 8-year-old girl told police she was walking home from school about 3:30 p.m. when the two approached in a car at Morrison and Frances streets. One of the two got out of the vehicle and asked her if she wanted a ride, and when she refused, he said to the driver, "Let's go get her."

The passenger then ran after her for about one-third block, but she made it home safely.

Police said two older girls were yelled at by the same boys on Morrison near Erb Park, although they were not approached by the two, who may have been of high school age.

FREEDOM — Two persons were taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital for treatment of injuries they received in a single-car crash on Outagamie County Trunk S, one-half mile west of State 55 about 8:30 a.m. Monday.

Injured were the driver, Randy J. Dombrowski, 17, route 1, Seymour, with face cuts, and Betty E. Dombrowski, 41, same address, with shoulder, rib and back pains.

Police said Dombrowski was driving west on S when the vehicle went out of control on the icy road and overturned in a ditch. The car landed upright.

Aspin ignores freshman rule

WASHINGTON (AP) —Rep. Les Aspin doesn't follow the advice customarily given new House members by the late Speaker Sam Rayburn: "To get along, go along."

"I think maybe he was right for his time," says the rotund, prematurely balding Wisconsin Democrat. But I don't see it anymore. People don't want their congressman to just sit around for 15 years before he talks."

The 34-year-old Aspin does plenty of talking —mostly through press releases. By not going along with powerful House elders, with the Pentagon, with colleagues' special interests, Aspin has received more notice than any other junior member of the House.

Nearly every day a pile of press releases is sent from Aspin's office. Most attack the military or the oil industry. Many end up as front page stories or network news reports.

"I've made some very powerful people in Congress very angry," Aspin said in an interview. But, he said, so far he has not suffered from their anger.

"I guess it's because I really don't want anything from them," he said. "I'm on the committee I wanted to be on — the Armed Services Committee — and I don't want to change. So there really isn't anything I wanted to get."

Aspin had good preparation for his chosen role as Pentagon tormentor. He worked on the staff of Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., served as staff assistant to Walter Heller when Heller was chairman of President Kennedy's Council of Economic Advisers and was a weapons system analyst in the Pentagon under Robert McNamara.

Since being elected to Congress in 1970, he helped push through an amendment in the House to cut $1 billion from the military authorization bill.

He participated in exposing a United Service Organization (USO) scandal in Vietnam and massive cost overruns in Litton Industries' naval shipbuilding program.

In addition, he helped lead the fight to block the practice of allowing private members' bills, some containing some tax loopholes for specific private companies, to be passed without debate.

Aspin's feints against the military at first were largely ignored by the Armed Services Committee chairman, Rep. F. Edward Hebert, D-La. Then Aspin attacked one of Hebert's pet projects, saying the program to develop the surface effect ships, which would speed across the water on a cushion of air, was experiencing "serious technical difficulties."

Hebert quickly countered with his own press release, stating that "Aspin has provided no documentation."

Hebert called Aspin one of the "critics of defense programs who obtain publicity by being negative and offer no constructive criticism."

But Aspin continues to obtain publicity by being negative.

"I represent my constituents on the committee," says Aspin, whose district contains no major military installations. "Most of the people on the committee are representing producer constituents involved in the production of weapons systems."

A number of Aspin's colleagues are privately critical of his tactics, seeing him as a headline hunter who often misses committee hearings.

But he maintains that publicity tactics are the only ones available to a junior congressman who wants to accomplish something.

In many cases, he says, attending hearings is a waste of time. A committee member with as little seniority as he has might wait for hours to ask a few questions, he explains.

Aspin began attacking the oil industry before the current energy crisis. "In various parts of the government that I worked in, I used to see the power of the oil companies," he explained. "They're the most powerful group in Washington that I've ever been up against. Oil is one of the things I'm against."

Aspin was President Lyndon B. Johnson's Wisconsin campaign manager in 1968 before Johnson decided not to run for re-election. But he admits it would have been impossible to fight big oil under Johnson.

Johnson, he said, "was tied to the oil companies by his region, by his service in Congress and by his presidency. Dick Nixon is tied to them by money and by, I think, a kind of general corporate ambience."

Aspin made a splash in the news media recently by compiling figures to show that officers and major stockholders of oil companies contributed a total of almost $5 million to Nixon's re-election campaign.

The energetic Aspin is suspected by many of having ambitions higher than the House.

Asked if he wants to stay in the House, he replied: "So far, sure. I'd love to be chairman of the Armed Services Committee. I'm sure that all of the system is going to change. I am much younger than the people on the committee who are senior to me."

Venue change hearing slated

OSHKOSH — A hearing on a motion for a change of venue for Roy Holland has been scheduled for 9:30 a.m. Feb. 19 in Winnebago county circuit court branch 1.

The 32-year-old Oshkosh man is charged with aiding and abetting first degree murder and sexual perversion in connection with the Jan. 9th beating of two UWOC coeds, one of whom has since died. Holland's codefendant is Thomas Hoppe, 29, also of Oshkosh, who is being charged with first degree murder.

Wayne Chaney, Holland's court-appointed attorney, signed an affidavit Jan. 17 asking for the change of venue hearing. However, he never scheduled an appointment with Judge William E. Cane's court for the hearing on the motion, so crane set up the date.

In the affidavit, filed Jan. 23, Chaney charged that publicity of the incident and court proceedings has caused citizens in this district, including prospective jurors, to be biased and prejudiced against Holland.

Previously, it was thought that a hearing on a change of venue for Hoppe would take place at the same time as

Police & fire

Two boys received minor facial injuries when the pickup truck in which they were riding struck another truck on the drive leading into the Town of Grand Chute dump about 10:40 a.m. Saturday.

Injured were Terry and Ted DuFrane, ages 8 and 3, riding in the truck driven by their father, Roger, 33, route 2, Appleton.

Police said DuFrane was rounding a curve and struck the second truck, stopped in the southbound lane and driven for Consolidated Construction Co. by Jeffrey M. Kotke, 18, 3127 N. Morrison St.

KAUKAUNA — Three persons suffered minor injuries and bruises to the head and legs, when cars collided on Wisconsin Avenue about 1:55 p.m. Friday.

Injured were Janet Lasko, 31, 612 Black St., one of the drivers, and Penny Klika, 15, 216 S. Badger Ave., Appleton, and Mathilda Fryfogle, 60, 2129 N. Oneida St., Appleton, passengers in the other car being driven by Laurie Klika, 33, 216 S. Badger Ave., Appleton.

According to police, a driver backing from a parking stall forced the Lasko vehicle from her lane of traffic into the oncoming Klika auto.

LITTLE CHUTE — Mrs. Donald Robinson, 42, and daughter, Tracy, 2, route 4, Kaukauna, suffered a lost tooth and cut cheek respectively when a car driven by Donald Robinson, 44, attempted to make a right turn into the driveway at his home about 11:25 a.m. Sunday and was struck in the passenger side by a car driven by David Verhagen, 24, of 1111 Augustine St., Kaukauna.

Both cars were westbound on E. Main Street at the time of the accident. Robinson was turning from the left hand lane and Verhagen was driving in the right hand lane. The injured were taken to Kaukauna Community Hospital by a neighbor.

CENTER — Timothy M. Dontje, 12, route 2, Shiocton, was taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital for treatment of a broken ankle after his snowmobile collided with a car driven by Rose M. Timm, 43, route 1, Hortonville, at State 47 and Outagamie County Trunk S about 10:15 a.m. Monday.

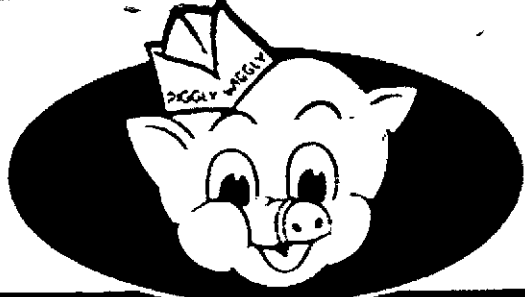

Police said the car was eastbound on S when the snowmobile crossed north into its path.

NEW LONDON — Thefts totaling $1,360 were reported during the past several weeks at radio station WLH.

Police said the missing items include three speakers, a police scanner, a tape recorder and a stereo tape recorder.

that for Holland. However, since Hoppe's motion for a substitution of judge, filed last Thursday night, it is doubtful if both appeals could be heard at once.

West readies 'Oklahoma'

There's always an atmosphere of excitement when Rodgers and Hammerstein's great musical, "Oklahoma," is staged. Such will be the case this weekend when Appleton High School-West presents the 30-year-old (is it possible?) classic. The theater group at West has been working hard for a couple of months preparing for the three performances — at 7:33 p.m. Friday and Saturday and a family matinee at 2:03 p.m. Sunday. If you plan to take in this fun-filled show, please note the unusual curtain times. They have been set at odd minutes to emphasize that each production will begin promptly. It always is a little irritating to patrons when the scheduled curtain is 10 minutes late. It won't happen at West, so be on time. One of the nicest aspects of "Oklahoma" from the community or high school theater standpoint is the number of people it requires. A large group is involved, so the thrill of being on stage can be shared by more students. The major roles in "Oklahoma" appear to be in good hands. Brian Sexton will play Curley, the ardent and optimistic cowboy who promises his sweetheart to take her to a barn dance in "The Surrey with the Fringe on Top." That sweetheart, Laurie, will be portrayed by Ruth Spangenberg, who "warns" him not to be too nice to her or "People Will Say We're in Love." The colorful role of Ado Annie, the girl who "can't say no," will be in the hands of Julie Haugner, and her boyfriend who reports that "Everything's Up to Date in Kansas City" will be played by Dan Egan. Dave Miotke will be seen as the comically slippery Persian peddler, Ali Hakim, and Tom Landusky will portray Jud, the menacing hired hand. Gail Hando will be Aunt Eller, the heroine's wise aunt. Mary Martin is Gertie and Dean Javes is Andrew Carnes. Singers and dancers will be played by Paul Blair, Doug Boushley, Jill Case, Carla Cotton, Sarah Dafeo, Ted DeGroot, Tara Felner, Bruce Flunker, Tom Forester, Leslie Freeby, Marshall Hembree, Chris Hoffman, Dan Jackson, Jeni Jahnke, Kyle Kersten, Connie Laux, Laura Luedeke, Sharon Locklin, Randy Moreau, Mike Melby, Fred Panzer, Jon Pahl, Rod Reynolds, Sue Richardson, Debbie Schroeder, Paul Schreiner, Tracy Smith, Joan Vanderheiden, Robbi VanderHyden, Julie Vosper, Carol Warne, Melaney Wheeler and Linda Zwack. The production crew, headed by director Roger Danielson, is excellent. Arvid Kramer will be musical director, Kermit Heckert the scene designer, Marcia Geurts the choreographer and Gordon Case the costume designer. Don't miss this American musical classic.

West has cowboys

Raisin-Molasses Batter Bread is a yeast bread that takes to a double rising, but is so uncomplicated a recipe that a newcomer to yeast bread baking can make it. Old hands at bread making also will like this one with its pleasant tang of orange peel.

Let's Bake Bread

Lillian Mackesy

POST-CRESCENT FOOD EDITOR

There's something great in baking your own breads, especially in wintry weather when the baking fragrances of home-made bread in the oven permeates the house to bring welcome exclamations from all the family as each one returns from work or school. For the homemaker, it seems to be a wonderful way to beat, stir or knead out all the frustrations of her day and come out in the form of a magnificent quick loaf of bread or a toasty browned yeast loaf.

Pinwheel Onion Rolls

2 cups sliced sweet Spanish onions
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon caraway seeds
2 cups biscuit mix
1/4 teaspoon cayenne pepper
1/2 cup cold water
1 egg, beaten
1/3 cup evaporated milk
1/4 teaspoon salt

Peel onions and slice thinly; separate slices into rings; saute in butter until transparent; season with 1/2 teaspoon salt and caraway seeds; let cool. Combine biscuit mix and cayenne; add water and blend with fork. Turn out onto lightly floured board; knead a few times. Roll into 12 x 8-inch rectangle. Spread with sauteed onions; roll up as for jelly roll. Cut into 12, one-inch slices; place cut side down in greased oblong baking pan. Combine beaten egg, milk and 1/4 teaspoon salt; drizzle mixture over biscuits. Bake in preheated, 400-degree oven 25 minutes or until golden. Recipe makes 8 pinwheel biscuits.

Onion-Cheese Bread

1 cup chopped sweet Spanish onion
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 cup grated sharp cheddar cheese
1 egg, slightly beaten
1/2 cup milk
1-3/4 cups biscuit mix
1 tablespoon poppy seeds
2 tablespoons melted butter

Saute onion in 2 tablespoons butter; let cool. Blend with grated cheese. Combine egg and milk with biscuit mix. Add half onion-cheese mixture. Spread this dough in greased, 8-inch round or square baking dish; top with remaining onion-cheese mixture. Sprinkle with poppy seeds; drizzle with melted butter. Bake in preheated, 400-degree oven from 20 to 25 minutes. Serve hot with butter.

Onion Biscuits

Spanish onions to 2 cups biscuit mix.
Shape and bake as directed on biscuit mix package.

Raisin-Molasses Batter Bread

1/2 cup milk
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 tablespoon grated fresh orange rind
2 teaspoons salt
1/4 cup light molasses
1 pkg. active dry yeast
3/4 cup warm water
1 egg
3-1/2 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
1/2 cup raisins

In small saucepan, heat milk, butter, orange rind and salt; heat only to boiling point (scalding). Remove from heat; add molasses, then cool to lukewarm. In a warm mixing bowl, dissolve yeast in warm water (105 to 115 degrees Fahrenheit). Add milk—molasses mixture, egg and 2 cups of flour. Blend at low speed of electric mixer, then beat at medium speed for 2 minutes. Add remaining flour and raisins; beat 1 minute. Batter should be soft. Cover and let rise in warm place until doubled in bulk, about 45 minutes. Stir down. Turn into well greased loaf pan. Cover and let rise in warm place for a second time, until doubled in bulk. The top should be level with pan. Bake in preheated, 375-degree oven 45 minutes, or until done. Remove bread from pan immediately and cool on wire rack.

Molasses-Date Batter Bread

1/2 cup milk
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 teaspoons salt
1/4 cup light molasses
1 pkg. active dry yeast
3/4 cup warm water
1 egg
2 cups unsifted whole wheat flour
1-1/2 teaspoons cinnamon

These unusual muffins have both bits of ham and grated cheese baked in them to make a perfect team with a hearty soup for a delicious yet economical supper that's bursting with good nutrition.

1-1/2 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
3/4 cup diced dates

Heat milk, butter and salt to scalding (just to boiling) in small saucepan. Remove from heat; add molasses, then cool to lukewarm. In warm mixing bowl, dissolve yeast in warm water (105 to 115 degrees Fahrenheit). Add milk-molasses mixture, egg, whole wheat flour and cinnamon. Blend at low speed of electric mixer; beat at medium speed for 2 minutes. Stir into batter the all-purpose flour and diced dates, mixing well. Cover and let rise in warm place until doubled in bulk, about 50 minutes. Stir down. Turn batter into well-greased loaf pan. Cover and let rise again in warm place until dough level with top of pan, about 45 minutes. Bake in preheated, 375-degree oven until done, about 45 minutes. Remove from pan immediately and cool on wire rack.

Ham and Cheese Muffins

2 cups self-rising flour
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1 cup milk
1/2 cup mayonnaise

1/2 cup finely chopped ham
1/2 cup shredded cheddar cheese
Stir together self-rising flour and baking soda. (If ordinary flour used, add salt and baking powder to it.) In separate bowl, combine milk, mayonnaise, ham and cheese. Add all at once to flour mixture, stirring only until flour is moistened. Fill well-greased muffin cups two-thirds full. Bake in preheated, 425-degree oven 20 to 25 minutes. Allow to remain in muffin cups about 5 minutes for easier removal.

Child found after year

MODESTO, Calif. (AP) —“I saw a lot of grown men cry,” Chief Sheriff’s Deputy Lynn Wood said of a Modesto couple’s emotional reunion with their little boy. The boy was discovered safe a year after he was kidnaped.

A tip from a woman who read a newspaper story on the first anniversary of the kidnaping led sheriff’s deputies Tuesday to the house five miles from his own home where Tommy Lauver had been kept since his abduction Jan. 20, 1973.

After footprint checks established the boy’s identity, he was reunited at the sheriff’s office with his parents, Thomas and Frances Lauver.

“Oh honey, don’t cry,” said Mrs. Lauver, 23, as she cuddled her son, and both broke into tears. “It’s the same cry!” she exclaimed to misty-eyed deputies.

Tommy, who will be 2 years old Feb. 20, at first wouldn’t go to his father. But he then repeatedly kissed both parents.

“It’s one of the happiest days I’ve had in this business,” said Wood, who had coordinated an investigation that was fruitless until now. “It’s kind of nice to report good news once in a while.”

A Modesto Bee article on the Lauvers’ fear of never again seeing their son sparked the break in the case. A woman who read the article told deputies Monday night that her neighbors, Robert William and Marjorie Coffey, had a toddler who was almost never seen outside.

Officers took custody of the boy, who had been renamed Shawn Keith Coffey, after an investigation showed his footprints bore 26 similarities to those of Tommy Lauver.

Coffey, 30, and his wife, 31, were booked on kidnaping charges.

The boy, his dark brown hair dyed blond, appeared well except for swollen big toes and bruises around his ankles where they may have been bound, Wood said.

Leads had been scant since a man forced his way into Mrs. Lauver’s car at a shopping center and stole Tommy at knife-point. Wood said some officers and Mrs. Lauver clung to the hope the boy had been abducted for a family that couldn’t have a child or get one through regular adoption agencies.

Coffey told police his wife was upset over her inability to bear a child. The couple has two adopted children.

“I guess if you work hard enough, long enough, it pays off,” Wood said.

after he refused the young woman the use of the apartment telephone Monday night, Weed told police:

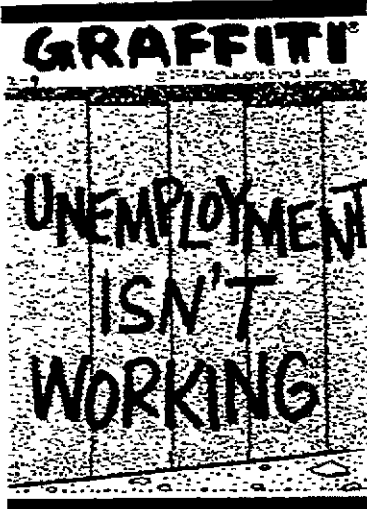

“That is when two black men —armed with rifles, maybe shotguns —burst in the door. In seconds they had me face down on the floor in the hallway. They kept kicking me in the face and forcing me to keep my face down.”

He said they “acted like commandos —very quick, very smooth.”

Miss Hearst is one of five daughters of Randolph Hearst and is the niece of William Randolph Hearst Jr., editor-in-chief of the Hearst newspapers.

After the kidnaping, the Hearst family went into seclusion in its suburban home at Hillsborough, 20 miles south of San Francisco, under police protection. Members of the Hearst family in other cities also were placed under police protection.

The Hearst newspapers include the San Francisco Examiner, the Los Angeles Herald-Examiner, the Baltimore News American, the Boston Herald American and Herald Advertiser, the Albany (N.Y.) Hussein called home by mutiny

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) —Mutiny by a unit of the Jordanian army forced King Hussein to postpone a trip to the United States and return home early, travelers arriving in Beirut reported today.

The king flew to Amman Tuesday night from London, where he had been on a private visit. He had been scheduled to go on Washington.

The travelers said foreign newsmen in the Jordanian capital had been prohibited from sending reports about the mutiny.

They said the mutineers demonstrated against various Jordanian officials, accusing some of corruption, but repeatedly expressed their loyalty to the king.

The independent Beirut newspaper An Nahar carried a denial of the mutiny report. The denial was attributed to Premier Zaid Rifai of Jordan. But the travelers said the mutiny occurred in the garrison town of Zerqa, 15 miles northeast of Amman, and was led by units of the 40th Armored Brigade, Jordan’s elite tank unit.

Hussein had been scheduled to arrive in Washington on Friday. Officials in the American capital said Monday that he was expected to postpone his trip for a week or two because Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger was going to be busy this weekend preparing for the international energy conference President Nixon is holding Feb. 11.

The travelers attributed the mutiny to discontent resulting from soaring inflation and a living allowance that the troops consider inadequate.

The sources gave this account of the mutiny:

Junior officers, noncommissioned officers and privates of the 40th Brigade in trucks and armored personnel carriers tried Sunday morning to enter Zerqa from their camp north of the town. Military police halted them, and a confrontation developed.

Crown Prince Hassan, acting as regent while Hussein was on a private visit to London, and the army commander, Field Marshal Habis Majali, rushed to Zerqa to meet with the mutineers.

The men refused to talk with the prince and the field marshal and waved them off. But at the same time they shouted demands that the army chief of staff, Lt. Gen. Sherif Zaid bin Shaker, be replaced by Sherif Nasser bin Jamil. Bin Shaker is a cousin of the king, and Bin Jamil is the king’s maternal uncle.

Late Sunday, the troops returned to their camp, and an emergency meeting was called at army headquarters. Bin Shaker, who was with Hussein in London, flew back in a special plane Sunday night.

On Monday, the mutinous troops returned to Zerqa, and men from other units joined them. The mutineers increased their demands, calling for the dismissal of Premier Rifai and Court Minister Bahjat Talhouni, Rifai’s father-in-law. They accused them and Bin Shaker of corruption.

Last November, all civil servants were given a cost of living allowance equivalent to 10 per cent of their pay. The armed forces expected the same thing, but their allowance was not approved until January. Then it was set at $3.10 a month for privates and $15.50 to $31 for officers, far less than 10 per cent of their pay.

Tests ahead for spacemen

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Skylab 3’s astronauts will end their mission experiments with medical tests on their bodies.

Then it will be all downhill for Gerald P. Carr, William R. Pogue and Edward G. Gibson as they head for a return to earth Friday after a record 84 days in orbit.

They began packing 1,718 pounds of film, tape and biological samples Monday and will conclude that work Thursday.

The astronauts will cast off from the space station early Friday and guide their Apollo ferry ship to a splashdown in the Pacific Ocean. Landing is scheduled for 11:17 a.m. EDT 175 miles southwest of San Diego, Calif.

Mrs. Alioto vanished to punish busy husband

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Angelina Alioto says she felt neglected by her candidate-husband, Mayor Joseph L. Alioto, so she took off alone on an 18day religious pilgrimage to punish him.

“I think my family needed a little punishment,” the petite 58-year-old grandmother told newsmen at her Presidio Heights home Tuesday after being reunited with the mayor.

Mrs. Alioto, her blonde hair piled high, said she became jealous of the mayor’s lack of attention during an Italian-American golf tournament dinner honoring Alioto in Palm Springs Jan. 18. She attended the dinner with her son, Lawrence, and his wife, Ann.

“We felt we were stepchildren that night. We were completely ignored. I thought we were an asset. He was trying to hide us,” she said.

“Then he left that evening and came back to San Francisco and left me with my son and daughter-in-law, who were supposed to be on their second honeymoon.

“He should have made me come back with him or stayed with me. So it was pure jealousy. It left me with anguish and in my anguish I decided to take off.”

She said she left La Siesta Villas, an exclusive $100-a-day hotel, and spent the next 18 days visiting 14 California missions from San Diego to Santa Cruz. After she heard a radio report Monday that she had disappeared, she phoned Alioto.

In a question-and-answer session, Mrs. Alioto described the problems of a political marriage: being at home alone “sometimes 25 or 27 nights out of a month,” never being asked about major decisions in your husband’s career and not being told the whole truth.

“Then he left that evening and came

Judges disbar Dean

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — John W. Dean III, President Nixon’s official lawyer for nearly three years lost his license to practice law today because of unethical, unprofessional and unwarranted conduct in the Watergate cover-up.

A three-man panel of Virginia state Circuit Court judges deliberated one hour and 20 minutes before disbarring Dean.

The 35-year-old former counsel to the President who later became his chief accuser, did not testify at the hearing.

Dean’s lawyers had asked that the court only suspend him temporarily until “the last chapter is written” in the Watergate case. The judges’ could have reprimanded or suspended Dean instead of disbarring him.

The only evidence introduced to the court was Dean’s testimony last year before the Senate Watergate committee and his guilty plea to a federal charge of conspiring to obstruct justice and defraud the United States by participating in the cover-up of the Watergate scandal.

The plea convicts Dean of a felony, which is grounds for disbarment.

Bicentennial Project success for GFWC

According to Mrs. Kermit V. Haugan, president of General Federation of Women's Clubs (GFWC), every State

Federation of Women's Clubs throughout America is taking part in the official Bicentennial Commemorative Plate Project.

"Clubwomen from nearly every club in the nation are enthusiastically participating in this exciting project which instills pride in our country and rekindles the wondrous 'Spirit of 76,'" said Mrs. Haugan.

The second plate in the series was issued Jan. 1, 1974. This plate, with patriotic inscription, depicts Benjamin Franklin, John Adams and Thomas Jefferson in a classic pose as they meet to finalize their draft of the Declaration of Independence.

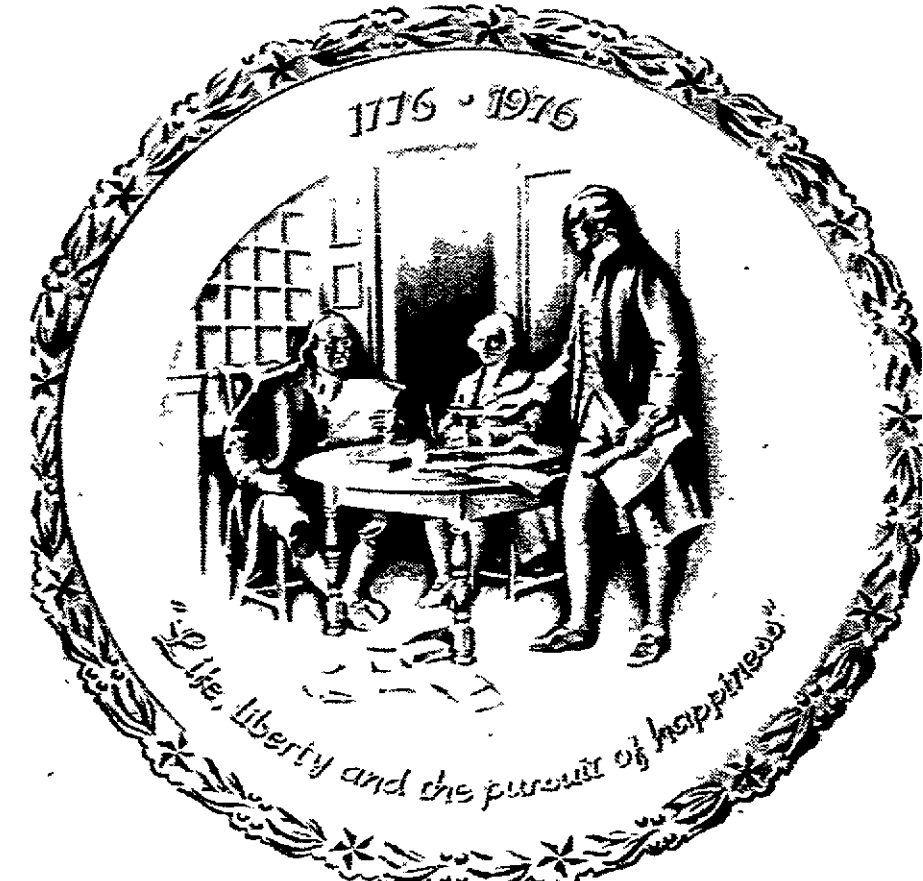

The first plate, issued in 1973, featured Patrick Henry addressing the Virginia Convention with his ultimate challenge, "Give me Liberty or give me death." George Washington praying at Valley Forge will be featured on the third plate to be out in 1975 and the Liberty Bell in Philadelphia will be the fourth issue in 1976.

The handmade plates are being produced by the Fenton Art Glass Co., Williamstown, W.V.

On July 4, 1976, clubwomen will gather at Independence Hall for a final ceremony when the molds of the plates will be publicly destroyed, thereby creating a limited edition.

"This means," said Mrs. Haugan, "that not only will these plates become treasured heirlooms of great personal value, but also they are destined to greatly increase in market value."

"The second commemorative plate," she continued, "will be available through local women's clubs all over the nation by the first of February. The opportunity for them to participate in this patriotic project, pleases me greatly, for the project not only commemorates the principles on which our proud nation was founded, but at the same time allows individual clubs, State Federations, and the General Federation to all earn funds for our many worthwhile endeavors."

Second issue

Opening lead — ♦ J

The hand began badly for declarer. West led the jack of diamonds, and East took two diamond tricks. East then returned a trump, and the finesse lost to West's king. Now South needed the rest of the tricks.

South drew trumps and led the eight of hearts to dummy's nine. The next step was to lead a low spade from dummy and finesse with the jack from the south hand. So far, so good.

Then South led out the ace of spades. East casually dropped the queen of spades on this trick.

COULDN'T HURT

This play couldn't hurt East. South already knew that East had the queen of spades, since the finesse of the jack of spades had worked. The queen and the ten of spades were equal in value after the play of the jack. If East dropped the queen, he told South nothing; if he dropped the ten, he would give South additional information.

Mind you South wasn't born yesterday. He knew that East might hold the ten of spades even though he had dropped the queen. But South didn't know. When the hand was actually played South finessed with dummy's nine of spades, losing to the ten.

South might have guessed right, but he had a chance to guess wrong. If East had dropped the ten of spades instead of the queen, South would have had no chance at all to go wrong.

Handle your own dental emergency

NEW YORK—In a dental emergency, you can make a temporary filling to relieve the pain of a badly decayed tooth or replace a lost filling.

Mix several drops of oil of cloves and a small pile of zinc oxide (available without prescription at any drugstore) until a thick paste is formed, states excerpts from "Everybody's Tooth Book" in February's Family Health magazine.

Roll it into a ball. Then dry the cavity with cotton pellets, dab a small amount of dry powder on your finger and put the ball into the cavity. Pack it into the tooth with your fingertip and finish the job with a wet Q-Tip. In about 15 minutes it will set into a hard temporary filling. But see a dentist soon to have the filling replaced, advised the magazine.

Ann Landers

Look for a skinny therapist

Dear Ann Landers: You frequently advise people who are drastically overweight to try Weight Watchers or Tops. If they fail there, you tell them they are stuffing themselves as compensation for other pleasures they are not getting. Then you say, "Seek professional help." Well, I took your advice and sought professional help. The psychiatrist spent five sessions telling me why I overate. (I already knew why and I didn't relish spending that kind of money to hear it from him.) Then I met his wife. She weighed more than I did. I never went back. The second psychiatrist was recommended by my obstetrician. When I met him I couldn't believe my eyes. He weighed at least 300 lbs. He had the fattest hands I ever saw and ate jelly beans all through the session. I didn't even want to discuss weight with him. I said I was a lesbian and would call him for another appointment if I decided to continue. Of course I never did. How can a psychiatrist expect his patients to have faith in him when he can't help his own wife—or himself? —Teed Off

Dear Teed: Don't try to evaluate the competence of a psychiatrist by sizing up his wife (or his children) or even the man himself. The only thing that matters is how you get along with him. Of course, if you are turned off at the outset your chances of establishing a good relationship are poor, no matter what the reason. So, my advice to you is to look up a skinny therapist with an emaciated wife and good luck to you.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a divorced woman with two children. I've been dating Stan for six months. He seems to have all the qualities I am looking for in a second husband. Although we've discussed marriage, no commitments have been made on either side.

Last week Stan said he couldn't take me to a party because he had to take his ex-wife to dinner. It was their "anniversary." This has been a tradition, he explained, since their divorce five years ago. I asked if he intended to honor that after he remarried and he said, "Of course. She is the mother of my children."

What do you think about this?—Confused

Dear C.: I think you'd better forget that bird. One of the qualities a woman should be looking for in a husband who has been divorced, is that he have no emotional ties to his former wife. An agreement to be together on their child's birthday or graduation or wedding would be another story, but a dinner to celebrate the anniversary of a marriage that didn't make it??? No way, honey.

Dear Ann Landers: If you print this letter maybe some inconsiderate, selfish idiot will see the light.

When you accidentally run over a cat or a dog, please have the decency to stop and see if there is a chance the animal can be rushed to a veterinarian and saved. If it's too late for a vet, check with the neighbors on that street and find out whose pet it was so you can inform the people.

If you come upon a dead pet in the street or road, please stop and remove it before the children see it. That twisted, mangled form of the little pet they loved so much could cause nightmares for years. Thank you.—One Who Cares

Dear One: Here's your letter. But it's not for the "inconsiderate, selfish idiots." They couldn't care less. It's for people who love animals and need to be reminded.

Bikes rated most hazardous product

Bicycles and bike equipment, such as baskets, horns, non-standard seats and handbrakes, top the list of hazardous consumer products compiled by the National Electronic Injury Surveillance System for the Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC). Data was based on injuries treated in hospital emergency rooms. The CPSC is presently evaluating comments on proposed bicycle safety standards. Heading the list of hazardous products in order following bikes are: stairs, ramps and landings; non-glass tables, with sharp edges causing injuries; beds, with most injuries including falls from or against the bed or fabric ignition of box springs; football, mostly involving the adequacy of protective equipment; swings, slides, seesaws and climbing apparatus; liquid fuels, kindling or illuminating fuels; architectural glass, including doors, tub and shower enclosures and windows.

Homemakers are urged to cook low-fat meals

NEW YORK — It's an old saying that the way to a man's heart is through his stomach. But before you serve that gooey, high-fat dessert to the man in your life, remember more may be at stake than his affection.

That's the advice of an insurance company which points out that numerous studies link high levels of cholesterol in the blood to coronary heart disease. To help avoid this condition, the insurance company urges homemakers to consider a year-round valentine for their families — meals low in cholesterol and saturated fat.

The nutritionwise housewife will, the company suggests, substitute liquid vegetable oil margarine for butter, use skim or low-fat milk, reduce the number of eggs in the family diet and trim the fat from meat before cooking. Whipped cream and cream substitutes, as well as commercial baked goods which are high in saturated fat, should be used sparingly.

Heart disease, the firm reminds, is the nation's number one killer. And while low-fat diets cannot be guaranteed to prevent heart attacks, more and more medical authorities are concluding that such eating patterns can help.

A low-fat food plan is a proper safeguard for the whole family, these doctors say. Often cited is a study conducted during the Korean War which revealed that young soldiers on whom autopsies were done were already suffering from arteriosclerosis — accumulations of fat deposits that clog the arteries and can lead to heart attacks. Mothers are urged to introduce children to proper nutrition at an early age.

The company cautions, too, against overweight. Excess poundage puts undue strain on the body, and overweight people seem to be more susceptible to heart and circulatory diseases, as well as other ailments.

Regular — daily, if possible — exercise, is essential to keep hearts fit. To be effective, such exercise should temporarily make the heart beat a little faster and give the lungs a moderate workout, too. But overexertion, even in the form of too-strenuous exercise, should be avoided.

Finally, the company cautions that, before undertaking an exercise program, a thorough health examination, including electrocardiogram, is recommended, especially for people over 40.

Other factors that increase risk of heart attack include high blood pressure, cigarette smoking and excessive tension.

Love is...

... listening — really listening to each other.

Child-proof safetycaps to be required

All packages of prescription drugs for human consumption in oral dosage forms with the sole exception of nitroglycerin will be required to have child-proof safety caps by April, 1974, the Federal Drug Administration has announced. Nitroglycerin has been excluded from the provision "because of the need of certain individuals to obtain a rapid access to the drug for the management of angina pectoris in times of stress." Recognizing the difficulty which opening a child-proof package may present to elderly or handicapped persons, the agency will allow these substances to be dispensed in non-complying packages when so ordered by the prescribing doctor or when requested by the purchaser.

Skillet Dinner in Economy Class

Budget Special

Tuna-Vegetable Skillet dinner qualifies as a budget dish because it's nutritious with basic, everyday ingredients. The use of an electric skillet or frypan even helps conserve energy.

Money can be saved in several ways when preparing a menu by making homemade (from scratch) skillet dinners in an electric frypan. The trick is to make appliances work for you with ordinary ingredients, including the budget stretchers such as rice and foods readily available.

The Tuna-Vegetable Skillet Dinner is one of these, which saves on the food budget because of its ingredients, saves on fuel by making it with an electric skillet or similar electrical appliance, and saves on energy with a frypan that has a no-stick Teflon interior. The meal-in-one-pan is made with ease and has taste appeal as well because of its fresh vegetables, canned tomatoes, seasonings and those delicious budget stretchers tuna and rice.

TUNA-VEGETABLE SKILLET DINNER

4 stalks celery, sliced diagonally
1 tablespoon chopped onion
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2-1/2 cups water
3/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon basil
1/4 teaspoon oregano
1 pound can tomatoes, reserve liquid
1 cup raw rice
2 cans (6-1/2 oz. each) tuna, drained

Combine in electric skillet, sliced celery, chopped onion, butter, water, salt, basil, oregano and reserved tomato liquid. Bring to boil at 225 degrees. Add rice; bring to second boil. Reduce to simmer; cook, covered, for 30 minutes, or until rice is fluffy. Add tomatoes and tuna. Heat, covered, to serving temperature. Reduce heat to warm for serving. Recipe makes about 6 servings.

Note: Fresh tomatoes may be substituted for canned, if desired. Use 1/2 cup tomato juice for liquid if fresh tomatoes used. The dish may be seasoned with soy sauce, if desired; add this seasoning just at serving time, or pass for each diner to choose.

We whipped our margarine into shape for our new tumbler.

New Soft-Whipped Nu-Maid Margarine. We've whipped it enough to give it the extra softness and spreadability of a whipped margarine — with the kind of flavor you expect from Nu-Maid. Outside, there's Nu-Maid's new, re-usable tumbler. It's perfect around the house. At patio parties. For picnics, and camping, too.

Taste new Soft-Whipped Nu-Maid Margarine in the new tumbler. In some stores you'll find the individual tumblers, in others, the convenient twin-pack carton. Either way you get the extra flavor you've been looking for in a soft-whipped margarine.

Food needs home care

Four recent cases of food poisoning reported to the U.S. Department of Agriculture underscore the importance of proper food handling.

About 1,300 persons in Grundy, Va., Terre Haute, Ind., Anchorage, Alaska, and Newton, Mich., became ill recently as a result of eating meat or poultry products which became contaminated by food poisoning bacteria.

In each case, the product had been inspected and certified as safe and wholesome by USDA meat and poultry inspectors. In each case, the safe and wholesome food, after being cooked, was contaminated and allowed to remain at room temperatures favorable to the growth of bacteria. These temperatures range from 40 degrees Fahrenheit to 140 degree F.

Some 400 students and teachers at Grundy, Va. High School became ill after eating turkey salad. On analysis, the salad showed it contained large numbers of salmonella, one of the most common causes of food poisoning. The salad had been left for a day at room temperature before being served.

Five hundred inmates at a federal prison in Terre Haute became ill after being served meatloaf which had remained for some time at room temperature. This was another case of food mishandling.

The food poisoning bacterium this time was identified as Clostridium perfringens, which may even survive oven temperatures. The surviving organisms frequently grow in sufficient numbers to cause food poisoning when large masses of meat or poultry are kept at serving temperatures for more than 2 or 3 hours.

The junior high school children in Anchorage also ate turkey which had been left for about 10 hours at room temperature — again Clostridium perfringens was the culprit.

The most recent outbreak was Dec. 7 in Newton, Mich. Fifty-five out of 166 persons who ate ham at a banquet became ill. Canned ham was opened the previous day for slicing by hand. It was heated for a short period of time in the oven, then left at room temperature overnight. Probably contaminated during the slicing, the heating period was not long enough and the ham was kept warm enough the next day to give the bacteria plenty of time to multiply. The bacterium was Staphylococcus another of the more common food poisoning organisms.

Fortunately there were no deaths, but there certainly could have been. Illness caused by these bacteria can cause death to older people, the ill or the very young. Food scientists with the United States Department of Agriculture say there is no substitute for care in food handling, either in institutional or home kitchens. Errors in food handling, they estimate, cause about 80 per cent of all foodborne diseases.

Yet, they say, guidelines for food handling and care are fairly simple. Keep food clean. Keep food hot, above 140 degrees, or keep it cold, below 40 degrees, before serving it. Food should NEVER be left at room temperature for more than 2 hours, and this includes the time it is on the table during dining.

Leftovers should go into the refrigerator immediately, even when they are still warm. They should be reheated before serving again and this means at a temperature of 140 degrees or higher.

Stuff a turkey or other fowl only before cooking, cooking the interior of the stuffing to 165 degrees F. to make it safe. Remove all stuffing after the meat and refrigerate both bird and stuffing separately and immediately.

Gravies and broths when reheated should be brought to a rolling boil and boiled for several minutes before serving.

The rule of thumb, state food scientists, goes like this: Below 14 degrees F. there is no bacterial growth; from 14 to 44 degrees F. there is slow growth of harmless food spoilage bacteria; between 44 degrees and 125 degrees F., there is increasingly rapid growth of food poisoning bacteria.

So, for safety's sake, allow a little above and below this range, the scientists say. Store food properly and refrigerate quickly; keep a constant check on refrigerator areas; plan meals so that hot foods may be served directly from the stove and cold foods directly from the refrigerator; do not leave food sit at room temperature, in the kitchen or on the dining table, for more than 2 hours.

Not too many will drink to this

Call it suds, or brew or beer, but it's going to cost more most places, whatever the name.

Inflation's struck again and this time the breweries and distributors have increased the price of beer to saloons — by about $5 per barrel in the Appleton area.

So in some bars the familiar eight-ounce tap beer now costs five cents more. Other bar owners are maintaining a close watch on competition to see what happens.

Representatives of the major breweries in Milwaukee are touchy about the issue. A Pabst Brewing Co. spokesman, who refused to be identified, simply said, "There are selective price increases being ordered across the country."

He said the cost of barley and corn has gone up.

John Cameron, manager of communications for Miller Brewing Co., Milwaukee, said his firm has been approved for a 4.5 per cent price increase and expects to ask for another increase "in the very near future."

He cited "increases in raw agricultural products" as the big reason.

Cameron explained why brewers are touchy and why increases aren't across-the-board. "The increases will be made in selective markets because of the competition."

Roger Blink, vice president of Tri-County Distributors, Appleton, handles Budweiser and Michelob. Both have increased in price.

"The cost of freight increased considerably over the last few months. We've been absorbing the price increases for the past five years but the last few months are what made us take a look at it."

Shutdowns faced by Fox Cities firms

BY ARLEN BOARDMAN
Post-Crescent staff writer

The independent truckers' shutdown is starting to cut deeply into the capability of Fox Cities industry, as the city's major employer will be closed Thursday and Friday for lack of raw materials and others are considering curtailing or halting production if the shutdown continues through the weekend.

The effects of the shutdown on the area can be expected to snowball, if it lasts through the weekend. The independent truckers are dissatisfied with high diesel fuel prices and low freight rates and have rejected the latest government offer for a freeze on diesel fuel prices.

Miller Electric Mfg. Co., which employs 1,100, will be closing down production Thursday and Friday, but intends to return to production Monday, assuming the trickle of raw materials is sufficient to warrant it. However, if the truckers' shutdown doesn't end, more production shutdowns are likely.

Clarence Wieseckel, assistant vice president and director of manufacturing, said the Miller employees — 900 to 1,000 will be off work — will be allowed to use vacation time or personal holidays to avoid losing pay.

Wieseckel said the shortage problem has been with Miller for a year, as it has with other firms. But the truckers' shutdown magnified it.

The big problem is electrical steel used in the transformers for welders made by the manufacturer of welders and welding equipment, he said. Most comes from Chicago and East Coast companies, but inflow has been less than half the normal flow, he said.

Miller also is suffering shortages in component parts, cooper wire and other items, and hasn't been shipping out as much as normal.

Badger Northland Inc., Kaukauna, started sending out layoff letters to more than 150 workers ordering a layoff effective Feb. 13 unless the truck strike is ended, according to Bruce Havens, the firm's personnel and industrial relations manager.

"In case of a long truck strike, we'll have to lay people off. We just have no other choice," he said.

The layoff orders will go to about half the work force at the plant. The cut in work force would be accompanied by more than a 50 per cent loss in production should the strike continue, said Havens.

At present, however, the firm will continue to operate despite a growing shortage of parts. "We're still operating and feel that we have the ability to operate a while longer."

Elm Tree Frozen Foods Corp., a division of Rich Products Co., hasn't shipped out any product this week and shipped less than normal during the latter part of last week.

"We still haven't moved any trucks out, and if this continues for a few more days, we would probably have to shut down the plant," said Adrian Snell, general manager.

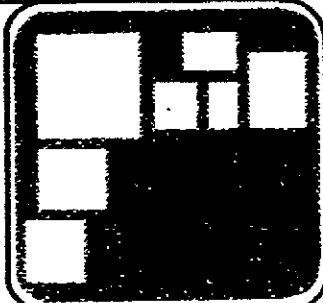

He said the firm could be forced to shut down Monday or Tuesday if the truckers' shutdown continues through the weekend. The firm's trucks are on a schedule geared to a week — a truck makes a trip one week and returns Continued on Page 6

Winter continues

Warren drafts ordinance to strengthen bribery laws

Atty. Gen. Robert Warren has sent Wisconsin's local government officials a model gift and gratuity ordinance that would, among other things, put more teeth in the state's bribery statutes.

The ordinance, which Warren recommended be made part of counties' operating codes, would forbid any government employee from receiving anything of value from any person with whom he has contact in his official capacity.

It would, Warren explained, eliminate the requirement for proving intent to influence which is now a troublesome necessity in bribery cases.

William Schuh, Outagamie County corporation counsel, said the five paragraph ordinance would appear to tie in with a county ethics code proposed last week by Supv. John Hennessy of the Town of Center.

Warren's proposed ordinance probably could be used verbatim in a local ethics code, Schuh believed. It covers much of what Hennessy was talking about, Schuh added.

Hennessy's suggestion for a code to cover elected county officials, and possibly appointed department heads, was referred to the board's finance committee.

In proposing the code, Hennessy indicated he was especially concerned about financial conflicts of interest on the part of supervisors and about county officials' receiving gifts and favors from individuals or companies seeking to do business with the county.

Hennessy said he has written to Warren's office, the Wisconsin County Boards Association, the National Association of Counties and Milwaukee County for assistance in pursuing his code proposal, which he has not fully outlined.

Kaukauna Mayor Robert LaPlante said he agrees in principle with Warren's recommendation which he referred to the city council's legislative committee.

Appleton City Clerk Elden Broehm said he forwarded the ordinance recommendation to the City Council's welfare and ordinance committee.

Investigation by Warren's office into practices of the industrial chemical sales industry has resulted in convictions of 18 individuals and three corporations.

"A substantial portion of the chemical supply industry has chosen to sell gifts to public employees and public officials rather than selling the product on its merits," Warren informed government officials.

"Our investigation has shown that many public employees and officials with purchasing power have never seen a price list, have never compared products and do not have a standard purchasing procedure, but rather purchase from the salesman who has the best or biggest gift to offer," Warren added.

The practice of accepting gifts and gratuities results in higher costs to the taxpayer and "...has a shattering effect upon the people's trust of public servants," Warren said.

By adopting the proposed gift and gratuity rule, local units of government would make it more risky for its employees or officials faced with to accept or not to accept decisions.

The increased risk, Warren explained, is that if the public employee violates the local rule or ordinance, he could be prosecuted under the state's misconduct in public office statutes.

"The public employee or public official would no longer be able to say that he was not aware that he could not receive a gift," Warren said in urging local adoption of his proposed ordinance.

Local authorities should take the initiative in Wisconsin's fight against governmental corruption, Warren advised.

situation, so he notified Dale Borell, district chief traffic engineer for this area.

Borell said he will send someone down to observe the glare during the peak hours of obstruction. Meanwhile, he has notified his superiors at the state Highway Commission in Madison to get legal counsel working to see if action can be taken against Como. He is interested in seeing how the windows were allowed to be put in at all, given their reflective nature.

While Borell said he does not know of any laws covering such a situation, he suspects he may be dealing on vague Continued on Page 6

Window glare blinds motorists

A policeman has received five complaints in six days from motorists who have been blinded by the glare from windows in a new Appleton office building.

A spokesman for the corporation putting up the building said he first learned of the existence of the complaints Tuesday afternoon from an employee. The district office of the state Highway Commission is looking into legal action it can take to remedy the situation.

The cause of the stir is the mirror-like effect of the new gold thermopane windows of the Como of Wisconsin, Inc., building, currently under construction at College Avenue and Nicolet Street, just west of U.S. 41.

Lt. Robert Keating of the Outagamie County Sheriff's Department Traffic Division, said the complaints have come from motorists during the early afternoon hours, or about noon to 3 p.m. That's when the sunlight causes a sharp reflective glare off the south side windows of the four-story structure. The glare obstructs the vision of motorists heading north on U.S. 41. To a lesser degree, the blinding effect also concerns motorists traveling on Nicolet and Spencer streets, Keating added.

Keating said he has been instructed by Sheriff Calvin Spice to handle the Critical stage near for some food supplies

BY DAVID WEITZ
Post-Crescent staff writer

Supplies of some foods in the Fox Cities are approaching the critical stage due to the continuing nationwide truckers' shutdown. Particular shortages are being noticed in fruits and vegetables, with meat supplies remaining questionable.

James Townsend, controller for United Grocers, Inc., Little Chute grocery distributor for northeastern Wisconsin, said, "Perishables are in real bad shape right now. . . and meat is a question mark. At this point, we're being supplied, but other suppliers are having trouble."

Of the produce (fruits and vegetables) in short supply, he said, bananas should be the first to be critically short — and out, probably by next Monday.

He anticipated a shopper run on food products and said it was unfortunate but inevitable.

There will be food products in the firm's warehouses for some time, he said, but not the ones that are in great demand.

Arnold Codozas, executive officer of Wisconsin Distributing Co., Appleton, said his firm is "working day and night to keep the area supplied fairly well, but it's very critical."

He said produce was coming in less heavily than normal — being down to 75 per cent of normal this week and probably to less than 50 per cent next week, if the shutdown continues.

The meat supply situation won't be as critical for those wholesalers, depending on local supplies. But shipments from outside the area are being curtailed.

"It's curtailing all shipments," said Larry Kellerman, Oshkosh, sales unit manager for Swift & Co.

"The retailers for a few days would have a supply yet but by the end of the week it's going to be a very short supply," he said.

One Swift & Co. truck was turned back at Sioux City, Iowa, Tuesday night, he said.

Ronald Oxman, vice president of Erwin Meat Co., Milwaukee, said the Sioux City meat trade has virtually stopped. The Erwin Co. specializes in servicing institutions and restaurants and purchases sides of beef. Hanging sides of choice steers have increased in price to 84-85 cents per pound.

The firm received one truckload of meat Tuesday and is awaiting delivery of seven more.

At New London, Gary Bernegger, president of Hillshire Farms Inc., which services beef and pork to 1,000 stores, said meat supplies are reduced.

"It's hurting us badly in the procurement of hogs for slaughter."

The firm has reduced its operations because of the meat shortage. "We're down to 50 per cent of the volume we'd like to be at," he said.

Bernegger considers his operation one of the last sources of supply to shoppers because it is a regional operation. So far the shortage means only that some products will be eliminated from the line. The company can operate for a time on the stocks of meat now in freezers.

At Reimer Meat Products, Green Bay, Alfred Fenske, vice president, said today that so far the truck strike has not affected business. "This week we have plenty of product."

The firm ships its product to stores in Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Chicago.

Fenske said supplies should enable the firm to take care of "this week and the next week."

Thomson Packing Co., route 4, DePere, also lists plentiful supplies despite the truck strike. "So far it hasn't been too bad, most of our cattle are local, said Thomas Thomson, vice president of the firm.

Froehlich queries area on impeachment, recall

U. S. Rep. Harold Froehlich, R-Appleton, wants to know if his constituents would favor a constitutional amendment that would allow the President or Vice President to be recalled by a vote of the people.

It is one of eight questions the Eighth District congressman asks in a questionnaire, the second he has mailed out since taking office in 1972.

Another asks if there is support for a March 31 deadline for an impeachment vote in the House, where the Judiciary Committee (of which Froehlich is a member) is currently conducting an investigation. Chairman Peter Rodino, D-N. J., has said the committee should be ready to make a recommendation by April.

Froehlich has said he and other Republican members of the committee feel that Democrats might try to make the impeachment question a political issue by prolonging the investigation into the November election period.

Froehlich also seeks to determine public support for restoration of Amtrak rail passenger service between Green Bay and Milwaukee in two of the eight questions mailed to constituents this week.

Froehlich asks his constituents if they really believe there is an energy crisis, a question he said "will indicate whether Eighth District residents will support a substantial commitment of federal tax dollars for research into new sources of energy."

Froehlich's questionnaire also includes questions relating to police controls and minimum wage laws.

Revised sewer user ordinance adopted

BY DOUG KOPLIEN

MENASHA — A sewer user fee ordinance, which calls for penalty payments for overloading, was unanimously adopted Tuesday by the city council.

It came after City Atty. Richard Steffens said, "There's no legal impediment to passage of this ordinance." With that, he removed the possible conflict which had started to surface the night before between him and Mayor James Adams.

The mayor argued strongly in favor of adopting the ordinance, pointing out that he, Neenah Mayor Roman Hauser and Robert Bues, sewage plant manager, were scheduled to be in Chicago today to work out details of a cost recovery system.

It's the penalty provision which Steffens had said some industries were objecting to. But Adams was adamant. "We're getting down to the nitty gritty now. The reason for the penalty provision is to make sure the allotted shares are up where they belong. If their share is up, there's no penalty."

"The primary effect is once and for all we're going to meter and sample. We're going to have sound figures."

"I know I'm the big bogey man here, but this ordinance is in the best interest of the community. Right now, we're setting with a paper deficit of $200,000 and every day we delay this ordinance means another day of deficit," he said.

"It's time to quit kidding each other and get this adopted," the mayor said, again making the point that we're going to get down to figures."

A key provision in the ordinance calls for metering and sampling of industrial and commercial discharges. From that data, the city plans to work with Consoer-Townsend Associates on devising a user fee schedule which will generate enough revenue to pay the city's share. Steffens said that some industries had balked at the penalty provision and he indicated that the Environmental Protection Agency had offered to review the ordinance before passage to make sure that it would bring a "fair and equitable cost recovery system."

It was this point which appeared to divide Adams and Steffens Monday. Steffens offered that the legislation could wait for EPA approval while Adams insisted on immediate passage. "If it has to be amended, it can be amended, but we have to get the firm figures," the mayor argued.

Tuesday, he said, "One particular industry, Gilbert Paper Co., has gone along smilingly. They have some legitimate objections, but these can be ironed out."

"But the shell game continues and I'm tired of hearing it. We're down to the nitty gritty so we can find out if we have problems. If we do, then we can adjust the rates," he said.

Steffens alluded to possible hangups between the Neenah and Menasha documents. "I'm not aware of this ordinance being before the Neenah Council," he said.

He also suggested that "Neenah still does not have a deleterious ordinance," he said. That ordinance prohibits sewer users from dumping in material which could be harmful to the treatment system. Ald. Joseph Van Lieshout asked if passing the ordinance would have any effect on pending negotiations. (Talks are continuing with American Can Co., concerning a contract for all its operations in the Twin Cities).

Steffens pointed out that the contract with American Can would be different than with other industries because "they do not make paper and do not have any B.O.D. (biochemical oxygen demand)."

But the same criteria that is being used in the American Can talks will likely be applied to other non-industrial users. "We have butcher shops, meat markets, the hotel and hospital which probably will have to be metered," he said, adding that the equipment would be less sophisticated than what industry requires.

Adams, offering that "basically the city attorney and I agree on this" (user fee ordinance), suggested that with it, Menasha would be able to put together some accurate data from metering and sampling so that a user fee could be drafted.

At present, the city charges 40 cents per 1,000 gallons of water with 15 cents going for sewer maintenance. A report from C-T about six months ago indicated that it should be raised to about 70 cents per 1,000, including about 5 cents for eliminating clear water infiltration. Whether the clear water will be financed through the user fee or property tax will be decided by the city's bond counsel since Menasha plans to use revenue bonds to finance its share of the sewage plant addition.

Tax credits proposed for care of older homes

An Appleton alderman has proposed allowing property tax credits for money spent on improvements or maintenance by owners of homes in the city that are 12 years old or older.

City Atty. David Geenen said it would be illegal.

"If changing the state constitution is part of the package, then I suggest we go ahead and change that law," said Ald. Walter Kalata (2nd), when told of the city attorney's opinion.

Kalata will introduce the resolution — which he called an "academic think piece more than anything else" — to the City Council tonight. It will probably be referred to committee for action.

Kalata said the purpose of the tax credit incentive was to encourage the maintenance and improvement of older homes in the city.

He said it is to the city's benefit to "encourage well maintained homes, and especially to encourage renovation of older homes to sustain a high quality of life and avoid neighborhood blight conditions."

Geenen, however, said the state constitution prohibits any deviations from a uniform property tax.

"Everybody must be treated exactly the same," said the city attorney, adding that there was "no question" that Kalata's proposal would be unconstitutional.

"I know of no way to make it legal," he said, when asked if there was some other way that tax breaks could be given to particular homeowners.

Kalata, however, said he would like to see the city support such a change and then take it to the Wisconsin League of Municipalities and Alliance of Cities, which could push it before the state legislature.

"Actually, it would probably be more beneficial in other cities than in ours," said the 2nd Ward alderman who is up for re-election this year.

He said property tax credits could serve as an incentive to clear up blighted areas in cities like Milwaukee.

He also noted that it could prevent blight from developing in older parts of Appleton, like his own ward.

"I have an older ward that could be very susceptible to blight" if preventative measures aren't taken, he said.

Kalata's written proposal notes that federal and state income taxes provide for capital expenditure deductions on a yearly basis for owners of commercial property. Such benefits are kept from homeowners, however, until the property is sold.

He suggests that seven per cent of the money spent on maintenance of property in existing condition be allowed as a tax credit, while ten per cent of money spent on major structural improvements or changes be allowed as a credit.

Credits should not apply, he said, to money spent on routine interior decorating, replacement of a heating plant or any expense not related to a dwelling or a garage structure.

Driveway improvements should be figured as a tax deduction, he said.

The policy could be administered through the treasurer's office, who would be required to develop the required forms and administrative procedure, he said.

Proposal seeks highway committee that's appointed

A rules subcommittee proposal to make the highway committee an appointed committee the same as all other committees was approved by the coordinating committee on a 7-4 vote Tuesday.

The coordinating committee got through about half of the rules committee proposals and was to resume again this afternoon. Among the rules yet to be considered are those covering the duties of the various committees.

Only one major change was made in the rules that were reviewed, and that was in the rule covering the board chairman.

At the insistence of outgoing board chairman Russell DeLaHunt, the state statute outlining the duties and powers of the chairman was inserted in total in the rules to be recommended to the full board. DeLaHunt noted that the statute covering the county executive was copied in the proposed county ordinance on the executive's duties, and said the same should be done for the chairman.

He also suggested that the portion of the rules covering the chairman should be set up in an ordinance the same as the ordinance that covered the executive. No formal committee action was taken, however.

Supv. Joseph DeBruin raised the strongest objection to changing the method of selecting the highway committee. Historically, members of the highway committee have been elected to one-year terms on that committee by the county board. "That is the only committee that has kept out of politics and has done its job," DeBruin said. He said he did not object to changing the term of election to two years to coincide with other committee appointments.

However, Supv. Daniel Williams, highway committee representative on the coordinating committee, said that while present members of the committee preferred the election method they would go along with appointments for a two year term.

Joining DeBruin in opposing the appointment plan were Supvs. Fred Rehfeldt, Eugene Higgins and John Schreier. Favoring the change were Supvs. George Schroeder, John Marzion, Richard Jahnke, Al Lewandowski, Computer bank editing to be LU topic

A system for editing a computer bank of information will be discussed by Lawrence Professor of English Ben R. Schneider Thursday at Lawrence University. The public lecture will be at 4 p.m. in Room 400, Main Hall.

Schneider has directed the London Stage Computer Bank project since its inception three years ago. The project entailed putting an entire 11-volume, 8,000-page history of the London stage, 1660-1800, on computer tape. The project inspired Schneider to write a book, "Travels in Computerland," about his experience.

Thursday's discussion will deal with editing the mass of computerized information for the London Stage Bank and will include an explanation and demonstration of other applications of the editing system.

Marvin Babbitt, DeLaHunt and Williams.

DeBruin indicated he would continue his opposition on the board floor when the rules are presented and hinted he may sponsor an alternate set of rules.

A complete revamping of the committee structure was expected to be presented to the coordinating committee today by Supv. Eugene Kloes. His proposal calls for seven standing committees and an executive committee, instead of the existing nine standing committees and a coordinating committee.

His plan would combine the highway and airport committees and the zoning, agriculture and parks committees and create a legislative committee.

Flu closes St. Mary's

MENASHA — St. Mary Central High School closed today due to flu-related absenteeism among its teaching staff, according to the Rev. Paul Bernier.

Bernier said that the decision to close the school was made when it became evident Tuesday afternoon that three more teachers, in addition to the three already absent out of a staff of 30, were coming down with the flu.

Although the number is small and the teachers in general are seldom absent, the precautionary measure was taken and will be repeated tomorrow if need be, rather than hire substitutes, Bernier said.

He said that 87 students were absent last Wednesday, but the number had tapered off to 45 on Tuesday.

At St. Mary's Elementary School, which is located in the same building complex, Sister Anne Arthur, principal, said today a high rate of absenteeism is evident among the students this week rather than among teachers.

Public works board okays ARA's proposed use of school site

The Appleton Board of Public Works added its endorsement Tuesday afternoon to the proposed Appleton Redevelopment Authority's development of the old vocational school site for a privately-constructed high-rise apartment building.

The plan commission earlier this week gave its blessing, and the City Council will be urged by both groups to approve the project tonight.

The only objection at the board of public works meeting came from Donald Heinritz of the parking meter department who said his department was using the school quarters and didn't want to be moved again.

Eric Hemphill, ARA executive director, discounted the idea of leaving one of the two school buildings up for city use, saying it would discourage a private developer, but he added that ARA would seek to find satisfactory quarters for the city department.

He assured the board that the ARA would be returning to the appropriate city committees and the City Council for periodic approval of aspects of the Elm Tree has 400 employees and distributes products throughout the United States.

Lloyd Paul, president of Zwicker Knitting Mills, said the firm is starting to feel some material shortages from its yarn spinner suppliers in Cleveland, Ohio, and Rochelle, Ill.

If the trucker action ends in the next couple of days, the firm won't have problems, Paul said. But if it lasts through the weekend, Zwicker will probably have to shut down some departments, he added.

The firm, which employs about 700, is receiving only about 75 per cent of its normal raw materials supply. And the company is keeping its own trucks off the road because of reports of violence.

Fox Tractor, a division of Koehring Co., reported that its concern for the situation is growing. Officials said that if the shutdown continues, the company would have to consider reducing production hours, possibly next week. Employees now are working overtime.

Harold Schroeder, production manager, said the firm is viewing production on a day-to-day basis and that it will try to avoid a shutdown. The raw materials shortage is in castings, and that comes primarily from lack of area foundry capacity.

Elroy Kafies, traffic manager, said

The story is the same at Capital Sales, Inc., and Baer's Beverage, Inc., which handle Red, White and Blue, Carling Black Label, Old Style and Pabst Champale and Kingsbury.

"I know that I am going to charge more," said a spokesman.

He said beer prices haven't risen significantly since 1969 and that one is necessary now.

The only distributor who isn't anticipating price increases in the near future is Ted Heid, general manager of George Walter Distributing Co., Ltd., Appleton. The firm handles Old Chicago, Walters and Hamms and so far hasn't raised the price.

But at the bar where the stuff winds up, the customer is likely to pay more.

At Lums, 729 W. College Ave., Larry Daul said prices for a nine-ounce glass will go from 35 to 40 cents as soon as new menus come in. Prices for larger glasses haven't changed.

Jim Mullins, owner of Jim's Place, 223 E. College Ave., is taking a wait-and-see attitude. He charges 20 cents for an eight-ounce tap beer and is aware that competitors are charging 15 cents for a seven-ounce beer. "I'm just going to bide my time," He'll ab-

"At this point we are not too sure what can be done," he said.

The whole situation has left the Como people somewhat up in the air.

Earl Tangway, director of real estate for Como, said today he has not been formally contacted by the police or highway officials about the complaints. He heard about the complaints from an employee who apparently heard a tape of Keating speaking with an announcer for a local radio station about the glare coming off the windows.

Tangway said he assumed the corporation's building plans had to receive some kind of authorization before construction began, so he's not sure about what legal action can be taken.

In addition, the windows are 90 per cent installed. And they are permanently attached to their steel frames. Only a small bay on the west side and a similarly small portion of the northside windows remain to be installed.

Como of Wisconsin is a multifaceted operation which leases nursing homes in a five-state area.

Its $2 million building is part of a proposed $60 million "Paper World" complex scheduled for completion in the late 1970s.

Post-Crescent Madison bureau

MADISON — A decision by the Department of Industry, Labor and Human Relations (DILHR) and Dane County Circuit Court to deny workmen's compensation payment to the widow of a Valley Packing Co., Kaukauna, truck driver, was reversed Tuesday by the Wisconsin Supreme Court.

The high court ordered the commission to pay $20,858 to Marlene Simonton, whose husband, Frank, was killed in 1968 in a highway accident near Cosmos, Minn.

Simonton was employed by Norbert Van Handel, owner of Valley Packing, and from 1965 to 1967 drove cattle from Kaukauna to Milwaukee, Green Bay, Peshtigo and Hudson. The DILHR ruled, and the Circuit Court concurred, that in 1968 Simonton was doing only about 40 per cent of his driving in Wisconsin and the rest in Minnesota and South Dakota, and was therefore not eligible under the workmen's compensation policy through Employers Insurance of Wausau.

The Supreme Court ruled, however, that DILHR and the Circuit Court did not give Mrs. Simonton due process. The earlier decision, the court ruled, was made after discrepant testimony was made by Van Handel.

"As a consequence, there was inconsistent testimony before the commission," wrote Justice Nathan Heffernan, "and it chose to give credence to one portion of the testimony in preference to the conflicting testimony."

two sessions of the legislature and a public referendum.

Instead, the proponents are going ahead under the assumption that the courts will look favorably on such a subsidy, if it is challenged.

"Although we in Wisconsin have been spared the real energy shortage situations that have plagued other parts of the country, the state must prepare for the future and provide a wide range of transportation alternatives," said Petri.

Besides the Fox Valley route, DOT will also study the feasibility of routes between the two urban centers via the Lake Michigan shoreline and to the east of Lake Winnebago through Calumet County.

The Fox Valley route, however, is now viewed as the most feasible of the three by DOT.

Aspin's efforts to get rail transport restored in Wisconsin also include lines between Madison and Chicago and Green Bay and Rhinelander.

Jabbar standout as Bucks top Cavaliers

CLEVELAND (AP) — Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, with the assistance of the Milwaukee Bucks, defeated the Cleveland Cavaliers 102-87 in a National Basketball Association game Tuesday night.

"You can't say enough about the job Jabbar does for us," Bucks Coach Larry Costello said. "He's real consistant. We've had to play him 40 minutes a game for quite awhile because we've had so many injuries."

The Cavaliers jumped out to a 35-24 first-period lead, but Jabbar scored 21 points in the first half and brought the Bucks back to a 54-49 lead in the second period. He scored a game high 33.

Costello said Oscar Robertson, who has been out with an injury, "gave us the best job he's given us in a long time." The Big "O" put in 10 points.

Then the Bucks' coach went back to thinking about AbdulJabbar.

"After we got down, we had that one thing going for us and that was the Jabbar skyhook from the outside and we just kept using it," Costello said.

In the first period, Steve Patterson and Lenny Wilkens sparked the Cavs' burst. Patterson put in 10 points and Wilkens eight.

Cavs Coach Bill Fitch noted that the Bucks caught on to Patterson pretty quick.

"They took away what we were hurting them with," Fitch said. "And we didn't have anything else."

"When you're playing this kind of a ball club you can't afford a four or five-minute letdown like we had at the start of the second half," Fitch added.

"They just intimidated the devil out of us," he said. "They took us out of our offense at the beginning of the second half and kept giving it to the big man (Jabbar) inside."

Wilkins, despite missing the second period because of an injury, led the Cavaliers with 18 points.

"I didn't even know I was cut until Lucius Allen saw the blood and told me about it," Wilkins said. Wilkins cut his chin when he ran into another player. The cut required six stitches, but Wilkins returned for 20 minutes of action in the final two periods.

The Bucks return to Milwaukee for a game with the Boston Celtics tonight. The Cavaliers have two days off and travel to Houston for Friday night action.

Hall pick surprises Canadeo

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) —One of the most productive and versatile players in Green Bay Packer history, Tony Canadeo said Tuesday his election to pro football's Hall of Fame nonetheless had come as a surprise.

Canadeo, now a successful businessman here and member of the Packer executive committee, will be inducted July 27 at Canton, Ohio, along with Lou Groza, Dick "Night Train" Lane and Bill George.

"I learned about it about 10 days ago when I was called by Dick Gallagher of the Hall of Fame," Canadeo said. "I was so surprised I couldn't say anything for several minutes. I had been aware of the Hall of Fame, naturally, but I never thought much about my chances of being elected to it."

The selections were announced Tuesday.

"Of course, I had hoped to," he said. "If you're a lawyer, you want to be a Supreme Court Justice. If you're a doctor, you want to discover a cure for cancer. If you're in football, it's the Hall of Fame. This is the ultimate."

Canadeo played with the Packers from 1940 through 1952, with two years out for military service. He rushed for 1,052 yards in 1949 to become only the third runner in National Football League history to exceed 1,000 yards in one season.

He rushed for 4,197 yards and averaged 4.1 yards per carry for his career. He also completed 105 passes for 1,642 yards and 16 touchdowns, caught 69 passes for 579 yards, intercepted nine passes and returned 45 punts and 71 kickoffs.

"Some of my former teammates are in it (the hall)," Canadeo said. "I played with Clarke Hinkle when I was a rookie and of course I played with Don Hutson. You bet that's pretty good company. This is the greatest honor of my life."

Groza was a star placekicker and offensive tackle for the Cleveland Browns. Lane was a brilliant defensive back for Detroit, the Los Angeles Rams and Chicago Cardinals, while George was a top linebacker for the Chicago Bears.

"It's a little embarrassing but I'm thrilled to death," said George, who spent his career as a middle linebacker with the 1952-1965 Chicago Bears, coming to the pros from Wake Forest and making the National Football League All-Star team eight times.

"I think it's embarrassing because a lot of other guys also are deserving," said George. "It's too bad a lot of the other guys couldn't go into the Hall of Fame with me. I never really had considered being named. I was lucky."

"I'm very proud of being selected to the Hall of Fame. Really, it's the biggest honor of my life," said Lane.

"I think my record speaks for itself," added Night Train, who wound up with 68 interceptions, returned for 1,207 yards.

Warriors leave Badgers even more frustrated

MILWAUKEE (AP) —If it had been predetermined by a scriptwriter, as most Wisconsin-Marquette basketball battles seem to be, it likely would have been entitled: "A Tale of Two Jump Shots."

Both found their mark Tuesday night, but only one counted. Big Ten officials Chuck Fouty and Jim Bain disallowed a basket by Wisconsin's Dale Koehler, ruling he had not launched his 15-footer from the right baseline before expiration of the first half.

Koehler and Wisconsin Coach John Powless heatedly argued, and the call assumed monumental significance one half later. Maurice Lucas, after fumbling a pass, fired in a 20-foot turnaround jumper as time ran out, rallying Marquette to a 59-58 victory.

Lucas' heroics signaled pandemonium as well as the sixth-ranked Warriors' ninth consecutive victory over the Badgers, who have suffered four of their five defeats this season by one-point margins.

Warrior fans streamed onto the court, mobbing Lucas, while Coach Al McGuire jumped atop the scorers' table, jubilantly waving to the ground.

Powless, his eyes seemingly glazed, pounced off the Badger bench and strode, head bowed, to his locker room.

Marquette, which had beaten Wisconsin 49-48 in overtime here Dec. 29, trailed 47-38 with 6:38 to play this time before rallying.

The comeback was aided by three missed free throws by the Badgers' Kim Hughes in the last 65 seconds.

Hughes missed the first shot in a bonus situation and, after Lucas grabbed the rebound, a jump shot by Bo Ellis pulled the Warriors to within 58-57. Hughes missed two more foul shots with 17 seconds left and again Marquette rebounded.

Lucas, bothered by a sore shoulder, dropped a pass from Dave Delsman but recovered in time to sink his decisive shot.

"It was a pure shot," McGuire exulted, "and I had been yelling at him (Lucas) for 39 minutes and 58 seconds."

Powless, asked the difference between Koehler's shot and that of Lucas, snapped: "I sure don't know."

"I don't want to make any comment on that," he said. "I will say it was a well officiated game. They kept it in control, considering we're both physical teams."

Koehler, a 6-foot-8 sophomore who led both teams with 19 points and 12 rebounds, insisted his shot at the half should have counted.

"I would probably say he (Lucas) got his shot off in time, too. But I think mine was off at least half a second before his," Koehler said.

"It's a tough judgement call and the referees' decision, and I hope they can sleep well with it," he said.

McGuire said the Warriors had no time outs left in which to plot a last-second shot.

"We had no set play," he said. "We just had Lucas and Ellis swinging back and forth in the lane, picking for one another."

"We just wanted to go inside and then get the rebound if we could," Delsman, a reserve guard, said.

"I really didn't know what I was going to do with the ball—shoot it or pass off," Delsman said.

"(Gary) Anderson was on me, and then I saw one of the Hughes twins coming over to help. That more or less left Luke open so I passed it to him," he said.

Mindszenty removal may help Vatican-Red relations

Wednesday, Feb. 6, 1974 A-3

The Post-Crescent, Appleton-Neenah-Menasha, Wis.
Warsaw were "renewed signs of the opening by the Vatican toward Eastern Europe in the present period of European reconciliation."

BY VICTOR L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Writer

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The removal of Cardinal Mindszenty from the oman Catholic hierarchy in Hungary wept aside a major obstacle to the 'atican's drive for better relations with the Soviet bloc.

The cardinal's outspoken opposition to communism in any form put him in onflict with Pope Paul's quiet diplomacy with the regimes in Eastern urope. He spoke as a man of another ra, scarred by the Cold War and out of ep with the Vatican's efforts.

The cardinal, who spent eight of his 81 ears in Communist prisons and 15 years as a refugee in the United States legation in Budapest, said in a speech last year at summed up his views: "Each of the individuals should be forgiven but not the system. There is an important difference."

The Pope dismissed him Tuesday as rimate of Hungary and archbishop of sztergom, the archdiocese that cludes Budapest. He had not carried ut the duties of either post since the omunists arrested him in 1948. But he efused repeated Vatican requests to resign because he considered himself a symbol of militant anticommunism.

As Mindszenty's dismissal was announced, the Vatican's foreign minister, Archbishop Agostino Casaroli, was in Warsaw for talks that may lead to diplomatic relations between Poland and the Holy See. There is also talk that Pope Paul may visit Poland, 95 per cent of whose people are Catholics.

Pope Pius XII made Mindszenty a cardinal in 1946, when the Communists were taking over more and more of Eastern Europe and the watchword of the Church was resistance.

But the Vatican's anticommunist polemics came to end under Pius' successor, John XXIII. Pope Paul has continued the process with a flurry of diplomatic activity that has resulted in agreements allowing him to appoint bishops to longvacant sees in Czechoslovakia and East Germany, and an exchange of ambassadors with Yugoslavia.

Vatican sources said the official shelving of Mindszenty undoubtedly will lead to warmer relations between Hungary and the Holy See, although they do not expect formal diplomatic ties to result. The Vatican hopes the Hungarian government now will carry out its part of a 1964 agreement providing for the government's cooperation in the naming of new bishops. It also hopes priests will be given more religious freedom.

The aim of the Pope's policy is protection of the estimated 65 million

Roman Catholics and the Church's other interests in the countries of the Soviet bloc.

Church sources in Hungary welcomed the Vatican's move, saying the dismissal and Archbishop Casaroli's trip to Watergate role uncertain in Democratic win

JOHNSTOWN, Pa. (AP) — Democrat ohn P. Murtha Jr. has won a narrow ictory in a special congressional lection in which the Watergate scandal layed a shadowy role.

Murtha's unofficial, 220-vote winning argin over Republican Harry M. Fox n Tuesday snapped a 25-year epublican hold on the state's 12th ongressional District.

Murtha, a 41-year-old Vietnam eteran and state legislator, will finish ut the unexpired term of the late epublican Rep. John P. Saylor. Saylor, ho served 12½ terms, died of a heart tttack last October. Fox, 49, was aylor's administrative assistant.

Complete unofficial returns gave lurtha 60,530 votes and Fox 60,310. onstitutional party candidate Duane H. l McCormick, a 70-year-old retired usinessman, trailed with less than 000.

The ballots were put under guard until e official count Friday.

The race, the first federal election this ear, drew national attention as a ossible indicator of Watergate's impact n off-year congressional elections this overnber.

The close balloting made it virtually npossible to tell whether there was a oter reaction against the Nixon dministration.

Murtha, who operates a car wash, said e economic issues facing this Apalachian region of soft-coal mines, uck farms and steel mills were the verriding concerns of the voters.

But he also acknowledged Watergate. "I know the people were very igruntled with what was going on in ashington, and I'm sure it helped me me," Murtha said.

Fox, on the other hand, said the ational news media had distorted the ection.

"They came in here and brought atergate into this campaign," Fox aid. "This election clearly showed that atergate was not involved at all."

Judgeship for Davis at now-or-never point

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The federal ourt judgeship Rep. Glenn Davis, R-Vis., has sought for nearly three years ay be in the now-or-never stage.

The Milwaukee Journal Sunday quot-d Republican sources "who normally re highly reliable" as saying Davis has een asked to the White House to decide f he wants his nomination for the udgeship sent to the Senate.

"It's a tough choice for him," the ewspaper quoted one GOP official as aying. "If he opts for the judgeship nd can't get confirmed, he'll be a etired congressman."

Davis said Sunday he probably would ake a decision by the end of this week. e report said some state Republican aders were pressing for a quick ecision because of the domino effect avis' plans would have on other can-idates.

Hawks roll over Capital

By BERT ROSENTHAL
AP Sports Writer

The Atlanta Hawks discovered they could still be on target even though they didn't have their favorite "Pistol."

After Pistol Pete Maravich was suspended indefinitely for what Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons called "disciplinary reasons," the Hawks used bulls-eye shooting in gunning down the Capital Bullets 121-103 in a National Basketball Association game Tuesday night.

In other NBA games, the Houston Rockets outlasted the Los Angeles Lakers 116-112 in overtime, the Chicago

Bulls edged the Boston Celtics 100-98, the Detroit Pistons nipped the Portland Trail Blazers 104-102, the Golden State Warriors routed the Seattle SuperSonics 129-113, the Milwaukee Bucks trounced the Cleveland Cavaliers 102-87 and the New York Knicks downed the Phoenix Suns 106-90.

In the only American Basketball Association game, the Denver Rockets topped the San Antonio Spurs 82-79.

In addition to missing Maravich, the league's No. 2 scorer with a 28.3 average, for the entire game, the Hawks were without Lou Hudson, the NBA's third leading scorer with a 26.1 mark, for half the game. Hudson scored 14 points in the first half before being forced to the sidelines with a back injury.

With their two best marksmen out, the Hawks had to find another sharpshooter—and they did, in Herm Gilliam, who fired in 34 points.

Rockets 116, Lakers 112

Dave Wohl's six free throws in overtime helped rally the Rockets, who trailed by 11 points in the fourth quarter, to their victory over the Lakers, despite a 44-point performance by Los Angeles' Gail Goodrich.

Bulls 100, Celtics 98

Bobby Weiss' 25-foot jumper at the final buzzer lifted the Bulls to their ninth consecutive victory.

Warriors 129, Sonics 113

The Warriors' victory was their eighth in a row, their longest winning streak since the 1967-68 season, and lifted them into first place in the Pacific Division, five percentage points ahead of Los Angeles.

Pistons 104, Trail Blazers 102

George Trapp's 30-foot shot in the final second capped a comeback from a 14-point thirdperiod deficit and boosted the Pistons to their fourth consecutive victory.

Knicks 106, Suns 90

Earl Monroe's 19 points helped the Knicks build a commanding 26-point halftime lead and enabled them to withstand a second-half Phoenix rally.

Rookie goalie paces Islanders

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — Goalie Glenn Resch was more nervous Tuesday night than he was in his National Hockey League debut on Sunday. If he maintains that progression, the rest of the league is in for a bad case of the shakes.

"The more nervous you are, the better you are," the New York Islanders' slim 25-year-old rookie from Moose Jaw, Sask., theorized following his first NHL victory, a 6-2 rout of the Minnesota North Stars in which he stopped 30 shots. His debut was a 4-2 loss to the California Golden Seals on the road.

In Tuesday night's other NHL game, Montreal slipped past St. Louis 3-2. In the World Hockey Association, Houston shut out Jersey 4-0, Chicago defeated Winnipeg 3-1, Minnesota beat Cleveland 4-1 and Vancouver blanked Edmonton 8-0.

The Islanders summoned Resch from Fort Worth of the Central League for a look-see because they can only protect two goalies in the upcoming expansion draft and want to find out what he can do in the NHL.

Canadiens 3, Blues 2

"Blues play their patsies," read the newspaper headline before St. Louis took on — and got taken by — the Canadiens. Montreal had been stunned 5-0 and 8-4 by the Blues earlier this season.

Aeros 4, Knights 0

For the second straight time, Jersey got belted by Gordie Howe and his Houston bunch — but this time the Knights didn't belt back.

On Monday night in New Jersey the Knights absorbed a 7-1 shellacking, one seemingly so frustrating that, in the closing seconds, they decided to score a few points of their own, knuckle-style. The 20-minute brawl resulted in the ejection of six players.

On Tuesday night in Houston it was nice and peaceful. Aeros goalie Don McLeod calmly chalked up his third shutout of the season, Howe smoothly slammed in a pair of goals — and the Knights tumbled back into the East Division cellar.

Cougars 3, Jets 1

Chicago scrambled out of it, riding first-period goals by Duke Harris and Dick Proceviat and the steady goaltending of rookie Rich Coutu past Winnipeg.

Saints 4, Crusaders 1

Mike Walton was all Minnesota needed to turn back the Crusaders although it was nice to have Steve Cardwell around, too.

Walton scored twice — on a slap shot and a breakaway — and Cardwell got his ninth goal in five games, a Fighting Saints record.

Memphis mayor wants to keep WFL club out

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Mayor Wyeth Chandler said Tuesday night that he is willing to stake his political career on keeping the new World Football League out of the city to enhance a chance of obtaining a National Football League expansion franchise.

"I know a lot has been said about the bird in the hand theory, but a bird in the hand is not too good if it happens to be kind of a sick bird," Chandler said of the WFL's attempt to set up a club in Memphis.

The Memphis Park Commission has scheduled a meeting for Thursday to decide if Steve Arnold of San Francisco, holder of the Memphis WFL franchise, will be granted a lease at 50,000-seat Memorial Stadium.

Chandler said he is uncertain if he has the legal authority to override the Park Commission if it issues a lease, but will make an attempt at invalidating the action.

"It's my hope they will not do anything to jeopardize the coming of the National Football League in any way and that they will withhold any decision on this enterprise," Chandler said.

Arnold has said that he will shift the franchise to Portland, Ore., if he is denied Memorial Stadium.

Xavier JV's record win over Pennings cagers

The Xavier junior varsity basketball team sank six free throws in the final two minutes of the game to stop De Pere Abbot Pennings 49-41 Friday night.

The Hawks, who trailed 35-30 early in the fourth quarter, pulled away from a 43-41 margin with 2:21 remaining with their free throw shooting.

Tim White led Xavier with 14 points. Steve Lueck added 10 points for the Hawks.

Xavier is now 11-3 overall and 8-3 in Fox Valley Christian Conference play. Pennings is 5-5 in FVCC action.

Schider hits 37 as Marion wins

MARION — Rusty Schider, a 6-0 sophomore guard, pumped in 37 points to ignite Marion's Mustangs to a 73-54 non-conference victory over Iola-Scandia here Tuesday night.

Schider's 37 points gave him the second highest number of points scored in a game in Marion High School history. Kent Brandenburg hit 41 points two seasons ago to claim the No. 1 spot.

The Thunderbirds jumped off to a 14-11 lead at the end of the first quarter. But the Mustangs outscored I-S, 20-9, in the second period as Schider netted 10 markers.

The hot-shooting Mustangs converted 30 of 61 from the field, while the T-Birds banked 23 in 74 attempts. Both squads have overall records of 8-8.

Joel Robenhagen connected for 12 points and Pete Kuchsdorf swished 10 in a reserve role to round out the Marion scoring attack. Top scorers for I-S. were Dale Carper (21) and Doug Hines.

Selmon and George Sauer sign contracts with WFL

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Lucius Selmon, George Sauer Jr., Woody Green, and Sonny Sixkiller are the names the aspiring World Football League is talking about today.

Selmon, the All-American middle guard from Oklahoma, signed with Toronto.

Sauer, the pass catcher from Texas who retired from the New York Jets, was reported signed by Boston.

Green, the All-American running back from Arizona State, had his draft rights traded from Florida to Memphis, a franchise which might, in turn, be switched to Green's hometown of Portland, Ore.

Sixkiller, the Indian who starred at quarterback for the University of Washington, has tentatively agreed to a contract with Southern California's entry in the new league but hasn't signed yet.

These were money developments as the WFL held the second phase of its draft Tuesday.

"I spoke to Sonny on the phone and sent him a contract," said Southern California's general manager, Carly Morrison. "I think we have agreed to terms. He seemed enthusiastic and I think we may have something."

Sixkiller had a tryout with the Los Angeles Rams, of the National Football League last year but was cut before the start of the regular season.

Selmon became the fourth outstanding collegian to ink a WFL contract, following Southern California's trio of James McAlister and Kermit Johnson, both UCLA running backs, and offensive tackle Booker Brown of the University of Southern California.

The decision by Sauer to come out of retirement was a surprise. Once a favorite target of Joe Namath, Sauer quit in 1970 after a six-year career.

Overall, the new WFL has now drafted 432 players and President Gary Davison said he was confident many would be signed in the competition against the established NFL.

Still, in answer to a direct question, Davison said he would be satisfied if one-third of the first-round choices were signed.

Davison said an announcement is expected in Chicago today on signing of players.

Overall, he believes the collegiate crop of 1973 is awaiting WFL offers before deciding whether to sign with the established NFL or the new and aspiring WFL.

Davison did say that about 100 players already have been signed by the 12 teams and more are expected momentarily. That would include free agents such as Sixkiller and the new draftees.

Xavier's cage team whips St. Lawrence

BY MIKE BATES

Post-Crescent staff writer

MT. CALVARY — The Appleton Xavier Hawks put together a well-balanced attack and combined it with an adequate defense for an 82-53 non-conference win Tuesday over the St. Lawrence Seminary Hilltoppers.

The final score, however, doesn't show the real picture of the first ten minutes of the game. Seven times the score was tied and eight times the lead changed hands during the opening quarter and first two minutes of the second period.

But once the blue and white clad Hawks, who were only 10 players strong due to the recent flu bug, poured on the steam in period No. 2, there was practically no stopping them.

A 20-20 deadlock was within seconds a 24-20 XHS lead. Thirty seconds later, it was 28-21. And when the teams headed towards their locker rooms at the half, it was 42-29.

During the second half, Xavier methodically worked its way to improving its season record to 9-8. The Hawks' biggest point spread came late in the game when they held a 31-point, 77-46 advantage.

Scoring honors went to St. Lawrence's Gary Krueger, who netted 20 points. The 6-4 senior kept the young Hilltoppers (1-16) within range during the initial ten minutes by scoring 16 points, mostly with on-target 20 footers.

Xavier coach Gus Laemmrich said after the game that "if we get our health back by this weekend, we'll be ready. It's been a long two weeks for us."

"Having Floodstrand (Tom) return after having the flu helps...but the balance was very good from the other players (all ten scored). And we were more aggressive, which helps."

Floodstrand's 17 points was high for Xavier. Rich Kewley and Bob Mullen each had 13 points, Jerry Johnson and Dick Boya each 10 and John Patterson 8 for the Hawks.

49ers sign Wilbur Jackson

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (AP) — The San Francisco 49ers have signed running back Wilbur Jackson, the man they wanted most in last week's National Football League draft, and Coach Dick Nolan says he has plans to use all of Jackson's talents—running, blocking and receiving.

The 6-foot-2, 205-pound No. 1 draft choice from Alabama told a news conference here Tuesday he had a "good offer" from Birmingham of the World Football League, which also drafted him No. 1, "but I felt the 49ers made the better offer and that, plus the stability of the NFL, made me decide on San Francisco."

Nolan said Jackson "will play more halfback, but he's a good blocker and we can use him at fullback in special situations. And when we're up against some zone defenses, we'll be able to throw to him because of his running ability in an open field."

Jackson was a wide receiver when he began playing at Alabama but was moved to running back in his sophomore year. Last fall he averaged 7.9 yards for 95 carries.

Mary Redman, of Menasha, rocked a 661 scratch series to take over the lead in the Classic Division of the singles event in the 55th annual Wisconsin Women's Bowling Association Tournament currently being held in Madison.

Mary, who blasted five games over the 200 mark in her singles, doubles and team competition, has a 31 pin lead over her nearest rival.

In cracking the 661 count, Mrs.

Redman started with 214, then hit 203 and closed out with a booming 244 singleton in which she hit strikes in seven of the first eight frames.

It marked the fourth time this season Mary has been over the 600 mark and the ninth national honor set of her 5-year bowling career.

Mrs. Redman, who loves at 358 Elm St., Menasha, is the mother of one child and is employed at the Twin City Bowl. She competes in the Classic League at the 41 Bowl, the Tri-City League at Lakewood Lanes, the Women's Traveling League and a couples league at the Twin City Bowl.

While Mrs. Redman was socking her big series, just three lanes away Mickey Kuba of Appleton was firing a 617 scratch series which boosted her into third place in the Classic Division singles. For Mickey it was the first national total of her career.

In the Classic Division Doubles Division, Ruth Potratz and Kathy Sodermark of Neenah moved into third place with a 1,064 total while "Muggs" Selig and Joan Kolosso, Appleton, took fifth with 1,056.

Class A doubles saw Grace Hansel and Sheelah Lippert of Appleton take over third with a 1,086 total.

Janet Borg, Appleton, tied for fifth place in Class D singles with a 484 count.

The 41 Bowl team of Appleton placed fourth in the Classic Division with a 2,446 series. Don's Foods of Clintonville grabbed the top spot in Class A for teams with a 2,452 series ad and Friendly Tavern, Omro, had 2,303 to place third in Class B.

Chargers post 16th win in row

WITTENBERG —The state's No. 1 ranked middle school, Wittenberg-Birnwood, registered its 16th consecutive victory, an 86-36 decision over Amherst here Tuesday night.

A total of 14 Chargers saw action and 12 dented the scoreboard.

Leading the attack was Peter Krull with 22 points. Jim Schmidt hit 16 and Dan Beversdorf was credited with 10 assists.

W-B stormed to a 24-6 lead at the end of the first quarter and was in complete command from then on.

Memorial to Vince

RIDGEFIELD PARK, N.J. (AP) —A New Jersey Turnpike service area was dedicated to Vince Lombardi on Tuesday in typical Packers' weather.

About 250 people shivered in near zero weather to honor the late football great-coach of the Green Bay Packers and later the Washington Redskins.

William J. Flanagan, turnpike executive director, introduced five of Fordham University's "Seven Blocks of Granite." They were Johnny Druze, Alex Wojciechowicz, Nat Pierce, Ed Franco and Leo Paquin. Al Barbarisky from Ohio could not get the gas to attend the ceremony. Vince Lombardi was the seventh man on that famed Fordham line.

Alfred E. Driscoll, chairman of the turnpike authority and a former governor of New Jersey, said, "Vince Lombardi was an outstanding sportsman and coach, and an outstanding citizen of our great country."

Sam Huff, NFL all-pro former member of the New York Giants and Washington Redskins, who also attended the ceremony, described Lombardi as "a man who inspired all of us." "It was an honor and great privilege to be a part of his life, he was a great leader," said Wojciechowicz.

"He was a man's man. Vince Lombardi taught his players that nothing comes easy," said Andy Robustelli, new general manager of the Giants.

Mrs. Lombardi and her son, Vincent Jr., also attended the ceremony. Vincent Jr. described his father as a man who stood for "permanence, solidarity and stability." He said he was gratified there was "something permanent to bear my father's name."

Lombardi began his coaching career in New Jersey in the 1940s at St. Cecilia's High School in Englewood. In 1947, he returned to Fordham as freshman coach and then spent five seasons with the U.S. Military Academy as assistant coach.

At 41, Lombardi became an assistant coach with the New York Giants in 1954. There he gained his reputation as a perfectionist.

The great years of his coaching career were spent as head coach and general manager of the Packers beginning in 1959. Lombardi's career ended as head coach, general manager and part owner of the Washington Redskins.

This is the first turnpike service area ever dedicated to a sports figure. Other areas have been named after historical figures.

Lincoln takes poll lead; Little Chute makes ratings

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Milwaukee Lincoln's City Conference showdown triumph over Milwaukee Madison Saturday lifted the Comets into first place among Wisconsin's big-school prep basketball teams.

Lincoln, one point behind Racine St. Catherine in last week's Associated Press ratings, supplanted the Angels as Class A leader this week after balloting by member sportswriters.

Lincoln and St. Catherine each polled 10 first-place votes, but broader statewide support gave the Comets 215 total points to 195 for runnerup St. Catherine.

Votes were cast prior to St. Catherine's 47-31 victory over Milwaukee Cathedral Tuesday night.

Lincoln's 79-76 victory over Madison, the state's No. 11 large-school team, was more convincing than the score might indicate.

Lincoln, with its talented baseline tandem of Mike Gutter and Jerry Luckett riding the bench in foul trouble, fell behind 58-49 in the third period.

Gutter and Luckett returned in the fourth quarter, however, and teamed with Houston Lloyd to take charge of the boards. Gutter poured in 11 points in the last eight minutes to pull out the victory.

The only other change in big-school rankings saw Antigo climb past Tomah into ninth place.

Wittenberg-Birnwood, which nipped Little Chute 57-55 to become 15-0, retained first place among schools of 400 to 800 enrollment.

Little Chute's impressive showing in defeat pulled the Mustangs up to 10th place.

Chetek, 69-53 loser to Rice Lake, tumbled from second place to ninth. Luxemburg-Casco, 63-50 winner over Algoma, jumped from fourth to second, while Algoma slipped from third to sixth.

Eau Claire Regis advanced from fifth to third, Waupaca from sixth to fourth and Richland Center from eighth to fifth. Sheboygan Falls and Westby tied for seventh.

McFarland and Monticello remained first and second among small-school teams. Marathon, third last week, dropped to fourth, two points behind Mineral Point.

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Here is The Associated Press' fifth weekly rolling of Wisconsin high school basketball teams, with voting by member sportswriters. Points scored on a basis of 10 per first-place vote, nine for second, etc. First-place votes and records, where available, in parentheses:

No.	Team	Points
1.	Milwaukee Lincoln (10) (15-0)	215
2.	Racine St. Catherine (10) (16-0)	195
3.	Kimberly (2) (15-1)	164
4.	Jonesville Croia (2) (14-1)	143
5.	Neenah (13-1)	134
6.	Eau Claire Memorial (13-1)	108
7.	Madison La Follette (13-2)	88
8.	Sun Prairie (14-1)	56
9.	Antigo (11-2)	49
10.	Tomah (14-1)	38

Also receiving votes: Milwaukee Madison (13-2) 23; Burlington (13-2) 20; Kenosha Broadford (13-3) 17; Delevan-Darlen (13-1) 14; Hudson 8; Marshfield (10-2).

Disc jockeys beat Army recruiters

KIMBERLY—The WKAU disc jockeys whipped the Appleton Army recruiters, 66-32, in a recent basketball game for the benefit of the Americanos Drum and Bugle Corps.

WKAU led, 37-18, at halftime. Jim Schlies led the winners, with 20 points, and Rick Abel added 16. For the Army, Jim Darby set the pace, with 15 points.

Roland may join Bays

GREEN BAY — Is Johnny Roland about to become a member of the Packer coaching staff?

And what are the "true facts" about Packer player fines in 1973?

Packer Coach Dan Devine had to take timeout today from negotiations with No. 1 draftee Barty Smith to answer these questions, both of which had surfaced within the last 24 hours.

On the subject of Roland, who once starred for him at the University of Missouri before joining the St. Louis Cardinals, Devine would only comment, "Johnny and I have been very close for a long time — ever since we recruited him at Missouri in 1960. That's about all

I have to say at this time."

Asked if this might suggest his coaching staff had been completed with the addition of Perry Moss and Billy Kinard, new quarterback and defensive backfield coaches, respectively, Devine replied, "I'm not saying anything about that right now — I'm trying to sign players."

From his St. Louis home, meanwhile, Roland said, "I think basically any statements on the subject should come from the Packers." He did admit, however, "There have been some overtures made."

Devine dismissed a report that he had levied several large fines on players last season as "Just another case quoting an anonymous source, and an inaccurate anonymous source."

The reports first appeared in a column by New York Post sportswriter Paul Zimmerman two weeks ago.

"I've been avoiding comment on it," Devine said, "hoping he (Zimmerman) would correct his story. I'll never be able to understand that kind of journalism. To me, it's just irresponsible journalism. The report is very exaggerated."

In a more specific vein, refuting Zimmerman's anonymous report that one fine of $5,000 was assessed for breaking curfew, Devine said, "That's absolutely ridiculous. The fines totaled $1,250 last season, and I rescinded $200 of them."

Tony Oudenhoven hits 663 total

KIMBERLY—Bowlers went on a strike spree in the Senior Citizens League at Jerry's Lanes with Tony Oudenhoven grabbing the spotlight with a 663 scratch series which included a 245 game.

Mart Van Asten shared the top spot as he blasted a scratch game of 255.

For the women, Mary Williamson had a 179 game and 511 series while Marie Gossens turned in a 192 single-ton.

Sylvia Porter Be careful if you're installing fireplace

An astounding one-half of all new, single family dwellings built in this year of deep housing slump will have one or more fireplaces. In rural areas and even suburbs across the land, woodburning parlor stoves and Franklin fireplaces are hot sales items and the few manufacturers in the field report enormous backlogs of orders. Even in the Deep South, unprecedented numbers of Americans are now investing from a few hundred to several thousands of dollars in fireplaces—adding fireplaces to their homes, opening up old fireplaces which were blocked up, bringing unused fireplaces back into use for the first time in decades—to meet the threats of heating fuel shortages, power blackouts and cutoffs.

Romantic but they don't heat
But, however romantic and cozy an old-fashioned fireplace may be, it is one of the least efficient sources of home heat. Reason: it may take all night for a fire you've enjoyed for only a few evening hours to die down and, during this time, more heat goes up the chimney than the heat your fireplace provided while it was blazing.

Thus, from a practical viewpoint, think of a fireplace as strictly a temporary, standby heat source which could tide you over a day or two in the event of a fuel cutoff—and no more. Despite this warning, though, let's say you still intend to build a fireplace at today's eye-opening prices. Heed, then, these guides on how to shop for and build a fireplace from the New York State Cooperative Extension: Keep clearly in mind that this isn't an item you can "try out." Once installed, it's there to stay. So consult contractors and fireplace manufacturers on the full range of sizes, types, colors and materials available to you.

Consider today's wide range of prefabricated and fireplace packages which are relatively inexpensive and easy to install. Figure and compare the total price of the package, including installation. Investigate the purchase of a reproduction Franklin fireplace for under $200 (not including installation), among the more efficient types of open fireplaces. Many have doors you can close, preventing the escape of heat as the fire dies.

Get experienced mason

If you're building an old-fashioned masonry fireplace (brick or stone), be sure you deal with a really experienced mason who has an impeccable reputation for building fireplaces which not only look good and last but also draw properly and are safe. And if efficiency in heating is a prime consideration, this means building a shallow fireplace that will throw as much heat as possible into the room, providing a well-designed, easy-to-use damper and installing a heatilator-type metal lining which recirculates room air through metal chambers around the fireplace and sends hot air back into the room. Locate your fireplace where it will be sure to draw properly. Also, you're likely to cut construction costs considerably if you locate the fireplace on an outside wall. If you're planning—as countless thousands are now doing—to install a wood-burning, enclosed parlor stove, install it in a central location where it will heat the largest possible area. These stoves are far more efficient and economical heat sources than open fireplaces. And consider brands which have built-in thermostats to regulate the rate at which the wood burns. Also remember that the more exposed stove pipe you have, the more heat will stay in your house, but too much stovepipe will reduce the draft and cause collection of excessive amounts of soot and creosote in the chimney.

Key safety precautions
Don't fail to take these key safety precautions on parlor stoves: install some protective base underneath the stove, a slab of slate or marble or a sheet of metal; keep the stove at least a couple of feet from the nearest wall or piece of furniture and protect walls nearest the stove with a sheet of metal or asbestos; attach lengths of stove pipe securely to each other, using screws to hold them together; take this pipe apart once a year for cleaning and have your chimneys cleaned yearly, too. Locate the stove's chimney on your roof where it cannot be torn down by the elements. Don't take the dangerous short cut of running the stove pipe straight out through a wall of your house. In sum: you are "playing with fire" when you install and use fireplaces and fire-burning stoves. Years ago, when these were primary sources of heat in our homes and apartments, they also were prime sources of home fires. Do not ever forget this. Install them with utmost competence. Use them with utmost care.

Opinion

THE Post-Crescent

The House blunders

United States Ambassador to the United Nations John Scali said it was a "gut reaction." World Bank President Robert McNamara called it an "unmitigated disaster." At least it was pretty stupid.

The action was the turnaround in the House of Representatives of a $1.5 billion contribution over a 4 year period to the International Development Association. This is a multinational group and the United States was in effect chipping in $1 for every $2 put up by other countries. But anger and resentment against the oil embargo apparently influenced many congressmen, especially Republicans who ignored Administration pleas to back the measure. The White House no longer delivers Republican votes.

The bland assumption that aid to poor countries would somehow bring instant peace and plenty to the whole world is partly responsible for the disillusion in the House. Ideas on foreign aid have been changing in recent years. What has not changed is the very real need for help. As McNamara pointed out, the immediate victims are those millions who live in the drought-stricken regions of Africa and who haven't been withholding oil from anyone.

In 1972, Western nations contributed some $8.5 billion in grants and no or low interest loans to developing countries. The United States picked up the tab for about $3.5 billion of it. Canada's program largely depends upon funding scientists and technicians in the recipient countries rather than using teams of its own experts. The British are investigating new ways of governmental insuring against losses by private agencies. Richard Wood, Minister for Overseas Development, explains that "profits are both the legitimate results of raising the living standards of the poorer nations and the means to raise them further. At present only one-third of the world's population is seriously involved in the market economy. If we can help to raise consumption standards in the other two-thirds, we shall not only have achieved a valuable end in itself, but we shall have set on foot an enormous expansion in the world's demand for goods and services from developed and developing countries."

There must be some doubt over the wisdom of this when we view the current shortage of wheat and the probability that growing affluence in many countries means a tight food situation for the future. Consumption in the developed countries also often appears to be contrived with "planned obsolescence," one of the unfortunate results.

But a major problem in developing countries is unemployment and underemployment. The white man's conception of the poor but happy savages has been pretty thoroughly dispelled. "This has been resented more than we ever understood before," Prime Minister Norman Kirk of New Zealand told Australian businessmen in discussing the plight of natives on some of those idealized South Sea islands. The means of living better, even just a small step above the constant threat of famine, can come only through more participation in the world market economy.

More than that, Congressmen were ignoring a few facts of international life. President Nixon has orated gloriously about becoming self-sufficient in energy. But our oil imports constitute only 20 per cent of our needs. We import 94 per cent of the manganese we use, 99 per cent of the natural rubber, 100 per cent of the tin and a lot of copper and iron. Developing countries bought $14.6 billion worth of goods from us in 1972, more than we bought from them.

From an economic as well as a humanitarian viewpoint, the House vote was all wrong. It should reconsider in a hurry. Where is that responsibility that Congress claims it merits over that of the executive department?

A better Brown County

Three years after the office of county executive was created, a Brown County Board study committee seems to be going through a rather purposeless exercise in seeking to write an ordinance defining the duties of the office. But such an ordinance could serve a good purpose if it clearly separates the functions of County Board committees and the elected county executive.

While Brown County was a state leader in moving to the county executive system, it still had its problems in abandoning the "government by committee" system of old-fashioned county boards. There still are wasted committee hours arguing over what kind of uniforms female deputies should wear and what kind of fenceposts to buy. The County Board has balked over giving the county executive a personnel assistant or clearly transferring routine personnel functions to the executive's office.

In that connection, there was encouragement from the last session of the study committee. It spoke of giving the executive "needed tools" in the fields of personnel and in centralizing purchasing now scattered among departments and committees.

The state law authorizing county executives says he shall "coordinate and direct, by executive order or otherwise, all administrative functions of the county government not otherwise vested by law in boards and commissions or in other elected officials." This language had to be broad, and an ordinance could make it more specific for Brown County.

The main thing is that the County Board should agree finally that its main job is to legislate. Like a mayor or governor, the county executive should direct administration along with his statutory duties of preparing the annual budget and making policy proposals to the board.

After some understandable tugging and pushing, acceptance of these principles will make for a better Brown County. As the new countryside library system and solid waste disposal plans show, county government is destined in Wisconsin to take on more functions needed in common by local governments.

Brown County should build a modern governmental structure to prepare for these obligations.

Editor's Note: Substitute Outagamie for Brown in this editorial from the Green Bay Press-Gazette and it is particularly timely in this area.

Improve, meter parking area

Editor, The Post-Crescent: Regarding the parking lot between Oneida and Appleton street, south of Lawrence Street:

This city is now utilizing only half of the area, and using the other half of the area only 80 per cent of the time. This is not proper usage of land, in addition, the city is not receiving a return on their investment on the property.

Now, with the possible delay in the building of the Oneida Street bridge, the city should, at once, grade, black-top and meter the entire lot for around the clock operation. This also, indirectly, would give the Soldiers Square ramp greater volume, producing a much needed increase in revenue.

Code of ethics may end free meals

MADISON — At a time when there is more visible concern about the state of political and official morality than in the memory of most citizens, the state Department of Revenue will surely find support for its test in court of the legitimacy of income tax deductions representing the cost to private contractors of entertaining public officials with food and drink.

The issue arose with the claim of a major road machinery distributor for expense deductions from income represented by disbursements in the entertainment of county officials who buy such equipment.

The new chief of the Department of Revenue asserts that "sound public policy requires that Wisconsin maintain the highest standards of integrity in its public service, both in practice and appearance."

"When a contractor doing business with county highway officials purchases meals for them, both the appearance of integrity and, perhaps the practice, is jeopardized."

It will be difficult for any reasonable person to quarrel with that position.

About 25 years ago Wisconsin enacted an explicit and severe prohibition of the ancient practice of entertaining legislators by special interests.

The immediate target was the legislative lobbyist, but the language of the law is so broad that such entertainment of any other state officer is also prohibited under harsh penalties. No lobbyist, the law says clearly, may give to any legislator, or any state officer or employee, "any thing of value." That act has never been seriously challenged. This reporter can testify from observation before and after that it has substantially civilized the relations of legislators with registered lobbyists.

The act may one day be regarded as the most striking of the achievements of Vernon W. Thomson, now a member of the U.S. House of Representatives, during his single term as governor. He insisted on the rule, and the legislature accepted it with comparatively little fuss.

Thus Wisconsin now has a situation in which no special pleader can try to make friends and influence decisions in state government by the provision of food, drink or entertainment or through "any thing of value," but the old practices not only survive in the courthouses but the favor givers feel they are entitled to income tax deductions too.

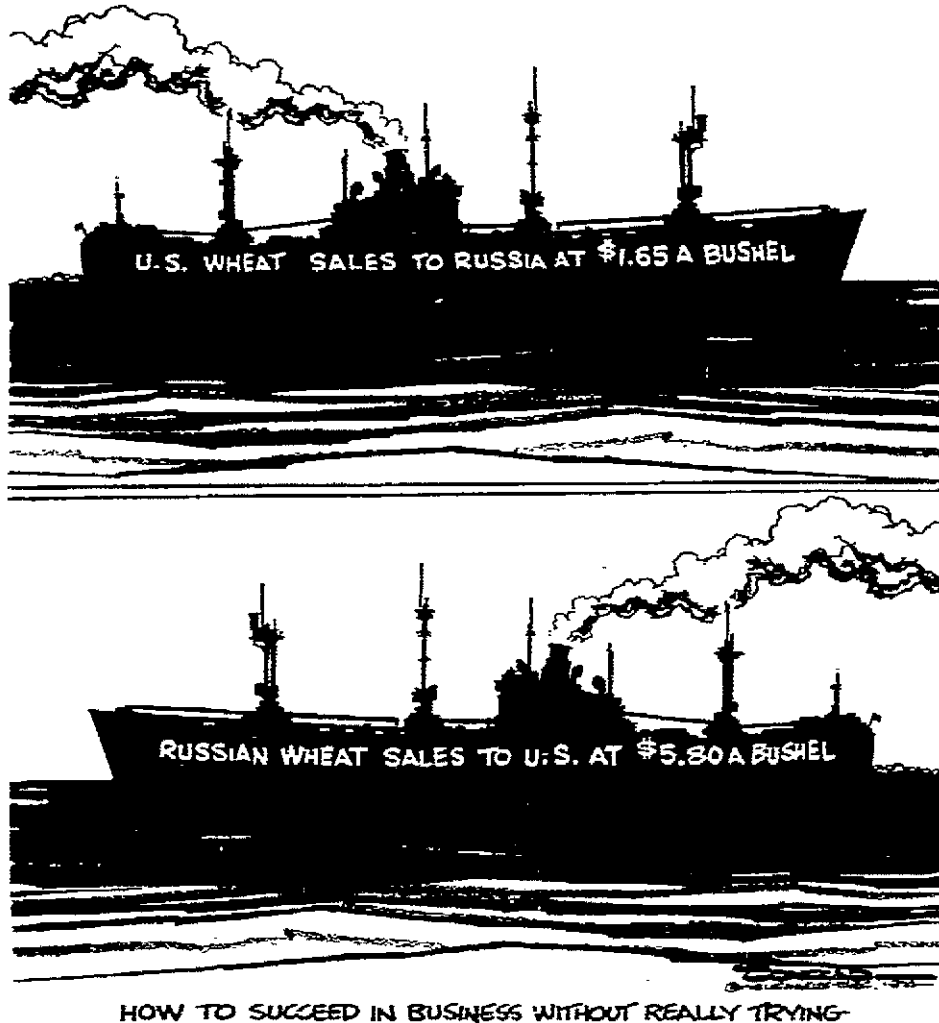

In their relations with county highway officials moreover, these contractors are especially conspicuous because the county officers are in effect the agents of the state in the purchase of much of their equipment and many of their materials. Counties contract with the state for the maintenance of the state highway system. They are spending state funds.

The standard response when such incidents are brought into the arena of public debate is that no officials can be "bought" for a meal or a drink. Yet the claim of tax deductions for such disbursements by the hospitable contractor asserts that such expenditures were useful in getting purchase orders.

The recently enacted stringent code of ethics in some respects may be shown to be too stringent. The climate was hospitable for such action, however, and there was scarcely a ripple of objection. It contains a recommendation that similar codes be enacted by local government.

Now the state Department of Justice is producing localities to enact such ordinances defining conduct rules by officials who control public money. Some of his critics regard Atty. Gen. Robert Warren as a kind of bluenose, but almost surely he is saying what the average citizen believes they need for such rules.

Consumers should have more voice

One of the troubles with government agencies and administrative boards and the like is that usually nobody on them has had any experience on the other side of the fence.

This is why, stopping briefly in Pittsburgh on a lecture tour, I was pleased to learn that the Allegheny County Government Study Commission recommended that at least two members of all future governmental advisory and policy-making boards be persons who actually have received the services involved, or representatives of such persons.

It is long overdue that a convict or ex-convict should advise on prison programs and policies, and that a former mental patient should help in forming state and county mental health policies.

The great success of Alcoholics Anonymous, as contrasted with other groups of its sort, is largely due to the fact that alcoholics run it and know exactly what the problems are from the inside out. The same is true of "Recovery," which operates by and for emotional cases.

Nobody knows what a prison is like except someone who has actually served time; and the same applies to all institutions and agencies of this sort. No amount of "good will" can take the place of living experience; and in most governmental agencies even the good will is subordinate to political considerations.

I think that in the future, as we acquire more sense about such matters, we will go even further and apply the same rule to private philanthropies and cultural subsidies.

There is no reason for a city's symphony orchestra to have a board of trustees made up almost wholly of rich merchants and social luminaries, without a single member of the orchestra serving upon it; or for art museums to have boards composed wholly of non-painters; or boards of education without a single working teacher represented.

In almost all such cases, issues soon become polarized, because the viewpoint of the people being acted upon — whether convicts, mental patients, artists, or poor folk — is not ventilated within the board, and is expressed only in an adversarial manner when an issue comes to a head. Everyone knows it takes a prison riot to get a long-needed reform.

In the abstract, we all agree with the old Indian saying, "You can't know how a man feels until you have walked a mile in his moccasins," but concretely we fail to apply this adage to our social and institutional lives. In fact, if I had my way, I wouldn't let any surgeon operate on me who hadn't been under the knife himself, in the same hospital. Try walking a while in those moccasins, doc.

Public turned off by energy crisis

Cherry trees in early February, blooming only a few hundred yards from the U.S. Capitol, symbolize the mixed-up weather and mixed-up energy politics that have contributed to slackening national concern about our fuel crisis.

Flukish weather is a central factor, and I can sympathize. Stacked outside our house are cords of unused firewood, and beyond them, a garden with crazy iris, foxglove and black-eyed susan plants growing as if this were May and not early February. A fuel crisis? Where? Except for the traffic hazard of long lines at gas stations, there isn't much evidence.

Next year may be different

My concern is that this non-crisis psychology itself may be reaching crisis proportions. The measures Americans take — or don't take — in early 1974 will determine how successfully we can cope with shortages six months or a year from now. Next year's winter may not be so balmy and misleading to cherry blossoms, foxglove, and Washington politicians.

Right now, the official style is manifestly lackadaisical. President Nixon is coyly hinting the end of the Arab oil embargo. Congress is fumbling the energy bill. Eighteen states, mostly in the West, have failed to lower speed limits as sought by Washington. And so forth.

In Florida, public annoyance with year-round daylight savings time prompted the governor to call a special session of the legislature. Other parts of the country are also peeved about winter daylight time, and many representatives and senators are jumping on the repeal bandwagon, happy for a chance to demonstrate that they are not part of the great oil company conspiracy to create a phony energy crisis.

Unfortunately, the winter daylight savings time controversy is likely to continue, serving as yet another platform for the non-crisis crowd. If the British experience of the early Nineteen-Sixties is any example, the general public tends to sympathize with those fellow citizens whose lives are disrupted by shifting hours and darkness patterns. In Britain, most people liked year-round daylight time, but complaints from the thinly populated remote districts of Scotland and Northern Ireland were noisy enough to convince the government to scrap the short-lived experiment.

The public is skeptical

The simple and perhaps dangerous truth is that politicians can't be expected to keep talking about a crisis when the electorate doesn't believe that there is one. Back in the autumn, my associate, pollster Albert Sindlinger, found the public reluctant to acknowledge a crisis. Then, in December, concern began to grow. But as of late January, Sindlinger's data find our citizenry increasingly skeptical again — 50 per cent of those polled don't believe the crisis is serious. Public doubt is already eroding the willingness of elected officials to support measures calling for hardship or sacrifice.

Further aggravating the problem is the likelihood that "conspiratorial" oil companies will become the legislative whipping boys for stirring up a "phony" crisis. This could reduce the ability of the producers to finance exploration and development of the new fuel supplies needed in the next few decades.

America has energy and fuel problems of a compelling magnitude. Failure to realize this — the psychology of a "phony crisis" — will only deepen and prolong the potential economic danger.

Appleton appears to be favored just now with a large number of girls looking for places as domestics in families. Many of these hired girls have to go home at different times of the year to assist with work at home. Some of them assist their fathers in cutting logs for market and doing other hard, outdoor work.

The fire bell exercised for the first time in the new tower on Tuesday last. We think that fire alarms will be heard better than ever before.

Don't allow these fine evenings to go by without a first class sleigh-ride, remembering always that John Murphy can easily furnish you with the complete outfit of horse, cutter, bells and robes. You, of course, must supply your own girls, for John is a modest bachelor, you know.

Give oil industry free hand

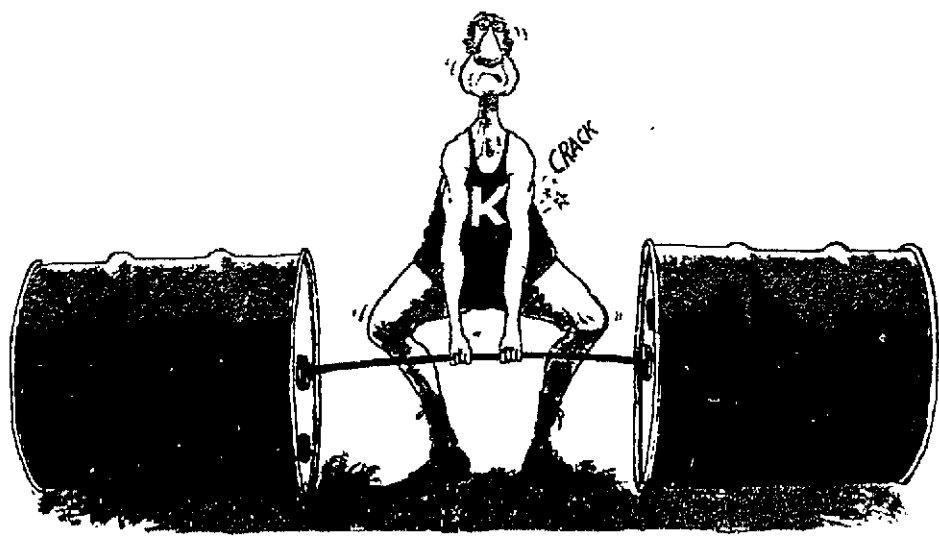

Editor, The Post-Crescent: Congratulations on your excellent editorial on Wednesday, January 31, concerning the bad mouthing of the oil industry by our politicians. I think it shows responsible and independent thinking to not accept the politicians' derogatory remarks about the big oil companies and their excess profits as being the cause of the energy shortage.

You are absolutely right that the only way that we can solve our energy problems is to give the oil industry a free hand to use their profits to find more oil. To get the Federal government into the act would be sheer stupidity because they are incapable of doing the job and we would even have a greater shortage down the road with them involved. One only has to look at the disastrous effects of the wage-price controls and their effect on causing present shortages, along with the attempt last summer to freeze farm prices which, thank God, was abandoned within about a three month period, to realize that our economy is so complicated and has done so well by itself that the Federal government should keep its hands off and let our free enterprise system work out its problems.

County to ask same pay for citizen board members

Citizens appointed to county commissions and boards should get the same per diem pay as county supervisors who serve on those groups, the Outagamie County Board's Personnel Committee has recommended.
 Supv. Marvin Babbitt, personnel committee chairman, told the coordinating committee Tuesday that they will recommend an increase in the per diem to $18 for a half-day meeting and $32 for a full day meeting effective April 16, the same day increased per diems go into effect for the county board.
 At the present time supervisors and citizen members of county groups receive $15 for a half-day meeting and $22 for a full day.
 At the same time, Babbitt said they are recommending the coroner remain on per diem, rather than being placed on salary, and that he also receive the per diem increase.
 There had been some sentiment for putting the coroner on a straight salary, but Babbitt said that would then involve various fringe benefits paid to county employees. The coroner's job is considered part time.
 Babbitt said the personnel committee would be meeting with the judges

Friday to discuss pay for jurors and witnesses. Presently, jurors receive $14 per day and witnesses receive $5 for each appearance.
 The personnel committee also was asked to straighten out a situation involving two guidance center employees and a health center employee.
 John Wylie, chairman of the unified health services board, said that when the guidance center came fully under county control the employees were told they would be retained at their existing salaries. But, he said, the psychiatric social worker was cut more than $700 when she was placed in the county civil service classification and a doctor employed three-quarter time lost his fringe benefits.
 At the health center, Wylie said a secretary was hired at grade seven in a position that called for grade 5.
 In all three cases, Wylie said, the work was handled by Health Center Supt. Eugene Speener. "We were told it was done and now we found out it wasn't," Wylie said.
 The personnel committee was instructed to come in with resolutions that would resolve all three situations.

Freight trains to have boom year

BY LEE LINDER
Associated Press Writer

The energy crisis could make 1974 the best year for freight in railroad history. "I'm not worried about our capacity to grow," says W. Graham Claytor Jr., president of the Southern Railway Co. which is the most profitable in the nation. "I'm worried about a slowdown in business. And that would mean less freight, not more."

Barring that, railroads are expected to be among the chief beneficiaries in the current energy crisis already affecting trucks, cars, planes and ships. As yet, however, there has been no outpouring of new business as yet.

The Association of American Railroads, which is the voice for the 64 major roads and 448 smaller lines, is optimistic that 1974 will top last year's record $14.7 billion in operating revenues — maybe by 15 per cent or more.

Although some see greater potential, railroad men generally agree that a 15 per cent increase in freight traffic can be handled with hoppers, boxcars and gondolas now in service. Increases above that could cause problems, especially in hauling coal and piggyback trailers.

"If there is a substantial shift of traffic from trucks to rails we will need more equipment," says John P. Fishwick, president of the Norfolk and Western, the nation's second largest coal hauler. "If we can't handle it, they will stick to trucks."

Roy L. Hayes, head of Penn Central's trailers and containers department, says "we can increase 15 to 20 per cent in volume with the present trains without materially adding to fuel costs." Then he adds:

"Many people feel that with the energy crisis everybody is clamoring to get on the railroads, and that's not happening yet. Shippers are taking a wait and see attitude. They are checking to see if railroads can do the job."

A survey of major shippers bears him out.

The ability of railroads to meet the challenge hinges on whether freight rate increases will be granted swiftly to offset sharply rising expenses, particularly for diesel fuel; whether delivery of new freight cars — 61,571 were on order Jan. 1 — can be speeded up; and whether government will provide additional fuel to haul additional freight.

Any traffic increase will require more fuel than the railroads consumed last year, which represented 1.7 per cent of all petroleum used in the United States. The federal government already has assured passenger trains 100 per cent of its fuel needs. Freighters are appealing for the same treatment.

"The railroads can effect some fuel economies through conservation practices, and they are," says AAR President Stephen Ailes. "But, unlike the airlines, for example, they cannot substantially reduce schedules and still carry the same amount of business because most rail cars are loaded to capacity in the first place."

It's in coal, long the backbone of the freight business east of the Mississippi and now growing in the West, where railroads hope to make major hauling gains.

Not much, maybe, this year — possibly 25 million tons or 7 per cent more than 1973 — but in greater and greater quantities as new mines are opened in the next few years and science speeds research on more practical ways to burn coal cleaner.

Loss of coal traffic in the 1960s was one of the contributing factors in the bankruptcy of the Penn Central, as well as the Reading, Erie-Lackawanna, Lehigh Valley and Central of New Even so, the railroads handled 70 per cent of the 590 million tons of coal mined in 1973, which made up a fourth of their record national freight tonnage.

Sufficient coal hauling equipment is available for 1974 needs, since hoppers were in surplus last year with 10,000 diverted to grain shipping.

But more will be needed in the last half of this decade, especially if Congress amends the Clean Air Act to permit increased use of dirty, high-sulphur coal, and orders are now being placed

"Given a go-ahead, a lot of people will be surprised how fast this coal business can be revived," says Walter L. Lloyd, assistant director of Penn Central's coal and ore services. "We're looking at the 1975 program right now and we'll need many thousands of new coal cars just to stay even with the business."

So are others among the nation's 24 coal-carrying railroads.

Chessie, the largest coal hauler, has started construction of 2,000 new coal hoppers at a cost of over $33 million and is recalling several thousand of its fleet of 70,000 which had been laid up for lack of loadings—all this because the Federal Energy Administration has urged 25 utilities Chessie serves to switch from oil to coal.

Piggyback is another area where freight traffic expects to quickly expand, may be as much as 20 per cent this year, equipment permitting.

"Large volumes of traffic would be diverted from highways, and we could handle it overnight, if truck firms get the necessary okay from Teamsters labor," Penn Central's Hayes says. "And if the fuel crisis gets more difficult they will have to shift."

For Penn Central, now in bankruptcy reorganization, it takes a judge's approval to order new equipment — either to buy or lease — America's biggest railroad wants at least 575 more cars so it can expand its TrailVan service into Canada and elsewhere.

And when that order is placed it will take a year or longer for delivery because every rail car plant is operating at capacity. Last year they built more than 50,000 of some 88,000 ordered highest in years — and the current backlog of 61,517 awaiting is the biggest since 1966.

So far, though, shippers have just made inquiries about the possibility of switching from trucks to rail, and they appear to be taking a wait and see attitude. Most using the highways want to stay there.

"We wouldn't divert unless we got caught in the crunch," says Edward Maguire of Philco-Ford Corp. "Frankly we're concerned about the railroads. If you check with the shipping public you'll find that there are not enough freight cars to go around. The railroads will tell you they have enough equipment but that's a lot of baloney. You find that out when you ship something out, and it takes too long to get someplace."

Cruise Lewis, vice president-transportation of Burlington Industries, the huge North Carolina textile manufacturer agrees: "Our experience with railroad shipments in the past has not been very good for us, and we are not going to shift any significant amounts of freight unless we really have to."

And other firms that now are heavy in trucks —like Pratt & Whitney Aircraft of East Hartford, Conn., Philip Morris Co. of Richmond, Russell Stover Candies of Kansas City, Dayton Tire and Rubber Co., and nearly all of New York City garment makers —are going to stay on the highway as long as fuel is available.

Crissy dolls prizes to be given away

BY CAPPY DICK

How many hearts are in the picture?

If you count them correctly and send in a neat contest entry, you may become the winner of (A) a Cappy Dick ballpoint pen and (B) a "Beautiful Crissy" doll.

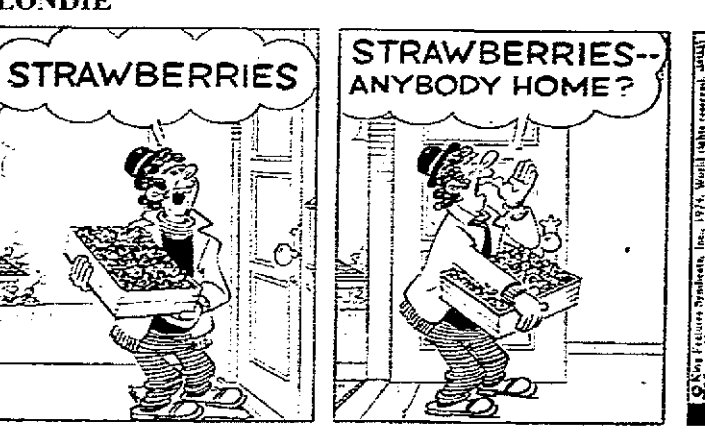

Ten Cappy Dick pens, with his name imprinted on the barrel, will be awarded for the 5 neatest and most original correct contest entries received from boys and girls of the Fox Cities area. These 5 entries, along with pen winners similarly chosen from each of the other cities where this column is published, will be reviewed by the contest judges to find the five that are the neatest and most original of all. These will win the Beautiful Crissy dolls as national grand prizes.

The Crissy dolls are the creation of the Ideal Toy Corporation. The doll is 17 1/2 inches tall and has hair that can be made to "grow" from a short bob to a long sweep. Crissy comes complete with a fashionable costume.

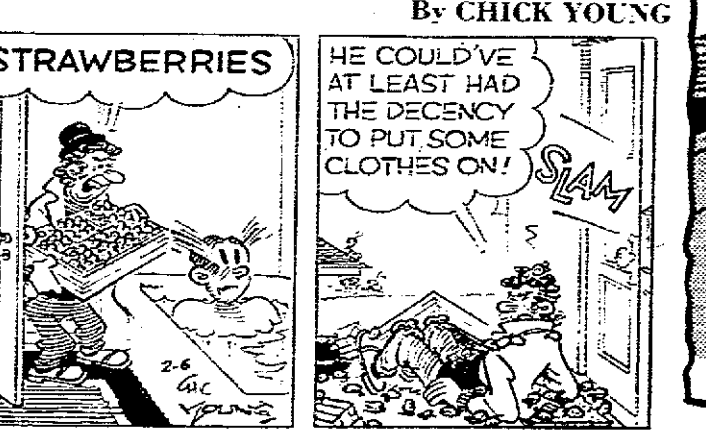

To enter the contest and try for a local award as well as a national prize, clip out the picture of the hearts and carefully count the number of them. Next, paste the picture on a piece of paper. Paint the total number of hearts beneath it, along with your name, age, address and Zip Code number. Color the hearts and otherwise decorate your entry in any neat, original way with paints, crayons or cutouts. Finally address the entry to Cappy Dick's Midweek Crissy Doll Contest at The Post-Crescent and mail it before midnight of day after tomorrow. Names of the prizewinners will be published here and their awards will be sent to them by mail. Judges' decisions will be final. All entries become Cappy Dick's property; none can be returned.

Tomorrow: Two good ideas for young pen-and-ink artists!

Dr. G. C. Thosteson Diabetes and alcohol a dangerous mixture

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am a controlled diabetic — insulin and blood sugar is kept normal — but I realize I do not dare gain weight.

I like to drink beer and am not averse to a drink of liquor if no beer is available.

My question: Is beer, other than calorie-watching, any worse for me than, for example, ice cream with the same number of calories, as long as I keep a balanced diet? Is the beer or liquor any worse than nonalcoholic drinks such as cola? —R.J.C.

I know this is a question frequently asked by diabetics — and I sometimes have a sneaking suspicion that when they write to me, they already have been told to avoid alcohol but they are fishing for an excuse to ignore what they have been told.

Well, I'm sorry but I can't oblige. Alcohol provides calories but they are "empty calories" — no nutrients other than the sheer calories or "heat value." There is some slight nutritional value in beer besides the calories, but not much. Not enough to change the import of my answer.

You write (correctly and knowingly) that you "do not dare" gain weight, so let's suppose you are holding to a daily diet of perhaps 2,000 calories. A drink can represent 200 calories, or perhaps more, and that is about 10 per cent of your daily intake.

That means that the other 90 per cent of your food intake for the day will have to include all the other nutrients you need — your protein, carbohydrate, a little fat, your minerals, vitamins and bulk.

In other words, you have to be careful indeed with the rest of your diet, else that 10 per cent of calories from the alcohol is going to take its toll.

Worse yet, the trouble with letting a patient have a drink too often is interpreted as saying that alcohol isn't going to harm him. So some patients will take two. Or three. And pretty soon the result is disaster.

The risk is compounded because either intoxication or drinking enough to cause vomiting can lead to acidosis, which is serious.

If you are the type of individual who can limit it to one drink, and be accordingly meticulous about getting what you need in the rest of your food allotment for the day, then you may get away with it.

You may. But as far as I'm concerned, you'll have to assume the risk. I can't in good conscience tell you it's okay, because it isn't.

As to cola or other soft drinks, if they are sweetened with sugar, as most of them are, they are not allowable for a diabetic. But the low-calorie drinks, with artificial sweeteners, are tolerated. They, of course, are empty of true nutrients.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Are you for real? Bless your ever-lovin' heart for the statement, "Being a mother is a full time job."

You sound like a marvelous person. Tell your wife she is a fortunate lady.

Police & fire beat

KAUKAUNA — Sue A. Kieffer, 20, 309 Claribel St., Kaukauna, sustained a head bump when the pickup truck in which she was riding went out of control on icy pavement and slid into a ditch on Outagamie County Trunk 00 near County Trunk J about 9:30 p.m. Sunday. Police said the truck was driven by Gary P. Kieffer, 29, same address.

BARBARA J. SCHMIDT, 21, 112 W. Tobacco St., Kaukauna, was taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital after she complained of head bumps and stomach pains from a single-car accident on State 125 near Outagamie County Trunk A, Town of Grand Chute, about 1:40 a.m. Sunday.

She was riding in the auto driven by Gordon L. Dain, 18, same address, which police said was westbound on 125 when it went out of control while being passed by another vehicle. The Dain auto struck a viaduct guard rail.

GREENVILLE — John L. Moder, 27, 832 W. Franklin St., complained of a headache and possible whiplash after a two-truck accident at U.S. 10 and 45 about 4:30 p.m. Saturday.

Police said Moder's pickup truck was eastbound on 10 when it was struck from the rear by a pickup driven by Thomas H. Liebsitz, 20, 1513 N. Elnor St.

IRIS P. ECKES, 51, 230 E. Lindbergh St., complained of a headache and possible whiplash after a two-car accident at State 76 and U.S. 10, Town of Grand Chute, about 7:30 p.m. Saturday.

She was riding in an auto driven by her husband Roman, 55, which police said was stopped at the intersection of 76 when it was struck from behind by the second car, driven by Cynthia Newcombe, 16, 5535 Sandra Drive.

HORTONVILLE — Two persons were taken to New London Community Hospital for treatment of injuries they received in a two-car head-on crash on U.S. 45 between Hortonville and New London about 5:40 p.m. Saturday.

One driver, Randall L. Hedtke, 20, 504 Second St., Menasha, was treated for mouth injuries and released, while the second driver, Mary L. Blank, 20, 223 Embarrass St., Hortonville, was listed in satisfactory condition after treatment for mouth cuts and chest and stomach pains.

Police said Hedtke was driving north on 45, crossed the center line and struck the southbound Blank auto.

diarrhea quite frequently and complains of gurgling sounds and pain. She refuses to go to the doctor. Would it be all right to give her antidiarrhea medicine? —Mrs. M.S.

Under the circumstances I would not approve giving her such medicine until her physician has examined her.

Never take a chance on diabetes. For better understanding of this disease, write to Thosteson in care of The Post-Crescent for a copy of the booklet, "Diabetes — the Sneaky Disease." Aspin film precedes visit to Lawrence

A graphic lesson on how to cut the defense budget by $1 billion is the subject of the film, "Mr. Aspin and the Pentagon," which will be shown Thursday at Lawrence University. Thursday at Lawrence University. The film, originally produced for the Education Television Network's "Bill Moyers' Journal," concerns the efforts of Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., to pare the defense budget. The two free public showings of the film will be at 3 and 8 p.m. in 161 Youngchild Hall.

Aspin's determination to cut the proposed 1974 defense budget inspired Bill Moyers to film the ensuing struggle. Judging the plan as the impossible dream of a young idealistic congressman, Moyers recorded the successful realization of the seemingly unlikely goal.

The film precedes Aspin's visit to Lawrence University next week. During his stay, he will give three public lectures: A two-part series on Congress and the control of the military and a lecture on the energy crisis. The Wisconsin congressman also will lead private seminars for Lawrence students and faculty.

Aspin will give the first half of the two-part lecture on the military at 4 p.m. next Monday and the second half at 8 p.m. Feb. 12. A former assistant professor of economics at Marquette University, Aspin also will discuss the energy crisis at 8 p.m. Feb. 13. All of the lectures will be in Riverview Lounge of the Memorial Union.

Nixon plan rejected by truckers

WASHINGTON (AP) —Negotiators for independent truckers have told their members to keep their rigs off the road after turning down President Nixon's efforts to end their strike.

In rejecting the President's plan to freeze diesel fuel prices and allow a future jump in freight rates the negotiators for the loosely organized truckers said nevertheless they were willing to continue bargaining with the government. However, no new talks were scheduled.

The truckers said Nixon's measures were inadequate because they did not guarantee them sufficient income to meet higher operating costs.

"We recommend the drivers continue to stand down and not return to work," said truckers' spokesman Leonard Fleet in announcing their decision Tuesday night.

W. J. Usery Jr., a special presidential assistant, expressed disappointment but said he would continue efforts to settle the dispute, which is slowly choking off the nation's supply of food and goods.

Fleet said the truckers had "made crystal clear precisely what problems need solution" during the three days of negotiations that began here Sunday with Usery and Pennsylvania Gov. Milton J. Shapp. But, he said, the administration's response Tuesday "deviated markedly" from what the truckers proposed.

The administration has ordered an immediate freeze on diesel fuel prices while the Interstate Commerce Com-

Trucker strike impact spreads

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A trucker was shot and killed on a Delaware road in the shutdown by independent truckers, and officials warned of possible food shortages in some areas if the tie-up continues much longer.

Thousands more workers were laid off due to shortages in affected industries.

Leonard Fleet, attorney and spokesman for the Council of Independent Truckers, Tuesday night urged the drivers to continue their shutdown after President Nixon attempted to halt the strike by freezing the price of diesel fuel.

Spokesmen for independent truckers elsewhere around the country were also dissatisfied with Nixon's move. In Olympia, Wash., J. W. Edwards, head of the Owner-Operator and Independent Drivers Association of America, called the administration move "just more promises."

The dead trucker, identified as Claude Nix, 50, of St. Stevens, S.C., was reportedly shot from a passing car on U.S. 13 in Delaware on Tuesday. Police said they were looking for a couple in a late model auto.

In another shooting incident, the Missouri Highway Patrol reported today that Everett Moore, 37, of Brookfield, Mo., a driver for Churchill Truck Co., suffered a minor wound in Hannibal when a bullet ripped through the windshield of his truck and grazed his right arm. Police said Moore was treated at a hospital and released.

Brick-throwing incidents were reported in Pennsylvania and New Mexico, and truckers in Iowa and New Mexico displayed bullet holes in their rigs.

Authorities escorted some trucks in Ohio and Pennsylvania. Kentucky Gov. Wendell H. Ford activated 1,000 National Guardsmen and said trucks will begin running in convoys today for added protection.

Valley escapes brunt of storm

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The worst winter storm of the season left much of southern Wisconsin paralyzed this morning as men and machines battled gusting winds and 10-foot drifts to tunnel out of more than a foot of new snow.

Traffic was either blocked or moving at snail's pace through much of the state, and dozens of school and business closings were reported.

The storm, which began innocently Monday night with a few light feathery flakes, paused for a few hours early today but was expected to dump at least an additional six inches on southeastern sections of the state.

The Fox Valley area was on the

Hearst granddaughter kidnaped

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) —Police report some progress in the nationwide search for kidnaped newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst. Her father pleaded for word from her abductors.

"We want our daughter back unharmed," Randolph A. Hearst, president and editor of the San Francisco Examiner, said Tuesday.

"If she is released, we will not seek to imprison her abductors. We plead with them to communicate with us direct or through the press."

Miss Hearst, 19-year-old granddaughter of the late William Randolph Hearst, founder of the Hearst newspaper and magazine publishing empire, was kidnaped from her Berkeley apartment Monday night amid a barrage of gunfire.

Her fiancé, Steven A. Weed, was beaten brutally. The young couple were engaged in December and planned to wed in early summer.

Police said there has been no word on

Miss Hearst's whereabouts and no ransom note.

"Some progress is being made, but nothing to lead us to believe it will lead us to an early conclusion," Berkeley Police Lt. Henry C. Sanders said.

John Kelly, assistant special FBI agent in San Francisco, said, "No ransom has been requested as far as we know. The presumption is that they have gone over state lines."

Miss Hearst

Kelly refused to elaborate.

Authorities scoured the tree-lined neighborhood where Miss Hearst lived about one-quarter mile south of the University of California campus. The wall beside her apartment was marked by bullet holes, and the sliding glass front door was shattered.

Police said a young white woman knocked at the apartment Monday night and Weed, 26, opened the door. The young visitor said she had been in an auto accident and asked to use the telephone. Weed said he refused.

Police said two black men then rushed through the door and beat Weed, mauled a neighbor who ran to help and dragged a screaming Miss Hearst to a nearby stolen car. She was thrown into the trunk of the vehicle.

The car was found abandoned a few blocks away. Police said Peter Benenson, 31, owner of the car, was held briefly by the kidnapers but was released unharmed. Police said they had questioned Benenson, but they refused to disclose any details.

Officers said a public file at Sprout Hall, the administration building at the Cal campus where both Miss Hearst and Weed were students, was found opened to her name, address and telephone number. It was one of 30,000 such cards located in a public lobby.

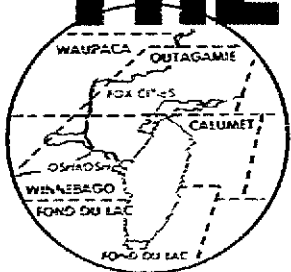

Weed, who holds a bachelor's degree from Princeton University, is a graduate student in philosophy at Cal; Miss Hearst is a sophomore majoring in history.

Weed, badly bruised in the beating, told authorities the apartment apparently was "cased" Saturday night. He said a man and a woman had appeared at the door asking vague questions about whether the apartment was for rent.

In convoy

Scores of semi-trailer trucks travel Interstate 80 near Des Moines, Iowa, Tuesday in convoy for protection against snipers. Iowa Highway Patrol aircraft and squad cars accompanied the eastbound trucks. Officials said 33 trucks began the trans-Iowa journey but their number had increased to 71 by the time the convoy arrived at the Illinois border. Most of the trucks that began the journey carried meat bound for the east coast. (AP Wirephoto)

Japanese held to insure safety of 4 terrorists

KUWAIT (AP) —Terrorists seized the Japanese Embassy in Kuwait today and threatened to execute diplomatic hostages unless four terrorists holed up in Singapore get safe passage to Kuwait.

The terrorists also demanded that three hostages held by the Singapore group be flown to this Persian Gulf sheikdom where other terrorists found haven without facing trial. The Japanese government, in touch by telephone with the terrorists in Kuwait, agreed to the demands.

Japanese officials said the plane would arrive in Singapore from Tokyo at about 11 a.m. Thursday, Singapore time —9:30 p.m. EDT Wednesday. The special Japan Air Lines plane was to carry six pilots and a member of the JAL board of directors, Susumi Saito, a JAL spokesman said.

The Singapore terrorists have been holed up in a ferryboat with their hostages for a week after trying unsuccessfully to blow up a Shell oil refinery there.

It was not known how many terrorists seized the embassy in Kuwait.

Foreign Minister Masayoshi Ohira said the terrorists promised not to harm the hostages at the embassy once the Japanese pledged to send the plane. The Foreign Ministry said the captives included the Japanese ambassador, four other Japanese diplomats and another embassy employee.

But a telex message received from the embassy indicated there may be as many as 16 hostages in all, including Japanese businessmen.

"All 16 are in good health," the message said.

An Associated Press newsman telephoned the embassy, spoke with one of the terrorists, a woman, and then with a man who was apparently the leader of the raiders.

The man, speaking rapidly in Arabic, said the hostages included the ambassador and the first and second secretaries of the embassy.

"All are well, but they will be executed if the Kuwaiti government attempts any interference with our operation," he said.

Kuwaiti troops and policemen surrounded the embassy. The Kuwaiti cabinet met in an emergency session.

The terrorist leader said three guerrilla organization "are jointly responsible" for the Kuwait operation —the Marxist-oriented Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, the Japanese Red Army, and the Organization of the Sons of Palestine.

The terrorist made two demands in the telephone conversation:

—"The Japanese government must send within one hour a plane to Singapore to transport our comrades there to Kuwait along with their hostages and arms."

—"The Kuwaiti government should be wise enough not to interfere. Otherwise we shall start execution operations at the first sign of a Kuwaiti attempt to resort to force against us."

Most controls to be removed

WASHINGTON (AP) —The Nixon administration told Congress today it intends to remove all mandatory wage and price controls after April 30 —except for the health and petroleum sections of the economy.

If Congress agrees, it would mean the bulk of the U.S. economy would be functioning control free for the first time since August of 1971.

Authority for present Phase 4 controls expires April 30.

Cost of Living Council Director John

T. Dunlop, who outlined the administration plans, said consumers could expect some additional increase in prices as a result of lifting of controls.

He said this would result from realignment of some prices that have been held down; the removal of built-in delays on price increases by big companies, and testing of the market by some companies to see how high they can raise prices.

Dunlop implied present controls had outlived their usefulness despite the prospect of continuing inflation.

"Under the economic conditions anticipated in the year ahead," he told the Senate Banking Committee's subcommittee on production and stabilization, "the problems created by a full program of mandatory wage and price controls outweigh the contributions such controls can make to price stability."

Dunlop said the council planned to continue its gradual decontrol of the economy before April 30 and would continue seeking commitments for price restraints and other inflation-reducing actions from industries in exchange for decontrol during this period.

The administration also proposed turning the Cost of Living Council into an umbrella economic agency to watch over inflation and to coordinate economic activities of federal and local government agencies.

Such an agency has been Dunlop's pet project.

Dunlop said the administration wants authority to continue mandatory controls over wages and prices charged in the health industry, including hospital, doctors and dentists, until the government enacts a national health insurance program.

He noted that Congress already has granted separate authority to continue controls over the petroleum industry until February 1975. Those controls are administered by the Federal Energy Office.

Spying on Kissinger denied by Moorer

WASHINGTON (AP) —Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, today denied flatly he ever ordered or encouraged any spying on the diplomatic activities of Henry A. Kissinger.

Kissinger also repeated denials that he had anything to do with material taken in an unauthorized manner from the National Security Council in 1971.

Kissinger, now secretary of state, said that to the best of his knowledge none of the documents published that year by columnist Jack Anderson came from Security Council files.

In a statement given the Senate Armed Services Committee, Moorer said: "These insinuations and allegations sicken me as a man, concern me as a military officer and deeply disturb me as the nation's senior uniformed official."

"I gave no orders, issued no instructions, gave no encouragement — either direct or implied — to anyone to collect or retain in any irregular or unauthorized manner any information, papers or documents from the National Security Council."

In a statement prepared for public release after Moorer began his testimony in closed session before the committee the admiral said he never had any need to spy on Kissinger because he has never failed to support national policies and enjoyed a complete and free flow of information between

Committee Chairman John C. Stennis, D-Miss., has promised that transcripts will be made available after today's executive session after national security information is removed.

The Pentagon has blamed overzealous subordinates for the incidents. They occurred during a period in which the nation's military chiefs reportedly were uneasy because they were not fully informed about the Nixon administration's diplomatic initiatives, especially toward China and the Soviet Union.

The unauthorized transfer of documents was reported by a Navy admiral to a Kissinger aide. A side issue has arisen over whether or not Kissinger knew an investigation was conducted by the White House unit known as the plumbers.

Plumbers members were arrested in the Watergate break-in and have been accused of other illegal activities.

Meanwhile, Sen. Harold Hughes, D-Iowa, an Armed Services committee member, said the decision to close the new hearings to the press and public was not justified.

"We have a decision that demands full public disclosure and not casual cover-up," he said.

Child found after year

MODESTO, Calif. (AP) — "I saw a lot of grown men cry," Chief Sheriff's Deputy Lynn Wood said of a Modesto couple's emotional reunion with their little boy. The boy was discovered safe a year after he was kidnapped.

A tip from a woman who read a newspaper story on the first anniversary of the kidnaping led sheriff's deputies Tuesday to the house five miles from his own home where Tommy Lauver had been kept since his abduction Jan. 20, 1973.

After footprint checks established the boy's identity, he was reunited at the sheriff's office with his parents, Thomas and Frances Lauver.

"Oh honey, don't cry," said Mrs. Lauver, 23, as she cuddled her son, and both broke into tears. "It's the same cry!" she exclaimed to misty-eyed deputies.

Tommy, who will be 2 years old Feb. 20, at first wouldn't go to his father. But he then repeatedly kissed both parents.

"It's one of the happiest days I've had in this business," said Wood, who had coordinated an investigation that was fruitless until now. "It's kind of nice to report good news once in a while."

A Modesto Bee article on the Lauvers' fear of never again

seeing their son sparked the break in the case. A woman who read the article told deputies Monday night that her neighbors, Robert William and Marjorie Coffey, had a toddler who was almost never seen outside.

Officers took custody of the boy, who had been renamed Shawn Keith Coffey, after an investigation showed his footprints bore 26 similarities to those of Tommy Lauver.

Coffey, 30, and his wife, 31, were booked on kidnaping charges.

The boy, his dark brown hair dyed blond, appeared well except for swollen big toes and bruises around his ankles where they may have been bound, Wood said.

Leads had been scant since a man forced his way into Mrs. Lauver's car at a shopping center and stole Tommy at knifepoint. Wood said some officers and Mrs. Lauver clung to the hope the boy had been abducted for a family that couldn't have a child or get one through regular adoption agencies.

Coffey told police his wife was upset over her inability to bear a child. The couple has two adopted children.

"I guess if you work hard enough, long enough, it pays off," Wood said.

Hussein called home by mutiny

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Mutiny by a unit of the Jordanian army forced King Hussein to postpone a trip to the United States and return home early, travelers arriving in Beirut reported today.

The king flew to Amman Tuesday night from London, where he had been on a private visit. He had been scheduled to go on Washington.

The travelers said foreign newsmen in the Jordanian capital had been prohibited from sending reports about the mutiny.

They said the mutineers demonstrated against various Jordanian officials, accusing some of corruption, but repeatedly expressed their loyalty to the king.

The independent Beirut newspaper An Nahar carried a denial of the mutiny report. The denial was attributed to Premier Zaid Rifai of Jordan. But the travelers said the mutiny occurred in the garrison town of Zerqa, 15 miles northeast of Amman, and was led by units of the 40th Armored Brigade, Jordan's elite tank unit.

Hussein had been scheduled to arrive in Washington on Friday. Officials in the American capital said Monday that he was expected to postpone his trip for a week or two because Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger was going to be busy this weekend preparing for the international energy conference President Nixon is holding Feb. 11.

The travelers attributed the mutiny to discontent resulting from soaring inflation and a living allowance that the troops consider inadequate.

The sources gave this account of the mutiny:

Junior officers, noncommissioned officers and privates of the 40th Brigade in trucks and armored personnel carriers tried Sunday morning to enter Zerqa from their camp north of the town. Military police halted them, and a confrontation developed.

Crown Prince Hassan, acting as

regent while Hussein was on a private visit to London, and the army commander, Field Marshal Habis Majali, rushed to Zerqa to meet with the mutineers.

The men refused to talk with the prince and the field marshal and waved them off. But at the same time they shouted demands that the army chief of staff, Lt. Gen. Sherif Zaid bin Shaker, be replaced by Sherif Nasser bin Jamil. Bin Shaker is a cousin of the king, and Bin Jamil is the king's maternal uncle.

Late Sunday, the troops returned to their camp, and an emergency meeting was called at army headquarters. Bin Shaker, who was with Hussein in London, flew back in a special plane Sunday night.

On Monday, the mutinous troops returned to Zerqa, and men from other units joined them. The mutineers increased their demands, calling for the dismissal of Premier Rifai and Court Minister Bahjat Talhouini, Rifai's father-in-law. They accused them and Bin Shaker of corruption.

Last November, all civil servants were given a cost of living allowance equivalent to 10 per cent of their pay. The armed forces expected the same thing, but their allowance was not approved until January. Then it was set at $3.10 a month for privates and $15.50 to $31 for officers, far less than 10 per cent of their pay.

Mrs. Alioto vanished to punish busy husband

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Angelina Alioto says she felt neglected by her candidate-husband, Mayor Joseph L. Alioto, so she took off alone on an 18day religious pilgrimage to punish him.

"I think my family needed a little punishment," the petite 58-year-old grandmother told newsmen at her Presidio Heights home Tuesday after being reunited with the mayor.

Mrs. Alioto, her blonde hair piled high, said she became jealous of the mayor's lack of attention during an Italian-American golf tournament dinner honoring Alioto in Palm Springs Jan. 18. She attended the dinner with her son, Lawrence, and his wife, Ann.

"We felt we were stepchildren that night. We were completely ignored. I thought we were an asset. He was trying to hide us," she said.

"Then he left that evening and came back to San Francisco and left me with my son and daughter-in-law, who were supposed to be on their second honeymoon.

"He should have made me come back with him or stayed with me. So it was pure jealousy. It left me with anguish and in my anguish I decided to take off."

She said she left La Siesta Villas, an exclusive $100-a-day hotel, and spent the next 18 days visiting 14 California missions from San Diego to Santa Cruz. After she heard a radio report Monday that she had disappeared, she phoned Alioto.

In a question-and-answer session, Mrs. Alioto described the problems of a political marriage: being at home alone "sometimes 25 or 27 nights out of a month," never being asked about major decisions in your husband's career and not being told the whole truth.

Dean seeks to avoid law license revocation

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — John W. Dean III, president Nixon's official lawyer for nearly three years, asked a three-judge panel today to suspend him rather than revoke his license to practice law.

The Virginia State Bar, which had charged Dean with violating his ethics as a lawyer, did not demand disbarment, asking the judges only to take "appropriate disciplinary action."

Thomas Mains, representing Dean, noted that the court has a wide range of actions it can take against Dean, who has pleaded guilty to a felony. The options include a simple reprimand, suspension or disbarment.

"We cannot seriously contend that a reprimand is in order," Mains said.

But he said that the final chapter in the Watergate scandal has not been written and that "it is our feeling that information will be largely mitigating in nature as far as Mr. Dean is concerned."

"We ask the court to consider suspending Dean's license until further order of the court," Mains said.

The only evidence introduced by Commonwealth Atty. William Cowhig was Dean's guilty plea last October to conspiring to obstruct justice and defraud the United States and Dean's testimony before the Senate Watergate committee.

The bar association charged that Dean "while serving as counsel to the President of the United States from July 1970 through mid-April 1973 violated the canons of ethics by engaging in conduct that was prejudicial to and in obstruction of the administration of justice."

He is responsible for the foundry division, metallurgy, melting, foundry inspection and foundry research and development. Gabler joined the company in 1966 working on special projects in foundry research and development. He holds a doctorate in engineering from the Technical University of Aachen, Germany.

In previous years both men have been recipients of the Beatrice Foods President's Honor Award.

Harry Weaver, vice president and director of staff engineering, continues his responsibility for plant engineering, maintenance, building and grounds. Controller Harold Wolf will continue to be responsible for accounting and auditing, data processing and the Credit department.

President George Schenck continues as chief executive officer of the company which involves overall control and responsibility for effective operation. BIW is a division of Beatrice Foods Co., headquartered in Chicago.

Snow closes schools in Calumet County

Calumet County was hit the hardest during last night's snowstorm, resulting in the closing of schools in the district.

The bus services that take care of the Chilton, Stockbridge, New Holstein and Hilbert and Brillion school systems were inoperative this morning as a result of the drifts which had piled up on the highways and roads.

Other school systems in the area are operating, but administrators were watching the snowfall carefully, hoping it wouldn't build up before the school day was over.

According to the U.S. Weather Bureau in Green Bay, however, there were heavy snow warnings again for today. Accumulations of new snow were predicted up to six inches, which would be dumped on top of the existing mounds of snow.

This, the weatherman predicted, would be worsened by strong winds, drifting and blowing, resulting in the closing off of secondary roads.

Schools that remained open as of this morning included Waupaca, Clintonville, Manawa, Marion, Weyauwega, New London, Seymour, Wittenberg-Birnbaumwood, and Tigerton.

All communities have been informed, however, that the highway commissioners have sent out the necessary equipment to clean off the roads as much as possible.

If the weatherman in Green Bay is right in his prediction, Thursday and Friday will be cold, possibly only as high as 15 degrees, but there won't be snow.

Firm chosen to totally reassess New London

NEW LONDON — The City Council's special revaluation committee said Tuesday that it has chosen a firm to totally reassess the city this year and will sign contracts after the next council meeting.

Ald. James Mullarkey, committee chairman, said the firm, which he didn't name, has agreed to have the project completed by Nov. 1 when the board of review meets. He said a firm price would be set after this week's committee meeting.

In other business, the council gave the local chamber of commerce permission to use Hatten and Riverside parks for a community festival June 28-30, after aldermen mentioned citizens' objections to the use of Pfeiffer Park. The festival will include a carnival, refreshments, contests, and other entertainment.

An ordinance which would annex 10 lots near the corner of Evergreen and Algoma streets if it is passed Feb. 19, was introduced. Initiation of annexation of the land which is now in the Town of Horton, came after residents petitioned last fall.

Final plans and specifications for the E. North Water Street sanitary sewer extension were approved, and Public Works Director Robert Martin said contracts for the project, which will serve a new industry, should be awarded March 19. He said property owners have waived their rights to public hearings on the assessments.

The possible extension of the Montgomery Street sanitary sewer, which is presently under construction, has been referred back to New London Industrial Opportunities. Martin said that the sewer would cut through a 23-foot knoll in the Lyons Industrial Park, raising per-foot costs from $9.50 to $20. He also said proposed work at Curwood Inc., on land it recently bought from the park, would change the road heights, and could jeopardize federal aids.

"We are in hot pursuit" of federal aids, and contracts can't be awarded until the government approves plans for the extension, he said. A delay in the project could save the city money if aids are obtained.

Aldermen also confirmed the appointment of Jerome Freiburger, a former alderman, to the police and fire commission to replace Kenneth Mearing, who has resigned for health reasons.

Trio held in Oshkosh jail in rape case

OSHKOSH — Three persons affiliated with the D.C. Eagles motorcycle gang, including one who was a defendant in a recent Outagamie County rape case, were charged Tuesday with offenses relating to the Nov. 23 rape of a 26-year-old woman at her Oshkosh residence.

The defendants, arrested Sunday afternoon at their route 2, Berlin, address, include two men, Denise D. Stumpner and James P. Bloy, ages 26 and 21, and one woman, Cindy Carpenter, 19.

Stumpner is charged with rape, Bloy with aiding and abetting rape and Miss Carpenter with false imprisonment.

Bloy, formerly of Appleton, had been found guilty of contributing to the delinquency of a minor in connection with the abduction and rape of two 15-year-old Appleton girls in and near Little Chute last Feb. 25.

All three defendants are confined to the Winnebago County jail, with the two men under $5,000 bond each and the woman under $200 bond. Dist. Atty. Leo Mack said the three have requested the services of a Milwaukee attorney, Alan Eisenberg Jr., who defended the 13 gang members during their court proceedings in Appleton.

According to court records, the victim, who cannot be identified, was tied, gagged, beaten, forced to perform an unnatural sex act with one of the men and raped during the incident, which took place about 3:30 a.m.

The victim reportedly was sleeping when the three defendants entered her bedroom, although there was no indication of whether they forced their way into the residence.

After being threatened with a beating, the victim allegedly was forced to have sexual relations with Stumpner, afterward performing the unnatural sex act with him.

Carpenter reportedly tied her hands and feet and gagged her, while Bloy then beat her with a blackjack. The victim later required medical treatment.

Woehler, judges to meet about arrearages policy

Outagamie County Executive Alvin Woehler has scheduled a meeting Friday noon with the county's judges to discuss the practice of diverting 25 per cent of some family support arrearage collections to county coffers.

The practice, implemented by the county's judges, was criticized last week by County Welfare Director James Stampp, who claimed the practice was causing budgetary problems in his department.

He told the welfare board Monday afternoon that it was "rather foolish for judges to involve themselves in an administrative practice when they didn't even know what they were doing."

"It's costing the county money on this administrative nonsense," he contended.

The judges have defended the practice, although County Judge R. Thomas Cane has agreed to discontinue it until a clarification is made.

Stampp turned the matter over to Woehler last month, and Woehler conferred briefly with Cane and County Judge Urban P. Van Susteren before scheduling the luncheon meeting at the Appleton Elks Club Friday.

Woehler said the question that will be probed is the legality of the practice. He said the concept is to skim off 25 per cent of the arrearages collected before dividing the remainder between the state and federal governments, and the county, which had originally paid the welfare while the estranged man was failing to make support payments.

Welfare checks are comprised of 75 per cent state and federal money and 25 per cent county.

Under the practice the county would receive nearly 45 per cent of the arrearage money collected. The money goes to the treasurer's office and the county general fund, but for administrative purposes is credited to the family court commissioner's office as the collector.

Woehler noted that private collection agencies make a charge for collecting money so it seems logical that the county could do the same.

Woehler said he also intended to discuss with the judges the new opinion by the attorney general that a judge can't abdicate his authority for appointing defense counsels for indigent defendants. The ruling raises legal questions about the public defender system.

On the arrearages diversion, Stampp told the welfare board the move provided no additional revenues for the county, but only added administrative costs. He said it also endangered maintenance of accurate arrearages records.

He complained that he hadn't been consulted on the practice and said it was discovered during a routine check of social services department books, which were out of balance.

He blamed Van Susteren for instigating the practice, although he said he could not prove Van Susteren had initiated it.

County Supv. Herman Ripp, a welfare board member, said the board should await taking action until it heard from Woehler.

In other action, the board directed Stampp to add information to the applications for aid to families with dependent children, including where the recipients may be working, the amount of the wages, miles to and from work, car insurance costs and car payments, and name and address of landlord.

Some Fox Valley area schools have felt the full brunt of the Victoria strain of flu in recent days, but none has closed because of the foul-weather bug. Instead, heavy snows put a crimp in enrollment today, causing many schools to shut down because buses could not navigate.

Apparently hardest hit by the flu were schools in Brillion, where absenteeism had run as high as 16 per cent in the high school and 17 per cent in the grade schools; and Seymour, where 60 out of 600 senior high school students were absent because of flu and other illnesses and 120 of 580 junior high schoolers were home sick. Grade school absenteeism in Seymour grade schools also was higher than normal, but schools in that community were open today.

Brillion schools were closed today for the first time in the 1973-74 school year by heavy snow. But chances are classes may have been called off anyway because of the great number of sick children. Normal absenteeism is around 5 per cent, school officials said, but toward the end of last week, the figure moved to 6 and 8 per cent.

Monday it reached 16 per cent in the high school and 17 per cent in the grade schools. The high school rate of absences remained at 16 per cent

Tuesday, but dropped to 14 per cent in the grade schools.

In actual people counts, those figures amounted to 84 high schoolers out with the flu on Tuesday and 55 grade school pupils.

All schools in Chilton are closed today, but only because the snow blocked roads and prevented travel by bus. There has been no appreciative decline in enrollment because of the flu or other illnesses over the last week, school officials reported.

Hilbert schools opened for business this morning — the district-owned buses which serve Sherwood, St. John and Hilbert were running — but there were a number of absences. Fifty seven students were absent Tuesday in the public school and some students went home sick during the day. Eight of 127 pupils in the six grades at St. Mary Catholic School in Hilbert were sick Tuesday.

No cases of flu were reported at Trinity Lutheran School south of Potter on Tuesday, but only pupils from Hilbert showed up today. Buses bringing pupils from Chilton and Brillion were not running because of the snow. With two-thirds of the students absent, school was called off there today.

Fifteen pupils were absent Tuesday at Harrison School in Sherwood, but an official said the highest absenteeism due to flu occurred last week.

Highway rerouting hits snag

By FERN SMITH
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

WAUPACA — The rerouting of State 49, 22 and 54 around the downtown area planned for this summer received a setback Tuesday, as the council received an updated report on the estimated cost.

Ald. Vernon Johnson, 5th Ward, chairman of the board of public works, told aldermen that the state Highway Commission would not change the routings, as requested by the city, unless the intersection at Royalton and Churchill streets was altered to handle the traffic.

"The estimated cost of widening Royalton Street, east of the intersection, to a four-lane highway as far as Harriet Street, with bituminous surfacing, storm sewer and curb and gutter would cost at minimum $66,000, or possibly as high as $80,000 with no financial help from the state," Johnson said. "The city requested the change and consequently, the state sets the regulations but will pay no part of the cost."

If the four lane highway was extended to Harding Street and sewer line installed while the street is open, the cost could run as high as $150,000, he continued. This would require a public hearing and property owners in that area are unlikely to approve such a venture, he said.

Cost could be trimmed for the intersection revamping by installing only the conduit for traffic lights, cutting out $15,000; but this would have to be spent possibly within another year, Johnson continued noting; It would be better to do it now.

No cost was given on the acquisition of extra land at the intersection, or the changing of driveways on the north side of the intersection. Nor have estimated costs been figured for altering the Harrison and Fulton streets intersection at the west end of the city to allow for rerouting State 49 west to the U.S. 10 beltline.

The State Highway Commission indicated in earlier meetings that some change would be required here, but no specific state plan has been received by the city.

"It seems to me that all we would be doing by changing the routes at this time would be taking the problem from the west side of town and giving it to the east side of the city", Johnson concluded. "The council can make its decision when all of the facts are in."

Ald. James Stephens, 2nd, said, "I have observed the present increased traffic on Churchill Street at various times of the day recently and it seems that Churchill has enough problems without creating more."

A number of aldermen expressed the view that it might be better to wait, make no changes, since the state has said that ultimately the state routes will be established farther east of the city. Such plans have been programmed for 1990.

Ald. Edsile Huntton, 1st, long time proponent of the rerouting of the state routes off Fulton Street and out of the city's downtown area, stood pat.

Do you want to go to one way streets downtown? Huntton asked. If we don't do this the state will demand it. The businesses along Main Street don't want one way traffic, or lateral parking.

Johnson said, It was an AAA study which suggested one way streets in the downtown area — not the state. We are not rerouting the traffic, if we change the routes, we are only rerouting the highways...there is no guarantee.

Bank seeks rezoning of property in King

WAUPACA — M. G. Hales, president of the Farmers State Bank, has petitioned the Waupaca County Zoning Committee for rezoning of a parcel of land which the bank owns in King, Town of Farmington, from residential to general commercial, so it can be used for a commercial bank.

A hearing has been set for 10 a.m. Feb. 26 in the courthouse.

The Department of Natural Resources, the Town of Farmington and 26 property owners located within 300 feet of the property have been notified of the hearing by Zoning Administrator David Rosenfeldt.

The parcel contains two 50-foot lots, approximately 20,000 square feet, located on State 22, and within 750 feet of other commercial establishments, including a boat livery, garage, tavern, small-engine repair shop, restaurant and grocery.

Rezoning is the responsibility of the county zoning committee, because it falls within the 1,000 feet from public water provision.

Rezoning is the last hurdle for the Farmers State Bank of Manawa to set up a branch bank in King. Granted approval to establish a branch bank by the Commission of Banking and the Banking Review Board, Hales experienced some delay in receiving approval from the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., when the two local banks contested the establishment of the proposed branch. The FDIC gave its approval Jan. 25.

Hales has an option on a building owned by Arthur Hardy at State 22 and Park Lane, the property for which he is now requesting rezoning.

If the zoning change is granted the bank will begin operation by July 25. The intervening period would be used for remodeling the structure.

The branch bank would serve a trade area of approximately 6,400 people, including the residents and staff at the Grand Army Home and residents of the unincorporated village of Kind and the Chain O' Lakes. According to Hales, the bank would be on a paying basis within 1 1/2 years. He predicted that the branch would have $3 million in deposits within two years.

Clintonville girl gets state FHA secretary job

CLINTONVILLE — Judy Danke, daughter of Mrs. Audrey Danke, 90 Sixth St., was named the state secretary of the Future Homemakers of America-Hero (FHA-HERO) executive committee of Wisconsin and took her office at a state meeting held at La Crosse at Viterbo College on Jan. 31-Feb. 2.

The main purpose of this meeting was to plan the state conference which will be held in June at Green Lake.

At present, Miss Danke is president of the local FHA chapter and has held the office of secretary at the local level. She is a senior at Clintonville High School.

While fulfilling her duties of this office, Miss Danke will be responsible for state correspondence, minutes from executive meetings, and participating at the state conference.

Beverly Wruck is the local chapter adviser and will assist Miss Danke with her responsibilities.

Flu cuts attendance in area schools

Fifteen pupils were absent Tuesday at Harrison School in Sherwood, but an official said the highest absenteeism due to flu occurred last week.

One teacher at St. John-Sacred Heart School is home sick with the flu in Sherwood and 12 pupils were absent

Tuesday, 20 on Monday. In the primary grades of the St. John School, 15 of the 93 pupils were reported ill Tuesday and some were sent home during the day because they developed symptoms of the flu. Eighteen students were missing on Monday.

Stockbridge public schools and St. Mary Elementary School are closed today because of the snow. Absences earlier in the week were said to be no higher than usual for this time of year.

The flu caused no real problems for pupils in Weyauwega and Tigerton, where the bug apparently has not hit. But Wittenberg-Birnbaumwood schools reported 20 per cent of the high school enrollment sick with the flu and nine out of 47 pupils in the grade school were ill.

Cases of the flu have increased this past week in Waupaca County schools, but not alarmingly, according to the county health nurse. Mostly junior high school age pupils are being affected, she said.

Waupaca city school absences were up about 3 per cent over normal, an official said, but the pattern seems to be a three-day absence per case of flu. That indicates to officials that the flu is "the plain, old, ordinary variety, not anything spectacular like Victoria." The hospital in Waupaca reported treating no cases of flu, but strep throat still was causing some difficulties.

About 15 to 20 per cent of the total enrollment in Clintonville schools were down with the flu and other illnesses on Monday and Tuesday. That's about 6 per cent higher than normal, but schools haven't been closed because of it. The superintendent said absenteeism would have to run around 40 per cent before it could be considered an epidemic and then schools would be shut down.

Elementary schools in New London were not badly hit by the flu this week, but absences were about twice the normal amount in the senior high school, where about 25 pupils of the 700 enrollment were absent Tuesday. The junior high has not been hit badly, either, but from one to three staff members have been sick for each of the last three weeks. For that same period, 30-35 junior high pupils have been reported sick in bed each day. The normal daily absenteeism is about 13 or 20 out of 717.

Marion grade school reported 46 of its 436 pupils sick on Monday, a few more on Tuesday. Fifty-two out of 188 were ill in the junior high Tuesday and 42 of the 345 senior high school students were absent.

The Little Wolf School District in Manawa reported about a 9 per cent rate of absenteeism, 4 per cent above normal. Teachers have been hit sporadically, but none as sick Tuesday at the elementary schools, although several in other schools were ill. Ten per cent of the student body at St. John Lutheran School was sick, but no faculty members were absent.

Calumet County health council to lead fight against federal bill

BY HAZEL THIEL

Post-Crescent correspondent

CHILTON — The Calumet County Health Resource Council will voice its opposition to a federal bill that would eliminate comprehensive health planning organizations at the local level by dividing areas into federal districts. The bill is HR10253, the Roy Rogers, Hastings Bill.

The council went on record against the proposed legislation at a meeting Monday night in Chilton and will express its opposition to the meeting of the area-wide Lake Winnebago health planning organization scheduled for tonight at Oshkosh.

The Calumet County unit will recommend that other counties and agencies take a unified stand opposing the bill and make their opinion known to federal representatives and to Gov. Patrick Lucey, who will attend hearings on the legislation in Washington later this month.

The council, which is now part of an eight-county organization with a 440,000 population said that under the bill it would be forced into a 17-county northeastern district with a maximum of 30 persons on a board and without assurance that Calumet County would have a representative.

It was the opinion of the group that it did not want to be penalized by letting the federal government do the job because other states have not organized on the local level as Wisconsin has done.

The meeting was conducted by vice chairman Mrs. Elizabeth Behnke, R.N. of Chilton in the absence of Dr. Raymond Plue DVM. Other members on the council are Mrs. Anton Rank, secretary; Mrs. Paul Ecker, treasurer and Mrs. Wilma Springer, Appleton delegate-at-large.

Representing the Lake Winnebago area health planning organization are Mrs. Behnke, Dr. Plue, Fred Mitten-dorf, Mrs. Springer and Mrs. Ecker.

In other business, Vern Gonzo, medical technologist at Calumet Memorial Hospital and a member of the Calumet County emergency medical service committee, reported on the area-wide ambulance service. Calumet is served by ambulances at Chilton, Brillion and Kiel.

Gonzo also reported that signs have been ordered to direct persons to Calumet Memorial Hospital in Chilton.

At Gonzo's suggestion the council agreed to hold future meetings jointly with the Calumet County Highway Safety Commission in order to coordinate activities.

It was announced that Mrs. Donald Schnell, Forest Junction, has been named to the area hospital advisory committee. Three persons nominated to the comprehensive health services advisory committee are Florence Woelfel, Chilton, Rev. Kenneth Frozema, St. John, and Mrs. Behnke. Nominees for the developmental disabilities advisory committee on mental health, alcoholism and drug abuse are Mrs. Springer, Mrs. Ezra Kuer and Dean Wallace, Brillion and Robert Hipke, Chilton.

The need for adult education on venereal disease was discussed by the council. Civic organizations will be urged to promote education through films and materials available from the county nurses' office.

Health needs survey gets high response

About 35 per cent of the Calumet County health survey's needs pamphlets have been returned to the Lake Winnebago area health planning organization. Oshkosh, according to Mrs. Paul Ecker, stockbridge. She also told the Calumet County Health Resource Council Monday at Chilton that this is the highest percentage returned by any survey in the state.

Of the 1,935 surveys mailed to 25 per cent of the county households, 677 were returned. Appleton, with 15 per cent returns, had the highest rate. Mrs. Ecker said her committee was pleased with the countywide cooperation.

The survey will be used by Waushara County, which is planning a similar survey to determine health facility needs for future planning. It also has been used in connection with federal grant applications.

Mrs. Ecker reported on the status of the survey last week to the Calumet County Health Committee of the county board, composed of Merlin Weiting, Gilbert Hipke, Harold Schmitz, Mrs. Wilmer Springer and Donald Duchow.

The results of the survey are being computerized by University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh students. They will be evaluated by the health committee and released to the public in about two months, said Mrs. Ecker.

Clintonville board of education accepts 2 teacher resignations

BY MILDRED LAIB
Post-Crescent staff writer

CLINTONVILLE — Two teacher resignations were accepted by the board of education Monday night at its meeting at the Longfellow School.

Resigning at the end of the school year are Mrs. Beatrice Kluth, who teaches fourth grade, and Mrs. Muriel Brennenstuhl, who teaches fifth grade.

A motion was approved that the board write to the two teachers, thanking them for their long years of service and expressing appreciation for their loyalty to the district.

Another motion was passed that letters of appreciation for their many years of service be sent to Mrs. Marie Below, who teaches sixth grade, and Mrs. Gertrude Fox, who teaches second grade, who will have reached mandatory retirement age before the next school year.

A letter from the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) relative to diverting water from the North Pigeon River for educational experimental purposes was noted. In response to the DNR's request for additional information necessary to proceed with the application, the board agreed that an extension of deferral until a later date should be sought.

Discussion items by the board included standards for school district classification for aids under Statute 121.08, which was discussed briefly.

— Guidance Director Peter Feira reported on progress made to comply with Chapter 89 which requires special programs for exceptional children between the ages of three and 21.

— It was reported that absence was up in most schools because of the flu. Supt. V. J. Wadleigh reported that 310 students were absent on Monday, or about 15 to 20 per cent of the enrollment. He said that absenteeism has to run about 40 per cent before it is declared an epidemic stage and before schools would close.

— Wadleigh reported that the bus garage and site will be removed from the tax roll in compliance with Judge

James Levi's decision in Circuit Court, because it is being used for school purposes as was originally intended. It is not being used for profit.

— Robert Seaman, chairman of the long-range planning committee, announced that the first meeting of this committee will be at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the junior high cafeteria.

— Wadleigh indicated that Bill 178A calling for from one to three hours per week released time for religious instruction has been signed. He plans to meet with the clergymen of the district in the near future in this regard.

About 60 teachers, representing the Clintonville Education Association, were in attendance at the regular board meeting. However, nothing was mentioned in regard to negotiations at the regular board meeting.

Following the regular meeting, the board adjourned to executive session to discuss negotiations and to hear Thomas Fischer, senior high principal, evaluate all high school teaching personnel.

Zoning committee gets motion to annex farmland to Chilton

BY ALICE CONNORS
Post-Crescent correspondent

CHILTON — The City Council Tuesday night referred a petition for annexation of a parcel of land owned by Steege Farms Inc. and Leo Vogt to the planning and zoning committee for further study.

Donald Steege appeared before the council and the petition for the request was read along with a petition asking for abandonment of a proposed road on the western edge of that property. Vogt also was on the agenda to discuss annexation of his land, but did not ap-tee that traffic patterns will change, if we do go through with it, he said.

The board of public works, made no full recommendation to the council. The council is not ready to act until all of the facts are in. No one seemed certain when all of the facts would become available.

The council petitioned the State to reroute State highways around the city in response to citizens requests more than a year ago. The heavy truck traffic was, they claimed, a threat to safety of children at the school, congested downtown traffic and the noise of trucks through the night of nuisance.

Rerouting of State 22 and 54 east-bound from the U.S. 10—State 49, then over Churchill Street to Royalton Street and continuing over the established state routes was granted. State 49 south bound was rerouted from Hanium and Pulten Streets west to U.S. 10 — State 54 and 22 either change and continuing on U.S. 10 betline.

Waupaca freight issue considered

WAUPACA — Area shippers and interested citizens will state their reasons for wanting the local Soo Line freight depot and freight agent continued at a public hearing at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday in the courthouse.

Conducting the hearing will be the Public Service Commission which prevailed upon the Soo Line Railroad to continue the freight depot and the method of handling local freight shipments until all the facts could be presented in an area hearing. On Jan. 2, the Soo Line Railroad issued an order that, effective Jan. 13, the local freight depot would be closed and a traveling agent would serve shippers.

Local shippers appealed to the railroad, state officials and hired counsel to oppose the move. The railroad reversed its order and the Public Service Commission set up the hearing.

When the protest was made, local shippers cited that total tonnage shipped out of Waupaca and brought in by rail was on the increase; shipment by truck was uncertain in the light of real and threatened gasoline shortages; the government was urging beefing up the railroads in the present energy shortages; and there was enough business to justify the local freight depot and the daily services of a local freight agent.

The City of Waupaca, the Industrial Development Corp. and the area chamber of commerce joined forces with the local shippers to cite to both the railroad and the Public Service Commission that closing the depot and having a traveling freight agent handle shipments would be a serious threat to the economy of the area.

The Waupaca Foundry, the largest single user of the freight facilities shipping an average of 60 carloads out-bound per month and 40 to 50 carloads inbound per month, retained Richard E. Johnson as attorney. "There is sufficient revenue to support the freight depot and a full time freight agent. The railroad is a public utility and owes the public this kind of service. The Soo Line should not be allowed to economize at the expense of our local citizens," said Johnson.

Other sizable shippers asking for continuation of both services include: Moore-O-Matic, William Feathers and Moore Implement.

All of them stress the importancer of every person who feels that closing the freight depot and substituting a traveling agent for a full-time agent would affect the community attending the hearing Tuesday. They will be given the opportunity to register their opposition by a signed statement and those who wish to express their views will be given time to do so.

The Soo Line maintains that it is not curtailing service but coordinating its operation; and that a traveling agent will be in daily contact with local shippers.

Finance panel airs supplemental budget

MADISON, Wis. (AP) —Gov. Patrick J. Lucey's proposed $18.5 million minibudget and its built-in $28 million "cookie jar" got its first close scrutiny Tuesday from members of the legislature.

The 14-man Joint Finance Committee listened to representatives of several state agencies whose budgets are up for review.

Lucey's budget calls for a planned surplus of $53.8 million. He has asked the legislature to set aside $27.7 million as an economic buffer to protect the state against what he calls an "uncertain economic period ahead."

Atty. Gen. Robert Warren, the state's top Republican office holder, told the committee he agrees with the Democratic governor's recommendation that the Justice Department receive $261,000 extra for the second year of the 1973-75 biennium.

The department would receive $144,900 to continue funding anti-fraud projects in Milwaukee, $65,200 in state funds to supplement $155,800 in federal funds for the department's 14-man "organized crime task force" and $50,000 to beef up its fund for special legal services.

Department of Agriculture officials defended their request for $68,100, including funds to inspect milk quality.

They said $35,400 would go to salaries for 33 state inspectors, about half of which are needed to maintain Grade A milk standards; $22,000 would help support state programs to control livestock disease and $10,700 for 13 new staff positions.

The Department of Regulation and Licensing, headed by Virginia Hart, would receive $19,100 to pay the salary of an administrative assistant, and his two attorneys to investigate complaints filed with state regulatory boards.

Mrs. Hart said the positions are designed to comply with court decisions that regulatory boards cannot act both as investigator and judge.

The state's new bingo board would receive $63.9 million less than the legislature authorized when it created the panel.

Lucey insists the board operate with state funds rather than license fees. Fees collected by the board would go to the state's general fund.

The State Bicentennial Commission, to receive $76,000, was asked whether the money pays salaries or matches federal grants.

A commission representative said jobs created by the committee would end after bicentennial activities concluded.

State appropriations would be used to lure $265,000 in federal funds, the spokesman insisted.

The commission has received $143,000 in federal funds and gifts.

Obscenity guidelines amended

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — The State Supreme Court has amended its pornography guidelines, prompting a dissenting justice to accuse the court of creating a double standard for obscenity.

Chief Justice E. Harold Hallows objected to a Tuesday ruling which reaffirmed an earlier decision but creates a special category for printed matter designed for special types of readers.

The court denied a plea for rehearing by Joseph Chobot, a Milwaukee book dealer accused of selling obscene materials.

In its denial, the court said that if the material in question "is aimed at a particular deviant group rather than the average person, then such material should be judged upon its impact upon that deviant group."

This, the court said, would be in agreement with recent U.S. Supreme Court rulings.

Chobot had contended the original decision excluded material aimed at a deviant group.

In a dissent, Hallows said Wisconsin should not have two standards for obscenity.

"I see no reason why a sexually deviant group should have its own standard of obscenity and be allowed to buy material which the average man cannot," Hallows said.

He was joined in the dissent by Justice Robert W. Hansen.

Blank check budget for ethics board rejected

MADISON — The joint finance committee responded coolly Tuesday to a request of the new state government ethics board for a "sum sufficient" fund to cover costly investigations that may confront it.

After half an hour of lively commentary and interrogation by Republicans and Democrats, Mrs. Henry Lardy of Madison, vice chairman of the new agency, was asked to return with a request for a definite sum to cover such emergency needs.

Rep. George Molinaro of Kenosha, dean of the Legislature's Democrats, bristled as he heard the phrase "sum sufficient" and said he translated it into "blank check" and that he has resisted such proposals during the whole of his long legislative career.

Mrs. Lardy said the board has no special investigations in mind, but felt that in an emergency it should be empowered to employ temporary assistants such as legal counsel, rather than asking for a large permanent staff of employees who may not be needed.

Mrs. Lardy agreed to consult her colleagues of the board and to work out a definite sum as a request to cover contingency needs. Molinaro with a smile, advised her against "making it too small." He said he meant only to remind the board that it is the duty of the legislature to spend public money with prudence and for demonstrated need.

Mrs. Lardy appeared startled by the vigor of the interrogation that greeted her and the reference to the possible expenditure of huge sums. She said the board, headed by Thomas Smith, president of Lawrence University, had in mind a modest fund and that it would be unlikely to spend significantly during the rest of this year because the ethics act for the most part won't take effect until January.

The board now has a small staff. It was created late last year when Gov. Lucey asserted that he would refuse to approve pay raises for the legislature without the accompaniment of a code of ethics.

Successors sought for two Democratic party leaders

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent staff writer

MADISON — Democratic candidates will run their campaigns for election and re-election in the fall in collaboration with a new team of managers in charge of the Democratic party apparatus.

Chairman William Gerrard of LaCrosse, Lucey's personal choice for the party chairmanship after he was elected governor four years ago and re-elected without visible objection at the party's state convention a year ago, is preparing an announcement of his resignation for what he will describe as pressing personal reasons, according to informed party sources.

Gerrard had hinted several times lately that he is considering retirement, a fact which last week led to the abrupt departure of the second key operative at the state party headquarters.

Del Bono, headquarters manager and party executive director, disclosed that he has accepted an appointment as manager and lobbyist for the Wisconsin Chiropractic Association.

Qualified party workers regard Mrs. Marge Pattison, long-time vice chairman of the state Democratic committee, as the leading choice for the chairmanship. She would be the first woman to hold that rank in Wisconsin politics. Mrs. Pattison is the wife of Thomas Pattison, occupant of ranking Wisconsin federal patronage jobs during national Democratic administrations. The Pattisons now live in Madison but lived for many years on a farm in Durand, in western Wisconsin.

Mrs. Pattison hoped for advancement to the chairmanship from the No. 2 office after Lucey's election. But Lucey asserted his prestige then to promote Gerrard, member of an influential LaCrosse family, and a man who had begun his career in organization politics as a Republican and once held office by the appointment of a past Republican governor.

Party sources say that Prof. Michael Bleicher of the University of Wisconsin faculty, now a Wisconsin member of the party's national committee and a leader among the more aggressive liberal wing of the party, is canvassing the outlook and may make a bid for the state party command also.

The choice will be made by the state party committee, subject to confirmation by later convention of statewide delegates.

Gerrard has told Lucey and others that a combination of business pressures and family problems have obliged him to reduce his schedule of party work and activity. He has cited the serious illness of his mother and the pressure associated with the organization of several new regional branches of his realty business.

Green Bay man denied new trial for bombing try

Post-Crescent Madison bureau

MADISON — The Wisconsin Supreme Court unanimously affirmed a decision by Brown County Judge James W. Byers to deny an appeal for a new trial by Bruce Van Ark of Green Bay.

Van Ark was convicted two years ago of endangering the safety of another by conduct imminently dangerous to another and evincing a depraved mind regardless of human life. He was found guilty after placing a homemade bomb in the neck of the gas tank of an automobile owned by James O'Leary, also of Green Bay.

Van Ark contended that he only wanted to scare O'Leary and had partially dismantled the bomb. A bomb expert with the Internal Revenue testified that the bomb was capable of causing an explosion.

According to testimony at the trial, Van Ark had been a friend of both O'Leary and his wife, Rosemary, and had on several occasions had sexual relations with Mrs. O'Leary. Van Ark testified that he was attempting to scare O'Leary with the bomb in order to "straighten him out a little bit" so that he would return to his family.

Van Ark was sentenced to a jail term of not more than five years.

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A bill to restrict use of salt on roadways skidded to a sudden death Tuesday in the Wisconsin Senate.

The upper house killed the bill 16-11 after turning its back on attempts by Sen. Douglas La Follette, D-Kenosha, to snow the Senate with facts and figures showing salt is not a desirable way to combat winter road problems.

La Follette said nine million tons of salt were dumped on Wisconsin roads in 1971. He claimed the salt costs Wisconsin motorists $3 billion annually in corrosive damage to auto bodies.

As for safety, La Follette argued, salt may do more harm than good.

He said it dirties windshields, turns hardpacked snow into slush and gives drivers a false sense of security.

"It's unfortunate Sen. La Follette's bill came up during one of the major snowstorms of the winter, Sen. James Swan, R-Elkhorn, said.

Among the most formidable opponents to the bill was a fiscal note by the state Department of Transportation that estimated it would cost more than $2 million annually to institute a no-salt policy on state highways.

The department said other snow removal equipment would be "totally ineffective for ice storms and would result in our having slippery highway conditions about 50 per cent of the season."

The $2 million was identified as the cost of keeping more snow removal equipment on the road. It would be taken from funds used for constructing highways, the department said.

La Follette's bill would have required that salt be used only under extreme highway conditions and only on those parts of a road where traction is especially critical.

Conviction upheld in Fond du Lac go-go dancer slaying

MADISON — The State Supreme Court affirmed the decision of Fond du Lac Circuit Judge Jerold Murphy and denied the appeal of Cory Lee Nemoir who was convicted of first-degree murder in 1972.

Nemoir was convicted of fatally shooting go-go dancer Gilda Marie Walker in her second-floor living quarters above a Fond du Lac County tavern. Nemoir, in his appeal, claimed that he was intoxicated at the time and did not possess the intent to kill.

Nemoir's claim of intoxication was reinforced by testimony of several witnesses but the defendant's actions at the time of the shooting, according to the Supreme Court, indicated that he knew what he was doing.

One witness testified that she served Nemoir a beer at her home at 4:30 p.m. on the afternoon before the shooting. Nemoir and John Lindsay then proceeded to a West Bend tavern where, according to the tavern owner, Nemoir drank 12 to 15 beers, seven or eight shots of tequila, and three to five shots of whiskey.

Returning to his home at 8 p.m. Nemoir was visited by friends and drank two or three glasses of scotch whiskey, and something less than a half pint of blackberry brandy.

Eugene Prost, owner of the tavern where the shooting took place, said he served Nemoir two chocolate vodkas with soda, and Prost's wife served him two beers, five brandy and cokes and about 10 chocolate vodkas. The two tavernkeepers testified that they did not feel that Nemoir was intoxicated.

In his appeal, Nemoir also contended that four words in the prosecutor's rebuttal argument were out of order. The prosecutor stated that Nemoir drove his car home but no testimony was given regarding the statement. The court overruled the objection and stated at the time that the jury would make the conclusion.

Nemoir is now serving a life term in the State Prison at Waupun.

No further progress at Hortonville

HORTONVILLE — No further progress has been reported in the yearlong contract disputes between the board of education and the Hortonville Education Association and spokesmen for both sides said no other negotiation sessions have been scheduled.

Kenneth Couillard, HEA negotiator, said, "We're just waiting to hear from them and working a full day, and going along as if it didn't even exist."

HEA had charged the school board with failing to negotiate in good faith after a marathon session Friday night. Couillard said, "We told them when they thought they could negotiate in good faith they should call us."

An informal group of school district residents has been circulating petitions since Saturday, trying to get the board to consider "the merit of the teachers' ability," while another group of about 50 people supported the board and waited outside the negotiation room for the first 2½ hours of the Friday session.

The only issue yet to be settled for the HEA's 1973-74 master contract involved about $9,000 for the 88 employees. The board's last offer, which teacher spokesmen charge hasn't changed since Jan. 20, calls for salary bases of $7,550 for teachers with bachelor's degrees and $8,200 for instructors with master's degrees and the board would pay 3.5 per cent of the 5 per cent employee share of the Wisconsin Retirement Fund payment.

HEA is holding out for the board's

Hospital elects E. W. Sanderson

Edmund W. Sanderson, treasurer of Kimberly-Clark Corp., was elected president of Appleton Memorial Hospital Association at the recent annual meeting.

He succeeds Richard V. Allen as president.

New board members chosen include Wilmer C. Stach, treasurer of the Aid Association for Lutherans; Charles W. Spalding, technical director of Thulpayment of the total 5 per cent share.

Couillard said after Friday's session that teachers would accept the board's offer for base salaries, and would "tentatively agree" to accept the retirement offer if the two parties could settle on a 1974-75 contract by March 15.

A school board spokesman said, "There's no way we can guarantee" settling next year's contract by March 15 since the board doesn't know what the HEA demands would be.

Republicans behind goal in fund-raising

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Republican National Committee fell about $1 million short of its fund-raising goal in 1973. But one key official says it has survived the fallout from Watergate in a healthier financial position than expected.

The political climate created by Watergate apparently led to a decline in big contributions to the Democratic National Committee, too. Nevertheless, current financial reports indicate their regular party organization may be in better shape than it has been for years.

From quarterly reports filed with the General Accounting Office, here are the figures for both national committees:

The Republicans raised $5.6 million and spent about the same amount in 1973, ending the year with a cash balance of $65,571.

The Democrats had total income last year of $6 million with $5.3 million in expenses. They had $1.2 million in the bank at year's end.

The Democrats, in a note attached to their report, told the GAO they had paid $500,000 on their long-term debt in the final quarter of 1973, but still owed some $3 million. That debt was more than $3 million after the 1968 presidential campaign.

Both national committees keyed some of their regular fund raising to Watergate last year.

The Republican theme was that the regular party organization never had anything to do with the June 17, 1972, break-in or the so-called dirty tricks attributed to President Nixon's re-election committee.

The Democrats asked for help in pressing various civil actions against the President's campaign apparatus as a result of the Watergate break-in.

Both Eric Jaffe, deputy treasurer for the Democrats, and Robert P. Odell Jr., treasurer of the Republican National Finance Committee, said it would be difficult to gauge how effective either appeal was.

Despite this, both Jaffe and Odell said there were fewer large givers in 1973 than expected, even allowing that it was a year with no major elections. Both also said they believed many people had been turned off regarding politics in general by Watergate.

Traditionally, Republicans have had a two-to-one edge over Democrats in fund raising on the national level.

While the latest quarterly reports indicate the Democrats may have temporarily erased that advantage, Jaffe said it would be impossible to draw such a conclusion without looking at all financial reports for candidates and committees nationwide.

The Democrats also have that debt to pay off. In addition, the Democrats' cash balance doesn't all belong to the committee. Of $4.1 million raised by the national committee in the last quarter of 1973, some $3.7 million came from a September telethon. Jaffe said half of that must be paid back to Democratic state committees, which shared the cost of the telethon.

About the Republicans, Odell said, "Considering what people were saying would happen to us, we've done pretty well."

"The average man in the street who is a Republican has stood by his party."

Simon speaks against rollback in oil pricing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal energy chief William E. Simon has told congressional conferees that their rollback in oil prices would make continued production unprofitable for many oil companies.

But he declined to say whether he would recommend a presidential veto of the emergency energy bill to which the "rollback amendment was added.

"The cost of the product is at a higher level than you rolled it back to," Simon said Tuesday.

The amendment approved Monday by the conferees would put the price of all domestic crude oil at $5.25 a barrel and prohibit that price from rising above a ceiling of $7.09 per barrel.

Simon told the conferees he "could live with" a price ceiling of $7.88 per barrel.

Simon, in a speech Tuesday, said his biggest problem in performing his job is credibility.

"This has been a year of great stress for governmental credibility. The fact is that the public is no longer willing to give public officials the benefit of the doubt," he told an audience at the National Press Club.

Meanwhile, Massachusetts became the third state to adopt gasoline rationing.

Gov. Francis W. Sargent announced the state will begin on Monday the gasoline rationing system already in effect in Oregon and Hawaii. Drivers of cars with odd-numbered plates may buy gasoline on odd-numbered days and those with even-numbered plates may buy the fuel on even-numbered days.

And gasoline prices continued to increase as two more major marketers posted hikes.

Gulf Oil Co. US boosted its prices 5.5 cents a gallon and Exxon Co. USA announced an increase of 3.5 cents.

The increases, attributed to higher crude oil costs, can be expected to show up on gasoline pumps in a matter of days.

China slow on missiles

WASHINGTON (AP) — Communist Chinese development of an intercontinental ballistic missile capable of hitting the United States is moving at a slower pace than U.S. officials had estimated.

These officials now forecast that a big Chinese ICBM that could hurl a three-megaton warhead 6,000 miles may be combat-ready in 1976 or 1977. A megaton is the equivalent of a million tons of TNT.

Over the years, defense officials have repeatedly revised their predictions, and their most recent estimate had centered on next year as the time when Communist China would achieve its first operational ICBM.

After the first ICBM is operational, it will take about three additional years of testing and launch base construction before China could deploy between 10 and 25 nuclear armed missiles that could strike anywhere in the continental United States.

There is no indication that the slower-than-expected rate of development stems from any serious technological problems.

Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, told the Senate Armed Services Committee Tuesday that what he called "the deliberate, unhurried pace" of Communist China's missile program reflects a comparatively small number of technically qualified specialists working on that effort, along with relatively limited resources.

Storm...

per hour before dawn. The winds were expected to pick up throughout the day, causing massive drifts which hampered plowing and kept many lesser traveled roads closed.

There were no major accidents or weather related fatalities reported in the state by midmorning.

The snowfall was not as heavy over northern Wisconsin, where new accumulations were as small as four inches. The storm left ground accumulations at 11 inches in La Crosse, 7 inches in Madison and Green Bay, 18 inches in Minneapolis and 2 inches in Chicago.

The entire state was expected to get more snow today and tonight, but the precipitation was expected to end this evening over all but northern Wisconsin. Temperatures, meanwhile, were expected to drop slightly during the next two days as the heavy cloud cover over the state dissipates.

Traffic movement was slow throughout the state due to treacherous conditions caused by snowpacked and slippery roads and limited visibility because of blowing snow. Driving conditions were worst in Kenosha County, where maintenance workers are refusing to work overtime in a contract dispute.

Spokesmen for various county sheriffs and local police departments throughout southern and southeastern Wisconsin joined the Wisconsin State Patrol in urging citizens to stay inside if possible and drive only if absolutely necessary.

Most southeastern Wisconsin Interstates had at least one lane clear for traffic moving at 40 miles per hour, but the wind persistently swept huge drifts over the roads and kept many plows backtracking. Interstate 94 between Milwaukee and Chicago was passable, but many exits were blocked by stalled cars.

Only a few trucks were reported on the roads due to the weather and the nationwide independent truckers' slowdown.

Doctor acquitted

Dr. Vincent Montemarano is kissed by his wife, Jeanne, outside the Nassau County Courthouse in Mineola, N.Y., Tuesday after he was acquitted of injecting a dying cancer patient with a lethal dose of potassium chloride. It took the jury exactly one hour to clear the 34-year-old surgeon in the December 1972 death of Eugene Bauer. (AP Wirephoto)

Physician acquitted in death of cancer patient

MINEOLA, N.Y. (AP) — Dr. Vincent A. Montemarano has been acquitted of a charge that he killed a terminally ill cancer patient with an injection of potassium chloride.

A Nassau County Court jury deliberated one hour Tuesday before finding Dr. Montemarano innocent of charges of murder and attempted murder.

Loud applause and cheers swept the crowded courtroom as the verdict was reported by jury forewoman Adele Harris. One of Dr. Montemarano's defense lawyers, 6-foot-6 James O'Brien, jumped to his feet and embraced the 34-year-old physician.

"I've never been so happy in my life!" said Dr. Montemarano, smiling as tears filled his eyes. "I was ready for anything."

The balding, bespectacled defendant was accused of giving an injection of potassium chloride Dec. 7, 1972, to Eugene Bauer, a 59-year-old railroad engineer, while Bauer was dying of throat cancer and complications at Nassau County Medical Center.

At that time, Dr. Montemarano was chief resident surgeon of the hospital in East Meadow.

During the 12-day trial, Dist. Atty. William Cahn repeatedly said Dr. Montemarano was guilty of a "murder of convenience" committed so the physician would not have to return to the medical center later to pronounce Bauer dead.

Cahn last June described the incident as "an apparent mercy killing" when he announced the indictment of Dr. Montemarano.

However, Cahn did not use either phrase in his summation to the jury at the close of the trial, which marked the first time Cahn had personally prosecuted a court case since he became district attorney in 1962.

Defense attorneys O'Brien and J. Russell Clune insisted that Bauer died of natural causes. They did not call Dr. Montemarano as a witness.

Deficit might force reduced opera season

NEW YORK (AP) — Metropolitan Opera officials say continuing deficits will force the opera to reduce its 31-week season by four to six weeks starting in the fall of 1975.

Lowell Wadmond, chairman of the opera's board, said Tuesday the house was in the midst of "a life and death crisis."

Despite retrenchment steps to cut costs, the opera this season is expected to incur a deficit of nearly $6 million, which may be trimmed to $700,000 through extra contributions, officials said.

Schuyler Chapin, the Met's general manager, said the opera would have to reduce by at least four to six weeks the season for which it guarantees jobs for its union employees.

He said that plans for the season cutback depended on the results of labor negotiations. The current three-year contract with the unions ends Aug. 31, 1975.
